Battle Impends on Floor Today.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A "rump" movement for a prohibition repeal plank was being organized within the Republican resolutions committee—which writes the platform—at an early hour this morning. Its sponsors were Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, Frank Hitchcock of Arizona, national chairman in the Taft days; John F. Harris of Florida, Henry W. Marshall of Indiana, who drafted Indiana's "temperance" repeal plank; Ambrose Kennedy of Rhode Island and Jeremiah M. Evarts of Vermont—all members of the committee.

The revolt followed the appointment of a subcommittee of seventeen late last night to make a draft of the national platform for submission to the entire committee. Senator Bingham, a leading wet, made the motion creating it, but contrary to usual procedure he was not named as a member of the subcommittee, which is rated as preponderantly Hooverish.

Makeup of Subcommittee.

The subcommittee includes two cabinet members, Secretaries Arthur M. Hyde and Ogden L. Mills, and Ambassador Walter E. Edge, who is close to the President, and as ex-officio head it has James R. Garfield of Ohio, chairman of the resolutions committee, who carries the White House benison. At first Mr. Garfield named fifteen members to sit with himself as the sixteenth member. Later, to make an odd number, ex-Gov. R. A. Nestos of North Dakota was added. He's a dry.

The [illegible] followed four hours of public hearings in which prohibition, high cost of government, reduction of government in business, economy, farm relief, unemployment, railroads, labor planks, peace, the tariff, and employment stabilization were the chief themes.

After the full committee went into secret session some members emerged with private protests that the subcommittee was stacked for the Hooverite drys and damps. They grumbled about Washington bosses trying to run the show.

Bingham Says: "Minority Report."

At 1 a. m. Senator Bingham emerged.

"I've been at three conventions and never saw a spectacle like this before," he said. "All the members are standing around the table telling the subcommittee what to do. It is a certainty there will be a minority report on the liquor issue.

"Illinois' member [Garrett Kinney] told the subcommittee that his delegation is for a dripping wet plank.

"Florida's member [Mr. Harris] said, 'My delegation says it's for resubmission, but a majority is for repeal.' Arizona's member [Mr. Hitchock] said, 'We're for repeal.' Secretary Ogden L. Mills read the New York resolution [for repeal] without comment and in a very low tone.

"I told them Connecticut was for immediate modification and repeal.

"Tennessee's man [J. A. Fowler] said, 'We went for Hoover in 1928 because he was dry.'"

Secretary Hyde of Missouri, coming out for air, said: "It looks as if we'll be in for twelve hours."

Wets Claim Majority.

Wet leaders claimed a majority of the full committee members were for repeal. The administration forces, including eight cabinet members, had spent the day pushing a dampish plank which would avoid the word "repeal," a red flag to the professional drys.

Open mutiny started after the whole committee insisted on sticking in the room to tell the subcommittee what to write, trying to boss the bosses. The wet leaders met in the headquarters of Committeeman J. Henry Roraback and framed a repeal plank.

Text of "Rump" Plank.

The text of the plank framed at the "rump" meeting, for use if only a dampish plank is sent out by the seventeen subcarpenters, is as follows:

"We recommend that the congress of the United States immediately propose an amendment to the constitution repealing the eighteenth amendment thereof, to be submitted to conventions called for that specific purpose in accordance with the provisions of article V. of the constitution.

"Should the eighteenth amendment be repealed, we pledge our best efforts towards the enactment of such legislation in the various states as will promote temperance, effectively abolish the saloon, and bring the liquor traffic

WILL IT COME TO THIS?

AN EDITORIAL

The national conventions this year may be the last ones held in the United States by a free people. No one who has watched the course of events in this country in recent years can doubt that the nation is at the parting of the ways. We can restore to freemen the right to live their lives as they see fit under the moderate restraints of the constitution, or we can accept the alien notion that the state is, of right, supreme over the individual and responsible for every citizen's conduct at every moment of his life.

Today the United States government, through one of its agencies or another, dominates transportation, banking, and agriculture, and is reaching out for dominance over manufacturing and commerce. In less than a generation the taxes paid to the United States treasury have risen from less than a billion dollars a year to well over four billion. Nothing could be more certain than that, if the present trend continues, the tax exactions will rise, year by year, until all private profits will disappear. We are close to that point today. The governments, national, state, and local, are taking a fourth of the income of the American people today, and nearly half of this huge total goes to Washington.

A hundred years ago Chicago was a few shanties in a swamp. A hundred years of free initiative have seen this city grow as no other city ever grew before. They have seen unbroken prairie lands of the central states converted into the richest farm area in the world. The transformation of a wilderness did not just happen; it came about because of human effort, and that effort was called forth by the lure of profits, of big profits.

Columbus did not set sail in the expectation of a safe 5½ per cent on Ferdinand's investment, but in the hope that the ships would return with all the wealth of the Indies that could be stuffed into the holds. Washington didn't cross the Alleghenies for fun, but in the hope of founding a great fortune. The thirteen colonies were settled by men who wanted among other things to be free to make money, and the thirty-five sister states came into being when their empty lands were occupied by men who pioneered where the hope of profits seemed largest.

To acquire riches, men invented machines and perfected them. Railroads were built to make money. Mines were opened. Factories were built and cities were laid out for the same end. The radio is something more than a laboratory toy because men wished to get rich by exploiting its possibilities. All that we value in material civilization and all the things of the spirit which can be bought only with leisure and surplus wealth we owe to the simple fact that the lure of substantial profits induced men to adventure into new and untried fields, and some of their ventures were successful even beyond their dreams.

Every industrial worker who has a job has it because some one hopes to obtain a substantial profit above the wage payment through hiring that man. Every man who is out of a job is without work because present opportunities for profit are lacking. What has happened to discourage business ventures in recent years? That is the question which delegates to the convention and particularly those delegates who are charged with framing the party platform should consider as carefully as they can. Declarations about unemployment and the depression will be meaningless if they do not attempt to answer this question.

Our government demands its four billion dollars and more each year from the profits of business. Much of what it takes is not a tax at all in any sensible use of the word. It is confiscation. The tax collector muscles in to take up to 40 per cent of the wealth left by the dead and 50 per cent of the incomes of the living, percentages which make Al Capone look like a philanthropist. Whatever the government takes operates as a brake on business activity, just as the lure of profits drives men forward. The effect of the constant reduction of profits to support our governments is apparent today in slack business. There is no eagerness to venture money in agriculture, commerce, and industry because of the certainty that any substantial profits will be taken by the tax gatherers while all the risks must be assumed by the adventurer.

A vicious circle has been set in operation. The government extorts its revenue from the citizens and then uses the income to harass business, thus further reducing the possibilities of profit. Without profits business men cannot repay their debts and cannot accumulate capital needed for expansion. That, in turn, causes unemployment. In the presence of unemployment the government is called upon to play the rôle of banker in providing capital for public and private purposes and of industrialist in providing work for the unemployed. These are expensive activities and they lead, in turn, to still heavier demands on the taxpayers. Thus the more the government does to create employment the more employment it destroys with its tax bills and the more remote becomes the hope of a recovery from depression.

The Reds in congress have encouraged this destructive process. They do not like the civilization which has been developed in this country and mean to destroy it in preparation for their Utopia. The communists in Washington have had the support of a group who misname themselves liberals, who want above all else to limit the profits of capital. The communists favor confiscation for its own sake. The liberals favor high taxation from envy and because they expect it will benefit the poor to take profits from the fortunate. No more thoughtless doctrine was ever put forward. High profits stimulate economic activity to the benefit of all classes; low profits depress and no profits kill business.

Our liberals are an anachronism. Monetary profit was as abhorrent to the ancient Hebrews and to the church fathers nearly two thousand years ago as it is to Brookhart and Nye today. Profit was abhorrent to the nobility of Europe and the notion has carried down to our own day in the Englishman's attitude of contempt toward the person in trade. America swept all that ancient rubbish aside. Profit is honorable in this country and always was, at least until our own day. It is the source of invention and discovery. It has made life immeasurably more secure than ever it was before and has given us every material comfort of which our civilization boasts. To destroy it is to turn the clock back by centuries.

If we have the will to be free, the remedy is clear. It is a decisive reduction in the annual expenditures of the federal government. The first slash should be not less than 750 million dollars. A pledge to make such a reduction should be incorporated in the Republican platform.

The reduction should be brought about in the only way it can be brought about: by curtailing the bureaus and commissions which harass business, industry, and agriculture; by the liquidation of such futilities, judged by any standards, as the farm board and the shipping board; by the limitation of veteran relief to the care of those who suffered injury in line of duty and their dependents and no others; by the elimination of federal subsidies of all sorts to the states; by a careful pruning of the public works program to provide money only for those works which are of national value. A President and a congress with a mandate to retrench and the will to retrench could save far more than three-quarters of a billion a year.

If the communists and liberals win, a thousand years of heroic struggle for liberty will have been thrown on the ash heap of history. A thousand years were required to establish the supremacy of the individual over absolutism. When at length neither the church nor the king could longer lay hold on the profits of private effort the pace of civilization began to accelerate. We are now urged to retrace our steps, to place our necks again in the yoke, to confess our individual incompetence, and to invite an absolutism in Washington to direct our lives and our fortunes.

The tide has been running strongly in the direction of serfdom since the war. Taxes for fifteen years and more have increased so rapidly that it is doubtful if we have enough free capital left to carry us more than a year or two longer. America today is the last of the English speaking countries to preserve even that slim a hold on its birthright. Some of our industries may manage to hold on for a decade, even with the present tax law of abominations continued in force, if only because no competitors can arise to press them. But our free economic machine is rapidly running down for lack of the fuel which we have always relied upon to fire it into action. Unless we have, in Lincoln's phrase, a new birth of freedom, the death of our civilization is near and inevitable.

HOOVER ADOPTS PLANK FOR 'WET AND DRY STATES'

Substitute '18th' Is Newest Plan.

Today's Program

Senator Dickinson of Iowa, the temporary chairman, will call the convention to order at 11 a. m. The order of business follows:

PRAYER—By the Right Reverend Thomas P. Bona of Chicago.

COMMITTEE REPORTS—Credentials and permanent organization.

ADDRESS — Permanent Chairman Bertrand H. Snell of New York.

COMMITTEE REPORT—Rules and order of business; recess until 4 p. m.

4 P. M.—Report of committee on resolutions.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

President Hoover late last night approved a prohibition plank for the Republican national platform committing the party to a modification of the 18th amendment. Under the terms of the modification proposed any state would be permitted to restore the manufacture, sale, and transportation of intoxicating beverages subject to conditions imposed by congress.

However, as reported elsewhere, it was not proving acceptable to an element in the platform committee and a fight on the floor of the convention is threatened.

These were the outstanding developments of the day which began with the first session of the Republican national convention in the Stadium, the striking of the party keynote of conservatism and emphasis on economic issues by the temporary chairman, Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, and the appointment of committees to report to the permanent organization today.

"Shelve Curtis" Cry Grows.

Paralleling in interest the Hoover prohibition modification plank, the consideration of which is expected to produce an exciting session of the convention tonight, was the increased momentum of the movement to shelve Vice President Charles Curtis and name instead for second place on the ticket Gen. Charles G. Dawes of Chicago.

At an early hour this morning leaders at Republican headquarters in the Congress hotel gave it as their opinion that the convention will stampede to the nomination of Gen. Dawes for Vice President unless the general should declare in the meantime that he would not accept. Len Small, chairman of the Illinois delegation, said Illinois undoubtedly would place Dawes in nomination.

Administration in Control.

Although it is doubtful that the President could stem the bolt from Curtis to Dawes if he would, the events of the day established that the administration is in control of the convention. The credentials committee reversed the action of the national committee and unseated the South Carolina delegation headed by National Committeeman Joe Tolbert, whom Mr. Hoover set out three years ago to oust from his leadership on grounds of unfitness.

Shortly after this administration triumph had been recorded a drafting subcommittee of 17 members of the resolutions committee was appointed and began preparation of the platform, which was expected to consume the remainder of the night. The drafting committee was overwhelmingly dominated by members affiliated with the administration and opposed to prohibition repeal. The Hoover high command kept Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut off this committee because of his aggressive advocacy of repeal.

Conclude Public Hearings.

The resolutions committee at 11 p. m. ended four hours of public hearings of arguments by drys and wets on the question of modifying or repealing prohibition and by advocates of farm relief, monetary, and other planks, none of which was expected to change any opinions. It was apparent that the administration was writing the platform.

The prohibition plank was given the finishing touches at another conference of administration leaders at the Chicago club and transmitted to the White House, whence a couple of hours later came word that it had received the presidential O. K. According to one story, a hitch in the proceedings enduring for several hours was caused by the President's indecision whether the plank should "direct" or "recommend" that con-

WEALTHY FLYER FACES TRIAL ON AIR LAW CHARGE

Charles Dickinson, 73 years old, millionaire president of the Aero club of Illinois, yesterday was charged with operating Ashburn air field, at West 83d street and Cicero avenue without a license, in violation of the new state air law. Mr. Dickinson, who lives at the Blackstone hotel, is out of the city, but a warrant issued for his arrest will be served by Air Deputy Sheriff Carl A. Kohler on his return.

Gordon Thomas, manager of Ashburn field, was charged with the same offense. He also was charged with flying a plane off of an unlicensed field. His case will be heard before Justice of the Peace Ira C. Lambert of Summit, Ill., this afternoon. At the same time T. O. Mount, 113 East Clarkson court, will appear before Justice Lambert on a charge of flying an unlicensed plane.

The charges against Thomas and Mount will be the first cases prosecuted under the new air laws, according to Maj. Reed G. Landis, chairman of the Illinois Aeronautics commission. Prof. Fred Fagg Jr., director of the Air Law institute of Northwestern university, will represent the commission.

Mr. Dickson learned to fly in 1921, after he was 65, and claims to be the oldest pilot in the world.

SENATOR BLACK TAKES LEAD IN RUN-OFF PRIMARY

Montgomery, Ala., June 14.—(AP)—Senator Hugo Black, seeking renomination in a "run-off" contest with former Gov. Thomas E. Kilby, tonight forged steadily to the front as returns from today's Democratic primary were tabulated.

The vote from 1,134 out of 1,136 ballot boxes gave Black 63,445, Kilby, 45,845.

This included representative returns from over the state. Both Black and Kilby advocated a referendum on prohibition.

In the Fifth congressional district, Representative Miles B. Allgood, representing the Seventh district, led Representative Lafayette L. Patterson. The count from 144 of 245 boxes in the district gave Allgood 6,356, Patterson, 6,178. They were placed in the same district under the reapportionment act reducing the state's representation from ten to nine.

Mrs. A. Y. Malone assumed a 2 to 1 lead over Mrs. J. E. Frazier in the race for Democratic national committeewoman.

Woman Stricken with Fatal Illness on Bus in Loop

Mrs. Samuel Kulp, 56 years old, 3161 Franklin boulevard, became ill on a Ravenswood bus at State and Madison streets last night and died without regaining consciousness. She was identified from papers in her handbag. A heart attack is believed to have caused her death.

U. S. Indicts W. J. Newman for Tax Fraud

William J. Newman, millionaire excavating contractor, was indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury on the charges of concealing $3,041,255 in income from the government during the years 1926, 1927 and 1928, and of evading the payment of income taxes totaling $448,263. The evasions are the largest charged in any case in his income tax campaign, which has been directed principally against gangsters and politicians in Chicago, District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson said.

Payoff Tinkoff, the attorney and tax accountant who prepared Newman's income tax returns, was named in the same indictment. Tinkoff was suspended recently from practicing before the treasury department at Washington for alleged irregularities in his conduct of other income tax cases.

Newman Blames Lawyer.

A statement by Dwight S. Bobb, Newman's present attorney, following the return of the indictment before Federal Judge John P. Barnes, indicated that Newman will attempt to shift the entire blame for any criminal irregularity in the returns upon Tinkoff. Attorney Bobb asserted that Newman had confined himself to the operating direction of his companies and that Tinkoff had prepared the income tax returns without Newman's knowledge of their contents.

Revenue agents who have been investigating the case since February, 1930, charged, however, that Newman kept a false set of books on which the allegedly fraudulent tax returns were based. The government seized the books which it charges are false on a search warrant in May, 1930, and still has them. Newman was at that time denied an injunction by which he sought to restrain the government from using the books, and demanded their return.

Prison Offense if Guilty.

The indictment contains six counts, each of which makes Newman and Tinkoff liable in the vent of conviction to a maximum penalty of five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

The income reported, the income which the government charges was earned, and the amount of tax evasion charged in each count follows:

Count—	Income reported.	Income earned.	Tax evaded.
1927, corporate	165,000	602,619	88,488
1928, personal	315	567,315	97,706
1928, corporate	99,192	1,188,865	139,727

Once a Policeman.

Newman is one of the leading excavating and wrecking contractors of Chicago. He is a former policeman, and built up his present business from a small coal and teaming business.

Tinkoff appeared at the federal building shortly after the indictment was returned and posted the $25,000 bond fixed by Judge Barnes. Since a bench warrant for his arrest will not be issued today, Newman has until then to post a similar bond set for him.

WOMAN IS HELD PRISONER ON LAKE CRIB, NOTE SAYS

Lester Beecher, 1150 Diversey parkway, last night turned over to Lieut. Axel Jensen of the Sheffield avenue police a note which he said three youths had found in a bottle floating in the lake. The note, which was dated June 1, read:

"Help! Help! I am being held a prisoner on one of the cribs in the lake. I have been raped and I am almost dead."

The scrawled signature appeared to be "Hilda Spetz." Lieut. Jensen notified the detective bureau of the find and Deputy Chief of Detectives Walter Storms ordered a squad headed by Lieut. Richard Barry to enlist the aid of the coast guard and visit all the cribs, which are intakes for the city water supply.

gress submit a change in the eighteenth amendment to the people.

The plank as finally approved is regarded by administration leaders as satisfactorily bridging the chasm between the drys and the advocates of repeal. In this proposal the President goes further in the direction of modification of national prohibition without departing from the dictum of his 1928 acceptance speech that he is opposed to repeal of the 18th amendment. Repeal is definitely excluded from the scope of action comprehended by the declaration.

What the Plank Is.

The plank proposes that congress shall submit to the states a new amendment to the constitution modifying the 18th amendment in important particulars. Under the terms of the new amendment any state by majority vote of its citizens could procure exemption from the operation of the 18th amendment.

In such states, however, congress would be empowered to lay down the conditions of the resumption of the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation and exportation of liquor. Under such authority congress could forbid the revival of the saloon in wet states and otherwise impose restrictions upon the consumption of liquor. It would be possible for congress to limit or otherwise regulate the manufacture and sale of liquor by the state along the lines of the Bratt or other dispensary systems.

The agreement upon this formula for the prohibition plank represented a victory for Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur and Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, who have steadfastly opposed the concessions to the repealists advocated by Postmaster General Walter F. Brown and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills. Messrs. Mills and Brown finally yielded, though not till it was apparent that Mr. Hoover's approval of the formula was impending.

A Combination of Plans.

The Hoover plank combines selected features of a number of plans that have been brought forward from time to time for modification of national prohibition. The exemption of wet states from the eighteenth amendment was once proposed by John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee. The home rule principle was the basis of the modification suggested by the late Senator Dwight Morrow of New Jersey.

The Wickersham commission, while opposing repeal, recommended that if a change were to be made the 18th amendment be replaced with an amendment merely conferring on congress the power to regulate the liquor traffic. Mr. Hoover rejected that suggestion at the time the Wickersham commission reported, but he has now accepted a partial application of the proposal limited in scope to the states which elect to go wet.

Moderate Drys Approve.

The Hoover lieutenants submitted the Hoover plank to the group of moderate drys headed by Daniel A. Poling of New York and Raymond Robins of Chicago and reported to Mr. Hoover that it is acceptable in these quarters. The repeal group was not consulted. Senator Bingham, although he had not seen the text of the plank, continued to assert that unless it were satisfactory to the advocates of repeal he would carry the fight against it to the floor of the convention.

The repeal cause suffered a setback during the day as a result of the action of the Pennsylvania delegation, which rejected a repeal plank and went on record for "prompt resubmission of the eighteenth amendment."

Some members of the delegation contended that this is merely another way of submitting repeal, for if the amendment were not ratified on resubmission it would be repealed. Others argued that the amendment now in the constitution can be got rid of only by a new amendment expressly repealing the eighteenth. The Pennsylvanians also proposed federal protection of dry states and came out for modification of the Volstead act.

Conservatism Is Keynote.

The keynote speech indicated the character of the appeal President Hoover desires the party to make to the people in the forthcoming presidential election for retention in power at Washington. It will base its case on the record of the Hoover administration, but it will avoid so far as possible discussion of the prohibition issue, which was not even mentioned by Keynoter Dickinson.

Above all, the Republicans will go to the people as the party of conservatism, warning the country of the dangers of radicalism which will be imputed to the Democrats, particularly if, as most Republican leaders expect, the Jeffersonians nominate Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, who is the favorite candidate of the radicals of both parties.

Harks Back to McKinley.

The Dickinson speech struck the keynote of conservatism in many ways, notably in its harking back admiringly to the Republicanism of the McKinley era. The platform being framed under the direction of cabinet members and other Hoover administration leaders is to elaborate the theme.

Altogether, President Hoover aims to seek reëlection as the most conservative candidate since William McKinley under the tutelage of Mark Hanna warred upon the radicalism of William Jennings Bryan with the battle cry of the "full dinner pail" in the midst of the economic depression of the nineties.

Dawes Movement Gains.

The movement to nominate Gen. Dawes for Vice President gained momentum steadily throughout the day. The conservative wing of the Wisconsin delegation came out for Dawes in preference to Vice President Curtis. Len Small, chairman of the Illinois delegation, said the Illinois delegates would be for the choice of the general by an overwhelming majority. Whether Illinois would place him in nomination had not been decided.

The hesitancy of the Illinois leaders with regard to proposing the nomination of Gen. Dawes is due to his Washington statement in which he declared himself not a candidate and requested his friends not to embarrass him by their support. As a result the Dawes movement is one for drafting the general against his will promoted by others than his friends and neighbors.

R. B. Creager, national committeeman of Texas, reiterated that the Texas delegation will place Gen. Dawes in nomination if Illinois should not do so. He made arrangements with the Arkansas delegation to yield to Texas at the beginning of the roll call for that purpose.

Dolly Gann Works for Curtis.

Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, was at headquarters during the day discussing with administration leaders the crisis in her brother's political fortunes. She said afterward that her brother's renomination is assured.

A different opinion came from the leaders whose canvass of the situation disclosed delegations whose members constitute an overwhelming majority of the convention shot through with dissatisfaction with the prospect of the renomination of the Vice President. From every side came the same argument, the burden of which was that Mr. Curtis, who will be 73 at the beginning of the next presidential term, is too old for the presidential job if he should be called to it and too old for the rough and tumble campaign which it will fall to the lot of the vice presidential candidate to make this year.

In addition the colorful personality of Gen. Dawes appeals to the delegates who believe that he would dramatize the Republican cause in this contest as none other possibly could.

HOOVER SHOWS DEEP INTEREST IN FIGHT HERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.] — President Hoover was still hoping tonight against insertion of an outright prohibition repeal plank in the Republican platform, although he was represented as ready to make some concessions to the vociferous wets, whose showing of strength has surprised the White House.

Messages from Chicago urging the President to make a public statement on his prohibition stand thus far have been ignored.

Late this afternoon Mr. Hoover conferred for several minutes with Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] It was learned later that the prohibition plank, as well as the sentiment of the Michigan delegation, had been under discussion.

No further light was thrown on the position Charles Gates Dawes will take if the convention should bolt and nominate him for the vice presidency. In some quarters Mr. Dawes was represented as prepared to send a strong message to the convention in such an event. Mr. Dawes retires tomorrow from the presidency of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. He may remain in Washington, however, until Saturday, delaying his arrival in Chicago until Sunday. Gen. Dawes locked himself up today and refused to see visitors.

START A MARCH ON STADIUM AND THEN ABANDON IT

A half-hearted attempt of communist agitators to stage a parade to the Chicago Stadium at noon yesterday while Senator Dickinson was delivering his keynote address failed of its own momentum and also because of a restraining detail of police.

The paraders gathered earlier at Jackson boulevard and Honoré street under the sanction of Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton. A permit for a parade, asked by Karl Borders of the League for Industrial Democracy, had been refused.

Urged by speakers, the assembly formed into a line with the intent to march to Madison street, across from the Stadium. They reached only as far as Honoré and Monroe streets when police counseled them to disband. They dispersed with no disturbance.

ONLY 2 OF CABINET IN WASHINGTON, BUT THEY MEET

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—The fact that there were only two members of his cabinet in the city today did not deter President Hoover from holding the regular Tuesday cabinet meeting. The President sat at the head of the cabinet table with only Attorney General Mitchell and Secretary Adams in attendance. The other eight members of the cabinet were in Chicago attending the Republican convention.

Women Foes of Prohibition Turn Out in Force

Members of Women's National Association for Prohibition Reform gathered at their headquarters at 75 East Monroe street before marching to the Congress hotel to attend the meeting of the resolutions committee.

HOOSIERS PLAN REPEAL PARADE IN CONVENTION

Outspoken sentiment for prohibition repeal on behalf of the Indiana delegation is expected on the convention floor today. Harold Van Orman, delegate of Indianapolis, former lieutenant governor, promised yesterday that at the first mention of prohibition on the floor of the convention, he will seize the state banner and start a parade for repeal.

That the delegation will at least follow the dictates of the state convention, which voted for resubmission, is considered a foregone conclusion and the question now is how far beyond that the delegation will go, when the matter comes to a vote.

Satisfaction was expressed among the delegates yesterday at the selection of Henry W. Marshall of Lafayette as member of the platform committee. Mr. Marshall is a known liberal and wrote the prohibition plank adopted at the state convention. Gov. Harry G. Leslie, the delegation chairman, is expected to be a stanch supporter of their cause.

How Indiana's 31 votes will be cast on a question of straight repeal of the dry law was in the balance, but the absence of two of the state's most celebrated drys, United States Senators James E. Watson and Arthur Robinson, gave hopes to Delegate Van Orman and other repealists.

Mrs. Archibald Roosevelt, wife of son of late former President Roosevelt, favors dry repeal.

WILMETTE C. OF C. OPPOSES GARNER'S POSTOFFICE OFFER

The Wilmette Chamber of Commerce yesterday adopted a resolution opposing the construction of the new postoffice building allotted to the village under the terms of the proposed Garner bill. The resolution protested against the adoption of the bill, recommended that the building of a postoffice in Wilmette be indefinitely postponed, and urged the government to confine itself to such building projects as may be revenue producing. The present time was termed inopportune for a building program of the type proposed in the Garner bill, and the resolution emphasized the belief that such a building program would increase the tax burden of the people.

Empty Seats a Dominant Note in Convention.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

THE SCENE: The huge Stadium on Chicago's west side.

THE HOUR: Eleven o'clock yesterday morning.

The far from exhilarating calm of delegates who are whispering to one another, "What will happen tomorrow?" is from first to last tap of the gavel the dominant note of the short first session of the Republican party's twentieth national convention for the nomination of candidates for the presidency and vice presidency of the United States.

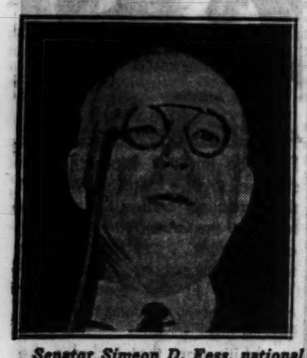

The session is to last an hour and three-quarters, speeches and the routine business of organization getting under way at 11:30 o'clock and ending at 1:15.

Many of Seats Empty.

We of the audience await the call to order at 11. But it does not come. The clock hands move on to 11:05 and we survey the scene restlessly. Its most significant aspect is the empty spaces in the Stadium.

For the purposes of the convention that structure has been equipped with 20,400 seats. But now neither mezzanine floor nor either of the two balconies, which contain together 14,500 seats, is more than one-fifth full. One recalls the eager throngs hurrying betimes to the Republican convention of four years ago in Kansas City, and one is depressed.

Music strikes up. That helps. The Stadium pipe organ, pressagented as "largest in the world" and recorded as once having shattered electric bulbs when it was given free rein, now participates in antiphonals with a thirty piece band. Flags sway from the roof 177 feet aloft. The sky is cloudy, the breeze cool. Physically this promises to be a comfortable convention, however anxious and apprehensive it may be politically.

Now a flurry of action.

Bland, beaming and bald, aged 71 and far from looking it, Simeon D. Fess, United States senator from Ohio, trips nippily to the prow of the speakers' platform. He is chairman of the Republican national committee and so for the moment he is master of ceremonies. He wears a black cutaway coat and looks more professorial than senatorial. A professor he used to be—professor and administrator forty years ago in Ohio Northern university and later for five years a lecturer in the University of Chicago and for ten years president of Antioch college in Ohio.

A Believer in G. O. P.

Fess is a Bourbon reactionary at heart, believing all to be right that Republican national platforms pronounce right, and exercising no inconsiderable influence in the shaping of those platforms. Despite his mild manner he has the colossal assurance of a Bourbon.

At 11:08 o'clock newspaper photographers encompass the senator and drive him along the gangway to the platform's prow. He is tractable, posing with poised gavel at the speakers' desk and doing it over and over again at the reiterated commands, "Just one more, senator, just one more!"

Cheerful Convention Setting.

The setting for this convention is cheerful.

A background of acres of opera chairs painted in vivid red; thousands of square yards of American flags and red, white and blue bunting; seemly portraits of the benignant Washington flanking the speakers' platform; coats of arms of the forty-eight states of the Union adorning the scene and giving it—when you stop to think about the matter—its finest significance.

For a national convention means mighty commonwealths shaping, for good or for ill, their mutual destinies. Despite the chronic equivocations of national conventions, despite their platitudes and their tergiversations, they mean delegated authority acting for a farflung empire. Even convention blunders have their spectacular value.

the party's delegates and alternates, supposed to number 2,254. But some of them are not in Chicago for the convention nor will they be. One New England state, for example, has sent half a delegation. "Thrift, Horatio, thrift." Why travel 900 miles to renominate a candidate whom brethren nearer the scene will renominate anyway?"

"I am for economy," said Calvin Coolidge, "not because it saves money but because it saves people." New England is this year saving both.

At their plank writing desks at each side of the prow sit 700 journalists in their usual state of mind—a state not flattering to the rest of the human race at home or abroad. Morosely hoping for the best, they expect the worst and so may be described as adequately neutral. When, half an hour later, the party's keynoter bounces forward with the pronunciation "grevious," in describing the plight of the American farmer, then the journalists smile with a certain relish and make a note.

It is now 11:24 o'clock and Senator Fess has been thoroughly photographed for the present and for posterity. The mezzanine floor and the balconies are one-fourth full. Republican well wishers are muttering "the arrangements committee better begin sending out tickets in bundles.'

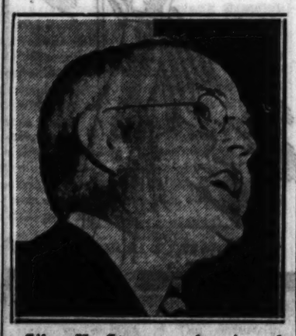

Senator Starts Session.

Fess tires of waiting for any more audience and, taking the prow again, he chants in the traditional convention sing-song, "The ushers will please clear the aisles. Delegates will take their seats and the aisles must be cleared. Delegates will please take their seats. The convention cannot open until quiet is restored in the hall." That sounds as if excitement were raging, but if there is any unusual clamor it must be in the senator-professor's cloistered mind.

Serenity that suited him having settled upon the scene the sage of Yellow Springs, O., looks up to the flag hung roof and says:

"Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I am wondering whether the delegates are not thinking that this is Flag day! One hundred and fifty-five years ago the nimble fingers of Betsy Ross——"

At this point the glare from a battery of high powered lights, blazing from the opposite side of the hall as an aid to the photographers, smacks the speaker full in the eyes. Once before the glare has distressed him and, angry now, he says, "Turn off those lights." For an instant they subside; then hit him again and he shouts, "I want those lights to be turned off and to stay off!" [Applause.]

The speaker resumes concerning the nimble fingers of Betsy Ross and the flag—how from Lexington to Chateau-Thierry it has been our inspiration. He weaves in the name of Lincoln and there is a decorous salvo of handclapping.

"But," he continues, "our flag stands for more that struggles on the field of battle. It stands for the arts of peace—that peace which promises in the fullness of time to be universal throughout the earth."

The words lead up to the simple and always touching rite—for it is no less—of the bearing of American flags and Legion flags before the delegates. The picture closes with the singing of "'Star Spangled Banner" by delegates and spectators.

More preliminaries. The convention is being photographed en masse. Silas Strawn, introduced by Fess as "president of the citizens' committee whose guests we are," utters a few courtly words of welcome to the delegates and praises his Democratic fellow citizen, Edward N. Hurley, who did the hard work of preparation for the convention.

Mayor Cermak, hearty and unpretentious, tells the delegates he is confident that they will carry away the memory of pleasant days of hospitality, points with pride to Art institute, Field museum, Adler planetarium, Shedd aquarium, forest preserve, and 30 miles of lake front "along which," he says, "we have erected improvements costing hundreds of millions." And he hopes, yea it is his "fervent prayer," that out of the deliberations of the convention will come constructive good.

Mayor Anton J. Cermak welcoming the Republicans in behalf of the city of Chicago.

Bishop Delivers Innovation.

Noon approaches, and with it comes the true keynote speech of the day. A keynote speech not delivered by a politician for politicians, but by a bishop for his anxious, apprehensive countrymen.

That keynote speech is the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman's prayer. It rings true. Thirty-six years ago I first attended a national convention and I have attended many since then, but I never heard a convention prayer so solemn, so humble, so honest as the Protestant Episcopal bishop of Washington, D. C., now is making. He is saying that we—he, you, the American people—are being justly punished for selfishness, for conceit, for boasting.

His tones are fervent with grieving. They lay awe upon the assemblage. The nobility, the chasteness of the sentences, recall the diction of the Book of Common Prayer. The bishop is uttering the confession of a nation. He is saying that we are sinners, and he is asking pardon for us all.

Thus the words:

"With chastened humility we confess our vaunted pride, our boasted security and our avowed self-dependence.

"In our conceit we have trusted in our own strength and forgotten that Thou alone art the source of all peace and all abiding happiness.

"In the time of our distress we cry unto Thee: 'God, be merciful to us, sinners.' Give us freshened courage, renewed hope, a clearer vision of our duty to Thee and our fellow men.

A Plea for Wisdom.

"Restore to us as a people, honorable industry, sound learning and pure manners. Save us from violence and lawlessness, discord and confusion. Endue with the spirit of wisdom those to whom in Thy name we entrust the authority of government, that there may be justice and peace at home, and that, through obedience to Thy law, we may show forth Thy praise among the nations of the earth.

"In the days of shadow, give us to see the way that shall lead us into paths of wholesome living. In all the plans and deliberations of this convention do Thou guide us in the course that shall be for the highest good of all our people. With renewed faith in Thee, we invoke Thy blessing upon our nation and our President. Especially do we pray for those upon whose hearts and minds burdens have been laid too heavy to be borne.

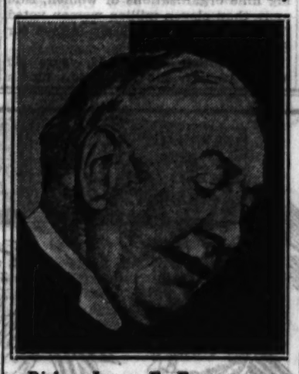

"In Thy mercy hasten the day of restored confidence, relieved anxiety and the just rewards of labor. In the time of prosperity, fill our hearts with thankfulness, and in the day of trouble suffer not our trust in Thee to fail; all of which we ask through Him who for our sakes became poor that we through His poverty might be made rich, Thy Son, our Savior, Jesus Christ. Amen."

Blessed quiet for several seconds. A convention hall has become a cathedral.

"What a keynoter! What an honest keynoter!" whispers a journalist when the spell has lifted—and saying that he means no irreverence to James E. Freeman.

After the interlude of honesty and humility, the routine of compliment and platitude and brag is resumed.

United States Senator Lester Jesse Dickinson, Algona, Ia., is unanimously elected temporary chairman of the convention and as such he keynotes in the traditional manner for fifty-five minutes. Commenting on his vehement propagandizing for farm relief, the late Nicholas Longworth once called Dickinson "Hell Raising Dick." That was when he was a member of the national house of representatives. Now he is fifty-nine years old, crowned with an effective shock of curly white hair and equipped with pipe organ lungs.

The Oratorical Flourish.

As a stylist he has all the stock phrases at his tongue's end — "three score and twelve years ago" for seventy-two years, "verily like Samson of old," "as it has been in the past, so shall it be in the future," etc.—and as a keynoter he has all the alibis at his fingers' ends.

With the phrases and the alibis he works so effectively that the delegates reward him by making a cheerful demonstration for President Hoover.

Recalling "the dark hour" of "three score and twelve years ago," when the Republican party nominated Lincoln, the senator touches off the demonstration by leaping to 1932 and saying:

Wins Cheers for Hoover.

Hurrah! Sixty seconds of cheering and handclapping by the delegates and the playing of "America" by the band. The delegates are rising to their feet—all save the rebel Republicans of the Wisconsin delegation, with whom disregard of a routine civility is ever synonymous with profound conviction.

Otherwise it is a polite demonstration; nothing to sweep you off your feet but sufficient to meet the stock requirements of "loyalty to the party."

Keynoter Dickinson's mention of Gen. Dawes in connection with the work of the Reconstruction Finance corporation brings no demonstration, a fact which encourages the sedate partisans of Vice President Charles Curtis. He and they would like to see him renominated with Hoover and Dawes will not care if he is. So no demonstration at this point. For this convention demonstrations are work and not to be wasted.

Applaud Budget Reference.

Senator Dickinson rouses genuine applause with "Our President determined that a balanced budget was the first essential to economic recovery," but such utterances as his boast that "increased efficiency" in the administration of federal prohibition laws has now put "twice as many criminals in detention as there were in jails and penal institutions five years ago" falls upon clammy silence.

Silence having become boresome, conversation becomes animated, so animated that Senator Fess exclaims with professorial vexation: "There is too much disorder in this room. There are complaints from everywhere! It is not that the speaker is not speaking loud enough. There is too much noise!"

"Hell Raising Dick" then resumes booming and toward 1 o'clock reaches the big bell ringer in his keynoting: It is:

"Let party loyalty sound as the keynote of this campaign, because loyalty to party principles is the basis of party strength."

Anyway, all things came to an end—even twenty-two closely typewritten pages of keynoting—and at 1:17 o'clock the convention is adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning.

KEYNOTER GIVES WOMEN A PLACE —IN NINE WORDS

It's a Man's Convention, Girl Reporter Finds.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

What about women at this convention?

When Keynoter Dickinson was making his address in the Stadium yesterday morning he interrupted his talk on tariff and taxes long enough to shout with a deal of conviction:

And he smiled the pleased smile of the almsgiver. And waited for the applause his generosity seemed to merit. He got his reward after a bit. But he got it from the women. A chorus of voices intoned the proper political to deum, but the chorus was entirely soprano. Throughout the big hall not one man was clapping for this pronouncement, a nine word pronouncement in a speech that took about an hour to deliver.

It's a Dressmaker's Job.

That percentage [it is about 20 seconds to 60 minutes, isn't it?] is just about the accurate woman-man ratio at this convention. The "woman angle" ought to be covered by a dressmaker, not a reporter.

You know the fashion advertisements that say "spectator sports clothes?" Pretty gowns that look lovely in a box at the Davis cup matches, but would go all to pieces on a tennis court. Well, the women at this convention are wearing their spectator clothes; politically and literally.

Dolly Gann Is Busy.

I suppose the only woman really dressed for battle is Mrs. Dolly Gann. She's determined not to believe that there is a possibility of her brother, Charles Curtis, being shoved out of the vice presidential renomination, and determined to fight such a possibility, even if she doesn't admit it exists.

She was so busy conferring with politicians that she didn't get to the convention until just a few minutes before it was gaveled to order. In her box, with her husband, she issued a statement of confidence in answer to talk of Gen. Charles G. Dawes for the vice presidency—"There's absoluetely nothing to it"; but smiled a smile of worry.

"It's a local boom, this talk of Gen. Dawes," she maintained.

Then up spoke Edward Everett Gann, her attorney husband, to prove by law what his wife declares by intuition: "Why, don't you know that Gen. Dawes has definitely declined? That shows there's nothing to it."

And Mrs. Gann, weary but watchful, kept bowing to this person, smiling on that delegate; talking to that committeeman.

Women Watch for Spectacle.

But the other women in the boxes were there to see a show.

Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, beautiful blond wife of the secretary of war, was in blue and white. At least, I guess she was. My sartorial informant was a bit excited, as she said, "O, all I noticed was her lovely hair. She's just as pretty as her pictures."

Across the hall was another good looking "cabinet" wife: Mrs. Ogden Mills, wedded to the man who is secretary of the treasury. She was in black or something dark. Anyway, it looked well. Mrs. William N. Doak, wife of the labor secretary, was, as usual, all in white. She's so small that her husband lost her in the crowd after he had come down from his seat with the officials when the program was over.

Maybe there's some higher political symbolism, too, in that incident. Of the politician losing sight of a woman, or women, at this convention.

And Alice Roosevelt Longworth, she who talks so well in private, so little for the press, was there. She was the only one of the "boxed" celebrities who dared leave the sacred enclosure of the elite and walk about with democracy. As she made the grand tour, nodding to friends, more than one lady delegate took her mind off political problems long enough to nudge her neighbor and whisper:

"Lookit, there's Alice."

Then the lady delegate looked at her badge of officialdom and turned to watch the platform. From that platform, during the course of the entire session, she heard Keynoter Dickinson's nine words of philosophy: "Republican men regard Republican women as their ablest allies." She heard the names of one or two of her sister delegates read out as members of committees. And she went back to her hotel.

Charles Collins Teague, California; William V. Hodges, Colorado; Daniel O. Hastings, Delaware; Garret D. Kinney, Illinois; Jay N. Darling, Iowa; Charles F. Scott, Kansas; William M. Butler, Massachusetts; Fred W. Green, Michigan; John G. Winant, New Hampshire; John J. McClure, Pennsylvania; James A. Fowler, Texas, and John J. Sullivan, Washington.

About the time the secret sessions of the 17 platformers started the administration men were spreading the word, which earlier had been telephoned to the White House, that they believed the platform can be held to resubmission of prohibition by an amendment modifying the eighteenth amendment instead of submission of direct repeal.

Rumblings of revolt among the delegates grew stronger. The strength of the repealist movement in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, in the west and northwest, and in some of the mountain states, registered in the state caucuses Monday night, still appeared to be growing.

Pennsylvania Pro and Con.

As the platformers took up their work the administration forces sent word to Washington that the ranks of the repealists were cracking in Pennsylvania. William S. Vare, from his sick bed in Philadelphia, the man who turned the tide to Hoover in Kansas City, sent word to the Pennsylvania delegation to support a dripping wet plank. The administration forces and the damps, however, worked to such effect that after prolonged bickerings Pennsylvania adopted a compromise resubmission plank—not straight repeal.

But supplemental to this action the Keystone delegates called for immediate modification of the Volstead act which was not so sweet for the drys and moists. Thus Pennsylvania went damp on the eighteenth amendment, but wet on Volstead. Late at night a group of Pennsylvania wets were stirring up a revolt and proclaimed they would fight for repeal on the floor.

THE WET-DRY DEBATE

Liberals Get the First Inning; Demand Repeal Plank.

One full hour was allotted to debate of the liquor question—half an hour for each side—and although the debate probably did not change the situation one solitary jot or tittle, it was entered into with great gusto.

After Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, leading wet, and Dr. Scott McBride of the Anti-Saloon league had been kodaked together the anti-prohibitionists opened the argument.

Dr. Butler, who has announced his intention of carrying the fight to the convention floor if the resolutions committee brings in a less emphatic plank than one proposing repeal, was the first speaker. He spoke of the resolution he shot into the convention during its first session.

"This resolution," he said, "points out the right of the public to an opportunity to vote to repeal, if they chose, the 18th amendment, acting through the conventions in their several states elected for that purpose, free from any political controversy or contest whatsoever.

"It provides that if and when the 18th amendment is repealed the Republican party in those states which do not have systems of prohibition shall devote all its energy and authority to building a system of effective control of the liquor traffic to prevent the existence of the saloon.

"The resolution insists that while the 18th amendment remains on the statute books it should be obeyed.

"Any one who is opposed to the repeal of the amendment can vote for the resolution, because we are not asking this convention to indorse the repeal, but simply to indorse the proposal to let the people vote on repeal, and then let the thing take its course in discussion in the several states in accordance with the provisions of the constitution."

A plank committing the party to repeal was presented by Pierre S. du Pont of Wilmington, Del., head of a consolidated group of leading wet organizations. It included the Crusaders, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, the Women's Organization for National Reform, the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, and the American Hotel association with a reported joint membership in excess of 3,500,000. This plank read:

"We believe that the 18th amendment should be repealed. We, therefore, urge the congress immediately to propose an amendment to the constitution repealing the 18th amendment, to become effective when ratified by conventions of the people in three-fourths of the states, in accordance with the provisions of Article V. of the constitution, and we pledge the best efforts of the Republican party to the accomplishment of such ratification."

Woman Appeals for Repeal.

An argument that the public is demanding that the 18th amendment be "repealed, not merely diluted," was made by Mrs. Courtland Nicoll of New York, vice chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, which has enrolled over a million voters. She was introduced by Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, head of that organization.

"The Republican party is on trial today," said Mrs. Nicoll. "It had its inception 80 years ago in the vacillation of the government then in power, a government too timorous to speak with a clear voice in the critical days before the civil war.

"Today the professional drys are fighting with their backs to the wall. No longer can they proclaim that righteousness is on their side, for a righteousness which creates and nourishes a criminal class has forfeited its claim to the word. No longer can they claim that prosperity is their child, unless they are willing to admit that 'sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child.'"

"This is a political issue of the most fundamental character," he said, "and it can be settled only by political action. Ours is a government through parties. The people look to the great parties to declare their beliefs on the problems of the day and to propose action. A party that fails to meet these expectations does not serve and soon must die.

"We cannot fool anybody with talk of modifying or revising the amendment. The public mind is too keen, too alert. If we try to dodge we shall be caught instantly.

"Beware lest an obvious dodging of this question will pin the label 'prohibition party' on what is still the Republican party.

Clark Talks for Crusaders.

The Crusaders, more than a million strong, presented their argument for repeal through Fred G. Clark Jr., their president.

"Prohibition has failed," said Mr. Clark. "If prohibition had not failed the Crusaders' organization never would have been born.

"We can no longer crucify the youth of America on the brass rails and mahogany bars of the countless thousands of speakeasies that flourish throughout this country.

"Twelve years of prohibition chaos have proved that prohibitory law does not prohibit the manufacture, sale or consumption of alcohol beverages.

"Prohibition promised the abolition of the licensed saloon, but gave us two unlicensed saloons to take its place. It promised the elimination of corruption between the liquor traffic and politics, and we now have such a wave of liquor induced political corruption as we have never known. It promised a decrease of our police forces, court costs and local and state prison population. It promised to save money on these items alone sufficient to make up for all that we lost from liquor excises and saloon licenses.

"It promised that the nation's drink bill would be entirely eliminated, but today after 12 years of prohibition law we find the people are spending twice as much for liquor as was spent under legal sale.

"We demand that the Republican party which has been the ruling power during all the years of prohibition now take immediate and definite steps to repeal the dry law."

Lawyers Demand Repeal.

The views of the Lawyers' Voluntary Committee, Inc., demanding the adoption of the Du Pont repeal plank were presented by Ralph M. Shaw, who said they had been adopted by the American Bar association and the bar organizations in most of the states.

"It is a lawyer's duty to help repeal infamous legislation," said Mr. Shaw. "To that end this committee of lawyers, composed of some of the most distinguished lawyers in New York City, organized themselves into a committee to ascertain what the bar of the United States thought about this eighteenth amendment. Through their efforts polls have been taken in large numbers of bar associations. Not one single bar association in the United States has yet voted in favor of the retention of the eighteenth amendment."

Voice of Young America.

An argument that all of living America under 37 years of age had had the era of speakeasies, bootleggers and lawlessness forced on it through no vote of its own was made by George H. Sibley of New York.

"No one under 37 years of age," Mr. Sibley said, "has ever had the opportunity to vote effectively on the issue of prohibition. The younger generation remembers little or nothing of the legalized saloon. It has seen the temperance movement submerged in an orgy of lawlessness and corruption and has had forced upon it on all sides the unregulated speakeasy. It has seen our communities terrorized by gangster control and tainted with the greed of the racketeer."

Frank A. Bowland, who spoke for the American Hotel association, said 30,000 hotels in America with 1,800,000 rooms have felt the evils of prohibition.

Manufacturers Ask for Vote.

The National Association of Manufacturers joined in the demand that prohibition be put up to the people. One of the fourteen planks it presented to the platform makers was as follows:

"The eighteenth amendment—The time has come to reconsider our national policy in dealing with the control of alcoholic beverages and resubmit the issues involved to the deliberate consideration of the electorate through constitutional conventions assembled in the separate states to consider that issue by itself."

MANUFACTURERS ASK TRUST LAW CHANGES TO PROMOTE TRADE

The National Manufacturers' association last night asked the resolutions committee for a plank calling for modification of the anti-trust laws to permit industry a reasonable measure of self-regulation with a view of employment stabilization.

It urged legislation to permit voluntary agreements between sellers to such an extent as may be necessary:

1. To avoid destructive competition.
2. To avoid wastage of materials.
3. To avoid the constant incentive to capital concentration.
4. To help stabilize pay rolls.
5. To preserve earnings—the source of all tax revenues.
6. To restore industrial equilibrium by restoring equality of privilege between buyer and seller.
7. To promote the public interest by giving balanced weight to the needs of capital and labor at least equally with that of the consumer.

On taxation, public economy and expenditure, the manufacturers urged a plank for reductions of expenditures and nonessential governmental activities. It calls for the repeal of the recapture clause of the transportation act, and for competition by common carriers by rail, highway, air and water under conditions of equality.

WOMEN DRYS TALK OF A REVOLT FROM BOTH MAJOR PARTIES

Talk of a possible feminine revolt from both the Republican and Democratic parties and the organization of a women's prohibition party following the Democratic national convention buzzed among the ultra drys here for the Republican national convention yesterday. The drys were about ready to concede that the Republicans would chisel some kind of resubmission timber into their platform and are in dread that the Democrats will hew even further towards repeal when they begin to build their platform.

Bolt sentiment is running strongest among the leaders of the Woman's National Committee on Law Enforcement, headed by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody and representing seven federations of church and club women. The professional drys, represented by the Anti-Saloon league crowd from Westerville, O., are less cordial to the idea.

The drys are still casting about for a delegate to make the fight against resubmission or repeal on the Republican convention floor. The Westerville folks were understood to favor Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt of California for the job, but Mrs. Peabody frowned on the suggestion. The church and club groups feel that Mrs. Willebrandt fell from grace when she signed up as legal counsel for Fruit Industries, Inc., the California grape concentrate distributors.

THE DRY ARGUMENT

The dry side of the battle was opened by Ernest H. Cherrington, head of the national board of strategy of the dry groups. He argued that the party should not attempt to bind the men it elects to office.

"Since the only relation of a President," he said, "to the basic charter is limited to his efforts to 'preserve, protect and defend the constitution,' a national political convention should not attempt to bind the President and his administration to leadership in an effort to change that charter, but should leave responsibility in the matter of constitutional changes to an unhampered congress.

"There is no such possible thing as a referendum on or a resubmission of the 18th article or any other article of the fundamental law. Certainly no national party platform should make use of such terms which imply or suggest the possibility of what is constitutionally impossible.

Calls Action Coercive.

"No political party convention should attempt by platform declaration to coerce members of congress or state legislatures in the matter of their attitude or vote on constitutional changes.

"Such an effort would not only be out of harmony with both the letter and spirit of article V. of the constitution, but it would be a stab at representative popular government and would complicate and make infinitely more difficult the situation in congressional and state legislative districts.

"If this convention should adopt a repeal or so-called resubmission plank congressional candidates in half the districts of the nation would be immediately placed in the position of being disloyal either to the party platform or to their constituents.

"The 18th amendment is a great social and governmental standard set up by the people through constitutional processes."

"We are opposed to repeal of the 18th amendment," said Mrs. Ella A. Boole of the W. C. T. U. "We are opposed to resubmission.

"We believe that the activities of our organization helped to break the solid south in its support of Herbert Hoover and contributed to his election, and I am here to say that if the Republican party should indorse resubmission for the repeal of the 18th amendment it would mean that this great group of women would not only many of them fail to vote, but the Republican party would lose their hearty support in this campaign for the election of the man whom they shall nominate for President of the United States.

Ask Efficient Enforcement.

"We ask that the Republican party in its resolutions stand for efficient enforcement of the 18th amendment and for the observance of the law."

Dr. Scott McBride, head of the Anti-Saloon league, likewise advanced the argument that a prohibition repeal plank would be coercion.

"The reason the wets," he said, "are asking for a repeal plank is in order that they might coerce congress. Congress carries the responsibility, for they must deem that any proposed amendment is necessary before it can be submitted.

"We have not asked for a dry plank, and we certainly have a right now to ask all parties to fail to put a plank in indorsing the wets as against the drys and slapping in the face the dry congressman and the dry senator."

Raymond Robins also spoke against resubmission.

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody, representing nine organizations of women, said more than eleven million women voted for Hoover in 1928 and six million for Smith.

"Prohibition is only 12 years old and a 12 year old institution like a 12 year old boy needs time and a mother," she said.

"Mothers have rights to protect which they refuse to submit to referendum. They will stand against the rulers of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. The political machine is a juggernaut of greed."

22 LABOR DEMANDS

Green Asks 2.75 Per Cent Beer So That It May Be Taxed.

Twenty-two demands on behalf of labor, including high wages, unemployment relief, the five day week, and shorter working day, the graduated estate tax as opposed to the broader based sales tax, and immediate modification of the Volstead act for the taxation of beer, were submitted to the resolutions committee.

The recommendations were made in an address by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who said their inclusion in the party platform would bring encouragement and hope to the "millions of men and women who are suffering from unemployment."

Mr. Green spoke of the Volstead act as a question of "great social and economic significance," on which the revival of industry is dependent in a large measure.

"We propose the immediate modification of this act to permit manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer by weight so that it may be taxed," he said.

Mr. Green said labor had learned through bitter experience the burden imposed upon it by the conspiracy and anti-trust laws, and urged that they be amended so that labor, industry, and the farmer might be free to develop such relationships as would best serve the interests of all.

PLEAS OF WOMEN

Men Applaud Demand for Legislative Protection.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Fifteen women carrying planks for the Republican platform went before the resolutions committee. Briefly and briskly they talked of prohibition and of internationalism; of peace and of unemployment. But the speaker whom the men applauded almost to the point of a real demonstration was the one who told them that women wanted not equal rights, but protection, legislative protection.

Mrs. Frank R. Halas of Chicago, representing the National Women's Trade Union league, explained that she had worked for her living all her life; that she and many hundreds like her have been too busy earning their living to "sit around and theorize about pretty ideas of equality with men." Her organization, she declared, is bitterly opposed to any movement that would take away from the working women the safeguards of protective legislation so laboriously gained.

"Equal Rights" Amendment.

She was referring specifically to the "equal rights" amendment which the National Woman's party, a few minutes earlier had urged for committee consideration.

Miss Agnes Nestor of Chicago also spoke for the trade union women.

The National Woman's party had Mrs. Rebekah Greathouse of New Jersey, cousin of Mrs. Ann Morrow Lindbergh, to plead for the removal of the protective legislation, which, the party feels, imperils the chance of the woman worker getting a job.

Mrs. James W. Morrisson, formerly of Chicago, speaking for the National League of Women Voters, said the women want these three things:

"Economize, but not at the expense of children.

"Organize all our resources to meet the tragedy and the menace of unemployment.

THE RAILROADS

The wishes of the railroads of America were expressed before the committee by L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central, who asked that the Republican party "be as fair with the railroads as you are with other means of transportation."

"As stated by the interstate commerce commission, the railroads constitute and will remain the backbone of our transportation system," said Mr. Downs. "It has been the settled policy of our government, and we ask that you reaffirm this policy, that our transportation system be privately owned and operated under such wholesome and sympathetic public regulation as will insure good service at reasonable and nondiscriminatory rates."

IMPROVE WATERWAYS

Congressman Reid Presents Demands of River Congress.

A resolution adopted by the National Rivers and Harbors congress, in session at the Congress hotel yesterday, was submitted to the resolutions committee last night by Congressman Frank R. Reid of Aurora, president of the association. It urged the continued improvement of rivers and harbors and the speediest possible completion of all projects already authorized, including flood control works on the lower Mississippi.

Congressman Reid said there had been much propaganda in recent months against completing river and harbor projects, and that this agitation purported to be in the interests of economy. The interests of economy will best be served through the establishment of cheaper transportation routes, he said.

"The larger portion of the sums expended for river and harbor improvements," said a resolution presented by Congressman Reid, "goes directly into the hands of labor at a time when unemployment is one of our gravest problems."

UNEMPLOYMENT

Relief for the unemployed was asked by Ford Glen Lawrence of the Chicago Workers' Company on Unemployment. Jobs rather than charity was his plea and he presented a three plank platform to further it: First, a policy of public work adequate to speed up the wheels of industry, and especially projects for housing the workers; second, a shorter working week so as to pass available jobs around to all workers; third, preparation for another depression by some form of unemployment insurance.

NATIONAL DEFENSE

Planks pertaining to the national defense forces and the civilian components, the citizens' military training camps, reserve officers' corps, the R. O. T. C., and the national rifle practice were submitted by their representative, John P. Taylor.

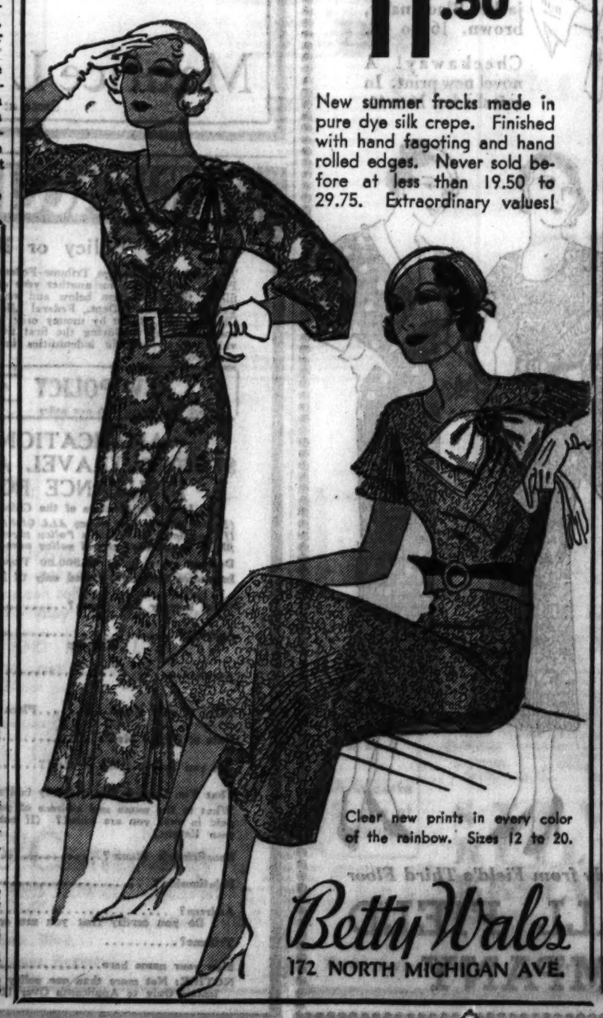

Mr. Taylor explained that the national defense act of 1920 provided for an army of 285,000 men with adequate officer personnel and civilian components. This has been whittled down to 112,000 and during the present session of congress efforts have been made to wipe out the very bone of our national defense, he said.

URGE PLATFORM PLEDGE FOR CUT IN TAX BURDENS

Leaders Plead for Lower Government Costs.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Congressman John Q. Tilson of Connecticut urged upon the resolutions committee "a promise to the forgotten man—the American taxpayer."

"This man, pathetic, weary, the load still on his back, with little hope in front of him," said Mr. Tilson, "should be given our pledge to lighten his load as soon as we can. We should give our solemn word we are not going on spending money whether we have it or not."

The plank he then proposed for the party platform reads:

"The crushing weight of increased taxation—national, state and local—is rendering it more and more difficult for private initiative and enterprise successfully to carry on the business upon which depend the employment and livelihood of millions of people.

"This burden must be lightened at the earliest possible moment. It can be done only by the reduction of governmental expenditures to the lowest possible point consistent with efficient administration of only necessary governmental activities, and the elimination of all others. We pledge ourselves to a policy of systematic retrenchment along this line to the end that the cost of government may be substantially decreased and the burden of taxation accordingly lightened."

Suggests Tax System Revision.

Demarest Lloyd for the Taxpayers' union, Washington, D. C., not only pleaded for economy in public expense, but also suggested a revision of the taxing system.

"The revival of business is the paramount need of the moment," begins the plank which Lloyd suggested to the resolutions committee. "In order to bring about such revival it is necessary at the earliest possible date that the burden of taxation be lightened and more widely distributed."

His plan to effect those results he summarized as follows:

"Utmost economy in the expenditures of government is necessary, but in effecting such economy care must be taken not to cause serious dislocation and demoralization by summary curtailments and precipitate increase in unemployment.

"The introduction into the revenue laws of the country of more general income or excise taxes in order to eliminate certain discriminatory and burdensome features of the law which had to be passed without adequate debate."

Rossetter Group Heard.

The National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures urged that the federal expense for the next fiscal year, starting July 1, be slashed 75 million dollars as a minimum. The plea was presented by George W. Rossetter, president of the national organization and also president of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Mr. Rossetter said it is imperative that governmental costs be cut as a prerequisite to a revival in business. The real objective of the national organization is to get federal expenses below three billion, in contrast with four billions or more of annual expenditures for the last decade.

The Rossetter group also represented the Sentinels of the Republic. In their formal declaration the Sentinels said:

"Necessary services are performed by the army and navy, the postoffice, treasury and state departments. Other services, largely of a socialistic or communistic tendency and providing desirable jobs to be filled by federal patronage, have been engrafted on the original structure by the addition of numerous departments, bureaus, boards, and commissions, whose activities are outside of the true scope of the federal government.

Point to Some Examples.

"State roads, vocational education, maternity care, the merchandising of wheat, cotton, wool, and other basic commodities, and the creation of the federal farm board are striking examples."

Still another plea for economy was made to the resolutions committee. This came from Samuel Hastings, president of the Midwest Manufacturers' association. He asked a plank in the platform which will "definitely and unequivocally commit the legislative, administrative, and executive representatives of the Republican party to a policy of drastic reduction in governmental expenditures in conformity with the impaired income of American taxpayers."

FARM LEADERS ASK CHANGES IN MARKETING ACT

Will Battle Repeal of Entire Measure.

Modification of the farm marketing act, rather than its repeal, was called for in the demands voiced by officials of two national farm organizations, the American Farm Bureau federation and National grange.

A plank of five parts was submitted by these farm spokesmen, seeking party pledges for the enactment of revised agricultural tariffs, amendment of the farm act to provide for "proper control" of crop surpluses, changing of monetary laws to make gold and silver responsive to commodity price levels, disposal of existing crop surpluses by congressional action, and liberalizing of the federal reserve and farm loan systems to meet distressed farm credits.

Paradoxically the farm demands for governmental elimination of crop surpluses and more liberal credits for farmers were accompanied by a plea for economy in government expense.

Turner Makes Protest.

Gov. Dan Turner of Iowa, given the floor as the farm groups were presenting their case, took issue with their demands. Despite his protests he was cut off from a dissertation on farm woes by the chairman. Turner insisted that midwest farmers "want a vigorous pronouncement regarding economics, particularly as relating to agriculture."

"Spokesmen for farmers came before this party in Kansas City four years ago with the prediction that if agriculture as the basic industry of this great country, was not properly recognized, neither labor nor industry could continue to prosper," declared Earl Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association. "The principles we stood for have not been given even serious consideration and tonight we stand before you with our prediction a reality."

Manufacturers Ask Repeal.

The National Association of Manufacturers submitted a plank demanding the repeal of the farm marketing act, as follows:

"We urge the abandonment of our hopeless experiment in the governmental control of agricultural prices, production and surplus. It is a failure here as it has been in every other nation. It has injured those it was intended to benefit, contributed to the demoralization of our markets and taken vast sums from the depleted income of the citizen in a futile contest with natural law."

Jarecki has been invited by the citizens' committee in charge of the entertainment of Republican delegates to present his play, "A Day at the Polls," in the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street, at 8:15 this evening. There will be twenty-three members in the cast and Judge Jarecki will direct the presentation. Delegates and visitors to the convention will be welcome. The play deals with election problems.

SENATE DEMANDS HOOVER SPECIFY NEW ECONOMIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—The senate today adopted without debate the resolution offered yesterday by Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, calling on the President to specify how and where additional savings were to be accomplished. Senator Robinson introduced the resolution in answer to the President's demand, last Saturday, that congress save 150 to 200 million dollars more.

SENATOR JOSEPH T. ROBINSON. [A. P. Photo.]

Shortly before the adoption of the resolution, the conference committee on the economy bill recessed until tomorrow, having come to a virtual agreement on the plan for enforced furloughs for federal employés, instead of the 10 per cent pay cut plan.

Predict Adoption of Furlough.

Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah] informed President Hoover that the furlough plan was sure of adoption.

It was announced by Senator Sam G. Bratton [Dem., N. M.], one of the senate conferees, that the senate had obtained new and more reliable estimates on the savings to be made in cutting the authorizations for construction not yet under contract. Senator Bratton believed that the total savings in the bill might now be estimated at 150 millions.

Debate Farm Relief Bill.

On the senate floor, debate continued on the McNary farm relief bill, with more senators joining the opposition to the bill's allotment plan.

The banking and currency committee voted out the Wagner bill, carrying 1½ billion dollars in Reconstruction Finance corporation loans, and 500 million dollars for federal construction, as a substitute for the Garner "pork barrel" measure. The committee also approved the home loan discount bill, after first defeating the proposal of Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], to have the discount machinery handled by the finance corporation instead of by a set of newly created home loan discount banks.

Cong. Pegler (That Fearless Solon) Smites Economy Hoof and Thigh, Also On The Hip!

BY CONGRESSMAN WESTBROOK PEGLER.

With a veritable morass of depression hovering over this beloved land of ours and millions of our citizens unemployed, I feel it my solemn duty as one of the few clear thinking public leaders who have not lost their head entirely in the present critical crisis to speak out with every jot and tittle at my command in opposition to the present craze for Economy which is ravishing this beloved land of ours. The cry is Economy, Economy and yet more Economy, as though Economy ever put a mechanic to work or built a noble edifice or conquered the trackless plains of the primeval wilderness which those who have gone before us with matchless courage bequeathed to us in confidence and faith, to what end, my friends? For Economy?

I have faith in the common sense of the plain American citizens of this grand old country of ours to reject the false and spurious shams of self-seeking interests, who, if they were to work their will in their craze for this fetish would economize the very lifeblood from the foundations at the expense of the ideals of liberty and freedom which every American holds sacred.

When the Flag Goes By.

Every true American's pulse beats a little faster when Old Glory goes marching by with tear dimmed eyes wherever they may be, whether it be in foreign climes, in Europe, Africa or Siberia, reminding them of home and their loved ones keeping the home fires burning. Home—that is a wonderful word. It means mother. It means good old dad. It means everything that the worth while American holds sacred, stripped of all bombast and pretense and reduced to the fundamental principles of patriotism, efficiency, courage, the grand old never-say-die American spirit and the indomitable will to go forward to victory for the glorious land of our birth.

I stand fast to beat back the festering tide of those who seek to hamstring the structure of our liberties. I call on all straight thinking Americans to join a finish fight and throttle this conspiracy hip and thigh. It is time to put an end to this contemptible campaign of destruction to destroy the dignity of that great deliberative body in which it is my honor and privilege to serve in a modest rôle as the chosen representative of the plain American folks. I refer, my friends, to the honorable United States congress, the victim of this foul campaign of ridicule."

Must Have Respect.

What are the facts, my friends?

How can congress retain the due respect of the great body of citizens of this, our bounteous homeland, if the members are reduced to a state bordering on pauperism for the false fetish of Economy? Have you any respect for a bum? Are we going to turn our house of congress, the source of our liberties and the safeguard of our heritage, into a veritable hangout for a lot of bums through reducing their pay? When Economy runs wildfire integrity goes out the window. A man in need will succumb to the foul blandishments of the corrupt tempter when an independent man will hurl them to the floor in the contempt which they so richly deserve.

Beware, my friends, of cheap labor which is poor labor. Beware of cheap congressmen because, when all is said and done, in the long run you only get as much as you pay for due to the inexorable law of supply and demand, and if you insist on cheap congressmen in the halls of your glorious heritage, you will get cheap laws.

Contented Congressmen.

The question is, do we want cheap laws in this country of ours or do we want absolutely grade A, first class from high class and contented congressmen? The answer, my friends, is in your lap, and I seem to feel in my heart what your answer will be, because I have confidence that nothing is too good for the real American people, whether it be radios, post offices, magnificent irrigation projects and dams or laws.

Again, they will seek to deceive you by clever distortion of the true facts regarding the relations of congressmen performing honest toil for the government. They cry about unemployment and they want to throw thousands of relations of congressmen out of work by wiping out their livelihood in one fell, ruthless swipe.

I am too good a patriot, I have too much sympathy for the plight of our unfortunate citizens who have no jobs to wish that any relative of mine should be thrown into competition with them. Never through any act of mine will I consciously take steps to deliberately overcrowd the ranks of the unemployed with my three daughters, or my wife's two sisters, or my own four brothers. If there is a job open somewhere in a factory or quarry, in an office or barber shop, I say let the unemployed have those jobs and do not turn out some 5,000 relations of congressmen from their government work to perhaps snatch those jobs from the voters.

You all know me. You all know that I have ever taken my stand absolutely one hundred per cent for American institutions at all times. I denounce in unequivocable terms every stealthy attempt to treacherously gnaw away the glorious traditions of George Washington, of Abraham Lincoln, and the great, glorious trust reposed in me through the solemn referendum of our priceless heritage in no uncertain language.

They will tell you to repeal prohibition, to wipe out the farm board, to not build any more postoffices, to reduce salaries of honest men working their brains to the very bone for the government, and why? For economy. To save money.

At Sea in a Wilderness.

The ship of state tosses in a wilderness of false logic and the great money interests are trying to intimidate congress into the cowardly course of running into the cyclone cellar of false economy.

The farm board has spent 200 million dollars, prohibition spends money by the tens of millions, thousands of our citizens would be put to work building hundreds of beautiful postoffices to adorn this glorious land of ours but for the cry of economy and yet we are faced with this conspiracy. My friends, when I arrived at this convention and heard this cry I thought my eyes deceived me.

How do you get prosperity? You get prosperity when you spend money, and it is the duty of our government to set the pace, not economy. I am for free silver, I am for free copper, I am for free tin, I am for free ten dollar bills for everybody and when those are all out call them in and print some more. We have thousands of unemployed printers and yet the traitors to our independence which our forefathers died for at Valley Forge would tell you to not build any government swimming pools for honest citizens who otherwise do not ever get to swim except in some insanitary surroundings inconsistent with the American standard of living, or save money by not printing any more money and keeping countless printers out of deserving employment.

And in the words of the glorious Abraham Lincoln whom we all revere and who I, in my modest way, strive to consistently emulate in thought and deed, it is up to you whether this heritage shall perish from the earth for economy.

POLICE SPEED UP TRAFFIC TO AND FROM STADIUM

Chicago traffic police were on the job yesterday and they ushered automobiles and taxicabs to and from the convention with a dispatch that was a contrast to the congestion and confusion of former large gatherings in the Chicago Stadium.

The stop and go signals were turned off on Warren and Washington boulevards near the Stadium, and alert policemen waved white gloves in directing the flow of vehicles. The usual cross traffic of heavy trucks was held back to give preference to the delegats, letting the boulevard operate with maximum efficiency.

Policemen on foot and on motorcycles kept the curbs clear of parkers in the vicinity of the Stadium. New parking lots took the place of the "Watch yer car, mister," racket usually operating there. In Warren boulevard in front of the Stadium a novel system of pavement painting kept cars in lanes.

COXEY ARRIVES TO DEMAND OHIO GROUP'S BACKING

Jacob S. Coxey, mayor of Massillon, O., leader of the famous "Coxey's" army of unemployed men to Washington, D. C., in 1894, arrived in Chicago yesterday to attend the Republican convention. His primary purpose in attending, he said, is to force the Ohio delegates to support him for the presidential nomination.

Coxey filed his name in the Ohio presidential preference primary last May 10 and led the field with 75,844 votes. With him when he arrived yesterday he carried a certified copy of the results of the primary issued by Clarence J. Brown, secretary of state of Ohio.

"I mean to take the matter up with the credentials committee of the convention immediately," Coxey said. "If I am refused the Ohio delegates' support I shall go before a federal judge and mandamus them to cast their votes for me."

"Such fine things as Idamae's European frocks are safe only in these flakes," says

Mrs. Paul Schulze, Jr.

Lucky little Idamae, with labels from all over Europe in her costly little frocks—dozens of them, crowded on a rod like a smart juvenile shop's display. —And guarded just like the costly fabrics in 4 out of 5 of Chicago's wealthy Gold Coast homes, with double-suds cleansings in pure American Family Flakes.

"This dress," said Mrs. Schulze, taking out an exquisite hand-made pink silk frock with blue embroidery all around the edges, "we bought in Vienna. And you see, it's just as fresh and bright as though it hadn't been tubbed at all.

"This one came from Czecho-Slovakia," holding up a quaint little frock of orchid crepe and rose-colored woolen embroidery. "And here's my favorite," an adorable little white organdie with glorified sunbonnet, piped in dazzling red; "we got it at Grande Maison de Blanc in Paris; and see, there isn't the slightest sign of the red running, and the organdie is just as crisp and white as new.

"That's why I wouldn't trust our fine things to any other soap but American Family Flakes. In fact, it's the only cleansing soap used in this house for more than eight years—even for hard cleaning, woodwork, bathtubs and enameled things. In every way, it's the most economical and satisfactory soap you can buy—and I buy it by the case."

What American Family Flakes double-suds does for costly imported fabrics, it does for shirts, silk stockings, blankets, draperies. It adds years to their wear and beauty. It gives double the suds for your money. It does all your dishwashing, laundering, cleaning, in double-quick time—yet keeps your hands always soft and smooth. Use Kirk's American Family Flakes and Soap throughout your household. Exclusively.

Mrs. Paul Schulze, Jr.

—wife of Paul Schulze Biscuit Company official—and little Miss Idamae, six-year-old charmer, with sky-blue eyes and corn-tassel-yellow hair. Mrs. Schulze is a Northwestern girl; spent many of her childhood years in Europe, and recently returned from a four months' trip abroad. And such treasures as she brought back! Frail hand-made lingerie, brilliant silks, fine table linen. "Launder them? Without a fear," declares Mrs. Schulze. "But only in American Family Flakes. It never changes colors. And it makes such wonderful suds that grease melts right off china; and it gives a lovely luster to all glassware."

The Flakes—double-sudsing—the only soap trusted with the costly laundry of 4 out of 5 Gold Coast women.

The Cake Soap—now much BIGGER—same price!

Same quality—double-sudsing. For ninety years used by more Chicago women than all other laundry soaps combined.

Dickinson Avoids Mention of Prohibition.

Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, temporary chairman of the Republican convention, delivered the party keynote address to the delegates at the opening session in the Stadium yesterday noon. In his speech Senator Dickinson omitted all reference to prohibition. He said in part:

"Perhaps it was with prophetic vision that the American people elected Herbert Hoover four years ago with the greatest popular and electoral college vote any President ever received. At any rate, he had scarcely taken the oath of his office before economy storm clouds had begun to cast their sinister shadow over the nations of the world.

"His first act prevented a financial panic. Invoking the powers of the federal reserve board, he prevented this catastrophe. Thus he cushioned the effects of the debacle in Wall street which followed the greatest period of stock speculation the world had ever known.

"With the knowledge that every major economic convulsion in the past had been attended by strikes, riots, bloodshed, and death, President Hoover's next concern was to maintain social order.

Recalls Industrial Pledges.

"To this end he summoned to the White House industrial leaders of the nation and obtained from them a promise to maintain existing wage scales as long as it was possible to do so. On the same day leaders of organized labor, sitting around the same conference table, gave their pledge that there would be no industrial wage disturbances.

"Had Herbert Hoover accomplished no more in this depression, he would have done more than all of the other Presidents had done in the fourteen major economic dislocations which have gone before. But our President planned a campaign to deal with the unprecedented situation in which the world found itself in the backwash of the greatest of wars. With financial panic averted, with industrial peace assured, the chief executive moved rapidly to mitigate unemployment distress.

Suffering Called Inevitable.

"However, no action of government or people could stay the march of the insidious enemy within our gates. Unemployment and suffering were inevitable. To relieve this to the fullest possible measure the President set up in Washington a national unemployment committee to coöperate with the states both in finding employment and in relieving the needy.

"There was a generous response from every state.

"Contrast this picture of a stable social order, the people united in aid to their less fortunate fellows, with the chaos in many countries abroad. There revolution followed revolution. Government after government fell. Battle and bloodshed became an almost every day occurrence.

Discusses Debt Moratorium.

"This was the foreign situation only a year ago. Drastic action was necessary if the international financial structure was to be preserved. Herbert Hoover took that action. He proposed and the other powers quickly agreed to a one year's moratorium on reparations and war debts. Germany was saved from a financial chaos that would have involved the entire world.

"With this catastrophe averted the President continued to wage the battle against depression on a hundred fronts in the United States. Before congress assembled last December, President Hoover prepared for it the most far-reaching rehabilitation and reconstruction program that has ever been designed by any leader in any country under any circumstance.

"Foremost in this plan was the creation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation with reserves of two and a half billions of dollars to furnish necessary credit otherwise unattainable.

"As Herbert Hoover poured out his tremendous energies and abilities upon the altar of public service and the welfare of all of the people, what of the Democratic opposition?

"For two long years they hampered the President at every turn. Through a highly subsidized press bureau, Democratic leaders, Democratic senators, and Democratic congressmen sought to distort his every word; to belittle his every effort at human and economic relief; to impugn his every motive; to frustrate his every move. Their orders were to 'smear Hoover.'

"Upon his shoulders the anvil chorus of Democracy placed the responsibility for every ill at home and abroad.

"As might have been expected, they overplayed their hand. With the nation threatened by its greatest economic crisis, people demanded that partisan politics be submerged in the general welfare. Having no program of their own, they naturally and wisely followed the President who alone had a workable program.

Ripsaw Into Other Party.

"But after they had assisted in partially translating this plan into law, our Democratic friends were no longer able to contain their hopes of victory within the sphere of the good of the nation. On the all essential proposition of balancing the budget, they elected to follow their own course. And with what result?

"The Democrats in the house of representatives flouted their own leadership; their tax bill was completely rewritten by the revolting Democratic majority; their economy measure was torn to shreds.

"Democratic sponsors call for undue inflation of the national currency. The safety of the country requires the maintenance of the gold standard. The value of the American dollar must be maintained throughout the world.

"Nor was this moribund issue the sum total of the products of the master minds of Democracy. They proposed billions in bond issues for unnecessary and unproductive public works, presumably on the theory that when your budget is unbalanced—when your outgo exceeds your income—you can squander yourself into prosperity.

Defends the Farm Board.

"The farm board has been the butt of much criticism, the greater part of which is unjust. We have heard much abuse of the board's operations in stabilization of cotton and wheat by its financing of coöperatives to purchase these commodities, but we have heard very little of the fact that by its entry into the market in February during the crop year of 1930 and again in November of the next crop year it stemmed the panic which had broken agricultural prices.

"The farm board held prices in each of these two crops above world levels to such a degree that the very moderate estimate of the amount realized by American farmers over and above what they would have realized otherwise is between $2,000,000,000 and $3,000,000,000.

"It matters little if the government loses $150,000,000 for the savings it made to homes of farmers throughout this whole land. It was throwing a regiment into the front of the battle to lose, but saved millions.

"Directly and indirectly, the federal government has, during the last three years, poured into the agricultural industry nearly one billion dollars. Grievous as his suffering may be, no farmer can deny the undeviating friendship of the Republican party.

Hits Democrats on Tariff.

"Since the beginning of the economic crisis the Democratic party has shown an utter lack of cohesion on every important issue, and on none has it been more divided than on the tariff. Its leaders have run the scale from free trade to the highest possible protection.

"With falling prices and depreciated currencies overseas, there stands just one bulwark for the salvation of our people. Without the rates of the Hawley-Smoot act of 1930, we would long since have been inundated by a flood of cheaply produced foreign products.

"Gentlemen of the opposition cried to high heaven against some of the rates that were being written into that bill. But while they thus wailed they were not only voluntary but eager partners in the writing of duties for their local and state industries which in many cases even surpassed what stanch protectionist Republicans believed were necessary.

Points to Senate Votes.

"In the senate alone 1,010 votes were cast by Democratic senators either for increases in rates or against decreases in rates. And the Democrats furnished the margin of votes that was necessary for final enactment of the measure!

"Even more recently—in congressional consideration of the budget balancing tax bill—we have had further illustrations of the avidity with which the Democrats pursue high tariff rates. They generously supported duties on copper, coal, oil and lumber. And all this after two years of the most bitter and venomous denunciation of the Hawley-Smoot act!

"To my mind there is no greater patriotism than the employment of every effort toward the restoration of normal conditions. And there can be no more dependable means to this end than the reflection of Herbert Hoover as President of the United States."

Dodging of Dry Law Deplored by Congressmen at Capital

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—As the White House debated the political expediency of giving a greater kick to the compromise prohibition plank, wet members of congress acted to bring new pressure on the resolutions committee to come out for repeal.

A. H. VANDENBERG. [A. P. Photo.]

Following a talk with a number of fellow Republicans, Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] telegraphed the resolutions committee that many Republican candidates would be defeated next November if it pussyfooted on prohibition. His telegram read:

"That every Republican candidate for office next November will be embarrassed and many will be defeated if you do not emphatically indorse repeal of the 18th amendment and modification of the costly and impossible Volstead law is the opinion of practically every member of congress whose duty compels his presence in Washington at this time."

Criticize Keynote Omissions.

The failure of Senator L. J. Dickinson, Republican keynoter, to mention prohibition aroused criticism in many congressional quarters. For the most part, senators and representatives had no comment to make. Some of the reactions follow:

Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.]—"The keynote speech is important, not because of what it said, but because of what it omitted."

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.]—"They have left the prohibition issue to the convention, which, of course, cannot ignore it."

Senator Millard Tydings [Dem., Md.]—"President Hoover and Senator Dickinson are fighting to avoid the important problems of the moment. The speech is a patchwork of the past and completely ignores the pressing present—particularly with respect to prohibition."

Senator Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.]—"I shall not study the speech because I don't believe it is good enough to enthuse me."

Representative Earl C. Michener [Mich.], acting Republican leader of the house—"The speech in the main deals fairly with the situation, but there may be some things with which I am not in harmony. It clearly leaves prohibition for the convention to settle."

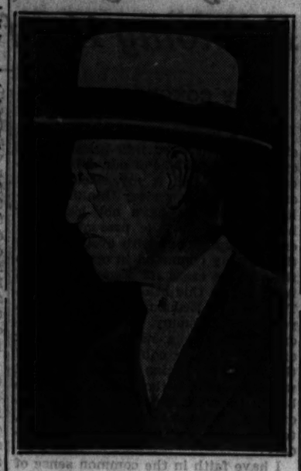

Acts Like Wet Blanket.

Representative Henry T. Rainey [Ill.], Democratic leader of the house—"The speech falls like a wet blanket on the Republican party. The attempt to eulogize President Hoover resulted in an enormous failure."

Representative John C. Schafer [Rep., Wis.]—"It was disappointing that the Republican keynoter ignored the paramount issue of the day—prohibition. Prohibition has been responsible greatly for unemployment, depression and treasury deficits."

Representative William B. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.]—"It is a pretty scattering statement of principles to give the country in a crisis like this."

BRAND NEW 100 HORSE POWER
1932 STRAIGHT EIGHT
AUBURN
15% LESS than the LOWEST priced car
PER POUND

Weight does mean safety, stamina, durability and comfort. Weight does not mean extravagance to operate. A car of correct weight can operate as economically as one that is built too light and flimsy. (Auburn has official test records for over 20 miles per gallon for Auburn Straight Eights. Thousands of Auburn owners all over the country are averaging 15 to 16 miles per gallon in their every day driving.) Weight means strength, and ability to stand up and endure, thus prolonging the life and service of the car and protecting your investment. The highest priced cars are always the heaviest—think that over when comparing Auburn's new slashed prices. Maybe you'll hear critics of Auburn's new merchandising program. We have. Some say: "it can't be done"—"it is a clean up sale"—"the cars are old models"—etc. None of these are true. Auburn has again dared to be different; dared to offer a sufficient inducement to cause people to buy; dared to slash prices in order to give thousands jobs. Too good to be true? Thousands already know it is true. Auburn factories are rapidly approaching full capacity to meet the demand. The shrewd American public recognizes Auburn's values. Sales are 1500 more cars for the first 5 days of this program in June than for the entire 31 days of May. Come and see for yourself. Every car is brand new. We repeat—this is not a "sale" of obsolete merchandise, but Auburn's new basis for doing business in order to give men jobs and give you bargains.

31 BALLOTS FAIL TO DECIDE STATE COMMITTEE FIGHT

Smith Within One Vote of Election on 28th.

BY PARKE BROWN.

At the end of a thirty-first ballot, taken at 5:20 p. m., with four candidates still deadlocked, further voting on committeeman was delayed until this morning. On the last ballot Frank L. Smith led with 28 votes and Gov. Emmerson was second with 24½. Roy O. West, present national committeeman, held 6½ votes and George F. Harding continued to hold the one vote he has had from the start.

Smith came within an aee of being chosen on the twenty-eighth ballot when he polled 30 votes. The total needed for election is 31.

On one question alone the delegates seemed to agree with some unanimity. That was prohibition. On motion of Representative Oscar De Priest, the delegation instructed Garrett Kinney of Peoria, member of the convention committee on resolutions, to "work to the best of ability" to get a wet plank in the national platform exactly like the one in the Republican state platform. That plank calls for repeal of the 18th amendment and, pending that, the changing of the Volstead act to permit the sale of wine and beer.

Former Senator Deneen, who is backing Committeeman West, sought to have substituted for the state prohibition plank one "favored by the national administration." The Deneen motion was beaten, 16½ to 44, and the De Priest motion carried by a viva voce vote.

Emmerson Votes for Repeal.

Many delegates chuckled aloud during this tilt when Gov. Emmerson, the man who vetoed the state prohibition repealer last year, voted against the Deneen substitute motion and thereby went on record for national repeal. The man he backed for governor, Omer N. Custer of Galesburg, seconded the Deneen proposal and voted for it.

Women leaders in the fight against prohibition, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell of the Women's National Organization for Prohibition Reform, were given much of the credit for the action. As a result of their quiet but effective work among the delegates, Congressman De Priest presented his motion as soon as the second meeting of the delegates was called to order. His only argument was that the delegation should be in harmony with the action of the state convention.

"There is a conscientious effort being made," said Senator Deneen in his plea to indorse whatever plank is favored by President Hoover, "to reconcile the various views on this question.

"It would be a mistake on our part to start out against the President of the United States."

Unanimous Support.

"The state plank," replied Cornelius J. Doyle of Springfield, former state chairman who presided at the state convention on May 27, "was adopted by the resolutions committee without a dissenting vote.

"The platform containing it was read to one of the largest Republican conventions ever held in this state and was adopted unanimously."

"It wasn't unanimous," said some one in the delegation.

"The chair so ruled," replied Doyle, "because he heard no opposing votes."

The debate also emphasized the fact that Illinois has shown on referendum vote that it favors repeal.

The 16½ votes for the Hoover plank came from eighteen delegates, three of them being delegates at large with a half vote each.

The 18 were: Judge Daniel P. Trude, Chicago; Hoyt King, Wilmette; Gen. Abel Davis, Glencoe; Frank T. Moran, Belvidere; Harry H. Cleaveland, Rock Island; Frank M. Lay, Kewanee; Chester R. Denson, Minonk; Ernest M. Harshbarger, Urbana; Representative Homer J. Tice, Greenview; Stuart E. Pierson, Carrollton; Senator Andrew S. Cuthbertson, Bunker Hill; Omer J. McMackin, Salem; Andy Hall, Mount Vernon; James A. Watson, Elizabethtown; C. S. Miller, Mound City; Dana P. Munn, Sterling; Charles S. Deneen, Chicago, and Omer N. Custer, Galesburg.

Kinney passed his vote accounting for the missing half vote. Pierson, Cleaveland, and Hall are members of Gov. Emmerson's cabinet.

A first class row developed among the opposing state factions in a session held at the Stevens hotel before the national convention was opened. The trouble developed over the election of the state's members on the convention committees and a temporary chairman for the delegation.

Fail to Beat Candidate.

The strategy consisted of the presentation of an Emmerson-Deneen slate for those five places, followed by efforts of the followers of former Gov. Len Small to smash the slate. They succeeded in one spot. Len Small, governorship nominee, replaced Gen. Abel Davis, the slate candidate for temporary chairman of the delegation.

But a similar effort to beat the slate candidate for the resolutions committee, Kinney, who is state director of finance, the opposition candidate being a former mayor of Chicago, was unsuccessful.

While the Deneen-West people refused to admit it, there were assertions around the edges of the afternoon meeting that this group will hold fast throughout the convention, preventing any election of a national committee member. In such an event the Illinois representative would be chosen by the new national committeemen from the other states.

Secret huddles on upper floors of the hotel got the morning meeting away to a delayed start and after half an hour's waiting for Abel Davis, chairman of the caucus, the Small-Smith people took things into their own hands and placed Congressman W. E. Hull of Peoria in the chair. And the absence of the Emmerson-Deneen people also led to the reversal of Monday's decision to exclude the press, and the newspaper men were admitted. The motion was made by Delegate Richard Prendergast of Chicago.

In a few moments Gen. Davis appeared and presided during the one test roll call on the national committeeship, the 25th. Thirty-one votes are needed for election and the vote showed there had been no change over night. Smith received 27½ votes, Emmerson, 24; West, 6½, and George F. Harding, Chicago, the one ever loyal vote of his cousin, Everett Hardin of Monmouth.

Deneen Makes Appeal.

With the deadlock as tight as ever, Homer K. Galpin, former Cook county chairman, supporting Emmerson, moved the election of the slate for other offices agreed upon in an earlier Emmerson-Deneen conference. This listed Gen. Davis for temporary chairman of the delegation, Kinney for the resolutions committee, George F. Barrett of Chicago for the rules committee, President W. R. James of the west park board for the committee on permanent organization, and W. J. Parrett, Danville newspaper editor, for the committee on credentials.

Congressman Hull raised a point of order that the election of a national committeeman must come first. Chairman Davis overruled him. Hull appealed from the decision of the chair and on a roll call lost by 33 to 24.

The next move of the opposition to the Emmerson-Deneen slate was a motion to vote separately on the five places covered by Galpin's motion. During this debate Smith protested against the plan to deprive Small and the winners in the primary of all voice in naming the committee members.

Motion Is Defeated.

On the roll call the motion to split up the Galpin slate was defeated 27½ to 30½ and at this point the former mayor of Chicago put on his hat and started to leave the room.

But he hesitated at the door and remained when he heard Werner W. Schroeder, a Small protege, move to substitute the name of that same former mayor for the name of Kinney on the slate for the resolutions committee. That substitution was defeated 25½ to 33½.

Then Congressman De Priest moved to substitute the name of Len Small for that of Abel Davis, the Emmerson-Deneen candidate. That motion carried 30 to 26 and the former mayor took off his hat and returned to his chair in the front of the room.

BAR GIVES SONS OF WILD JACKASS A 'CONVENTION'

Stages a Burlesque at Annual Party.

If Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa had been near 160 North La Salle street last night he might have heard the thunderous acclamation that greeted the nomination of a personage of somewhat similar name for the presidency of the United States.

This fellow who received the applause was Senator-Defeat Smith W. Brokenheart of Mlownway, alias Attorney Clifford Roe whenever appearing in any court of the land. And the rump convention that acclaimed his presence was the National Political Stock show sponsored by the Chicago Bar association in conjunction with the Sons of the Wild Jackass.

200 Attorneys See Burlesque.

Some two hundred attorneys, with a sprinkling of Portias, greeted heartily the takeoff on any (present company excepted) political convention. The burlesque was provided by the committee on entertainment at the annual "fun" dinner of the lawyers' group.

Ernest Palmer, keynoter of bray, let many "dancing, prancing politicians of every kind and hue" be placed in nomination. There was, for instance, Alleiula Smith of Ocean county, Hooey Longshort of Flannelville, Garnerts, a Texas steer, and Alfalfa Bill Hay, all from the barn of Attorney Palmer, who also was "keeper of the jackass stables."

"I nominate myself," bellowed Senator-Defeat Brokenheart, flinging wide his arms and shaking his mane. "Think of my qualifications: I'm a self-made man and a self-made man never leaves out a working part."

As to Hooey Longshort.

In introducing Attorney Cranston C. Spray, Keynoter Palmer said of the former's candidate, Hooey Longshort: He's very temperamental; 95 per cent temper and 5 per cent mental." After that Lawyer Spray admitted that his candidate had collapsed in the elevator since some one had pressed too close with a lighted cigar.

"Search your memories," challenged Attorney Walter S. Underwood as he brought out Candidate Garnerts. "Many of you played postoffice as children, and that's all there is in the Garnerts bill, or Nerts bill, as some call it."

Megan Is Reelected.

At the business meeting that followed announcement was made of the reelection of Charles P. Megan as president of the association. It was only the fourth time in 57 years that a president has been reelected, the usual course being to alternate Republicans and Democrats in the office.

Walter H. Eckert and John D. Black were reelected first and second vice presidents, respectively; William Beye was elected treasurer and Erwin W. Roemer, secretary.

PARK TO FILL IN STAGNANT POOLS ON NORTH SHORE

The Lincoln park commissioners voted to resume filling in of land from Montrose avenue to Foster avenue, at a special meeting yesterday afternoon. Completion of the project will cost approximately $1,000,000.

The fill in started 5 years ago but was halted early this spring because of the shortage of funds. Pools held in by the breakwater became stagnant and Warren Wright, president of the board, told the commissioners that many complaints have been received from property owners of the odors.

Ten thousand pounds of lime were dumped into the most offensive "hole" formed by the breakwater at Montrose avenue this week and the odor was lessened somewhat. Sand will be pumped into this area, covering about an acre, within the next few days. Two million yards of fill are needed to complete the project.

PARTY MERGES POLITICAL AND SOCIAL WORLDS

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Politics and the social world merged happily last night in a huge and colorful function at the Stevens hotel. Engineered by the Woman's National Republican club as a cordial gesture in the current G. O. P. drama, it was dominated by the men, decorated by the women, and so effectively wiped out factional lines that Gov. Emmerson and his predecessor, in close proximity at the speakers' table, beamed across the cantaloupe and the water goblets at the 1,300 guests.

Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, chosen to make the one and only address of the evening despite the row of distinguished officials and citizens flanking him at either elbow, made the most of the opportunity to laurel the brow of President Hoover on the eve of his renomination; to eulogise his administration, and to indorse his candidacy.

Presented by Mrs. Baur.

He himself was presented to the throng by Mrs. Bertha Baur, who came to the party smiling over her reelection as national committeewoman from Illinois.

The tall young cabinet member from Oklahoma had prepared a formal address but early in his remarks gave notice that he was deserting his "gospel according to St. Patrick" for an extemporaneous address. Nevertheless he covered about the same salient points, not omitting his gallant verbal bow to the feminine contingent, which elicited the loudest and longest burst of applause.

"I want to speak especially to the women," he declared. "When you women voted Herbert Hoover into office he promised you a clean government. I want to ask you tonight if he hasn't fulfilled that pledge. I want to ask our most vicious critic if there has been a single taint of fraud in this administration. The answer is no."

Blames Congress for Slump.

His downright and forthright declaration for the chief executive brought not only a storm of handclapping but a chorus of soprano cheers echoing from beneath every sttate banner girdling the balcony railing about the ballroom. He had to pause and wait for it to subside. It began again, swelled by the masculine element, when he pitched his voice several notes higher and declaimed.

"This depression in the United States has been prolonged because of the inability or the lack of desire of congress to pass the President's entire reconstruction program."

Rebukes Wet Forces.

Early in his address Secretary Hurley disposed of the avalanche of chatter about a prohibition repeal plank in the Republican platform, with a rebuke to the damp forces in this wise:

"The Republican party during its long life always has had the courage to face every issue fairly and squarely, without intent to deceive and without subterfuge. But I say to you that we have a much greater problem facing the American people tonight than prohibition, and I have been surprised to find that the greatest amount of talk at this convention has been about liquor.

"Every war," he continued, "has been followed by a period of economic distress and dislocation; the world war brought an especially severe economic dislocation. From the very beginning President Hoover has so shaped his course that nothing he has done would tend to disrupt that sound economic structure of our country which needs only infusion of new credit and life to reconstruct itself.

"Our opponents have said that the trouble with the Reconstruction Finance corporation is that it hasn't reached the little fellow. The fact is that seventy per cent of the loans made by the R. F. C. have gone into towns of less than 5,000.

"President Hoover, despite conditions on the treasury, fought for the maintenance of the American standard of living. He conciliated capital and labor. He asked the one not to cut down on jobs, and the other not to strike. He sponsored a building program by state and local governments, as a result of which Illinois will realize soon the dream of years—9,000 miles of inland waterway completed in 1933 between the great lakes and the Mississippi.

"As for the tariff, your own Illinois senator said of it 'You cannot and we dare not lower it.' To lower it would mean flooding our markets with all the cheap foodstuffs of Europe, thus laying another burden on the farmer.

"President Hoover is the only man who has presented to any congress in the world a complete workable plan for the purpose of breaking the depression."

And at the last, his prosperous and handsome audience, having clapped intermittently all during his address, stood up and clapped a great deal longer and harder.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Rochelle, Ill., June 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. W. P. Landon, 60, succumbed to a heart attack last night following a few minutes' illness.

IOWA G. O. P. REVOLTS AGAINST CURTIS AND BONE DRY PROPAGANDA

Iowa's delegation to the convention is in revolt against bone dry propaganda and against the renomination of Vice President Curtis. The Hawkeyes want a younger man to run with Hoover. They also want a prohibition repeal plank, or at least a state rights plank on liquor control.

HANFORD MAC NIDER.

The Iowa Republicans have a favorite son as a potentional candidate for the vice presidency—Hanford MacNider of Mason City, at present United States minister to Canada and a former national commander of the American Legion.

Six years ago when the Second division—MacNider outfit—held its memorable reunion at the La Salle hotel, friends of the present diplomat were booming him as presidential timber in 1932. This didn't get far as the years went along, but they want him in second place on the ticket this year if the wind blows right.

If not MacNider, then either Theodore Roosevelt, governor general of the Philippines, or Charles Gates Dawes would be satisfactory, it is believed. In fact, the delegation was instructed for Dawes at its Morrison hotel caucus Monday night, but many of the delegates fear that the fiery Evanstonian will refuse to run.

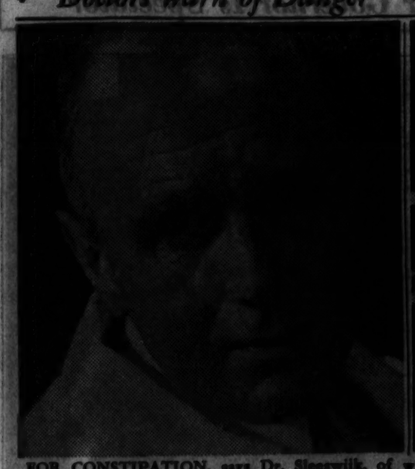

When the wet and dry question comes to the floor of the convention the Iowans are prepared to present a majority for prohibition reform.

Canada to Exile Nudists to Island in the Pacific

VICTORIA, B. C., June 14.—Several hundred Doukhobor nudists imprisoned in Okalla jail will be transferred to a compound situated on Darcy island, near here. The island is 200 acres in extent. Huts are in the course of erection for the prisoners, who are serving three year terms. They will support themselves by cultivating vegetable gardens. All Doukhobors are vegetarians.

FOR CONSTIPATION, says Dr. Sleeswijk, of Holland, "fresh yeast can be . . . successfully used."

Look INSIDE your BODY!

Health's in serious danger when X-rays show Intestinal Fatigue

If you're feeling "run-down," generally out of order—tired—irritable . . . if you have a poor appetite, frequens bad breath, a coated tongue—you can be fairly certain that your intestines are not functioning properly . . . that poisons due to constipation are seeping into your blood!

Dr. Sleeswijk, noted medical authority of Delft, Holland, states:

"Eating fresh yeast means better health . . . It can be relied upon to bring about easy, regular eliminations. Its action on the bowels is . . . strengthening, just the reverse of . . . drugs and laxatives."

Eaten daily, Fleischmann's Yeast moistens and softens the excess food waste in your system, as it "tones" and stimulates the muscular reactions that expel it regularly. Normal elimination is fostered, better digestion restored.

It's almost a gymnastic trick talk "value."

"How much?" has been the question of clothes buyers so long that we seldom hear "How good?" As if suits were made of dollars instead of cloth, and buttonholes were made for pennies!

Value and style survive, however, and we put them into every Rogers Peet suit we make. Our fabrics are still all-wool—the best we can buy from domestic and foreign mills. And every suit is hand-tailored. As for style, our added newer models have an appeal for the young men of any age.

Of course we have revised prices—cut $10, $15 and $20 from our current season's suits—bringing them down to a range of $30 to $55.

A Timely Suggestion to the MOTORING PUBLIC

FOR the past six years, tires have been steadily dropping in price at periodic intervals.

No one familiar with general economic conditions and production costs could consistently recommend buying tires in advance of current needs as being desirable.

But now we have reached the point where crude rubber has declined from $1.20 a pound in 1925—an artificially high price—to less than 3c a pound, which is far less than it costs to produce.

Cotton, too, has dropped from more than 20c a pound to around 5c a pound, which also is less than its cost of production.

These—rubber and cotton—are the two main materials entering into the construction of pneumatic tires.

A STEADY reduction in tire prices has been brought about almost entirely by the drastic decline in price of these two basic raw materials.

So in buying your tires now you get the benefit of these two items at less than cost of production, and the benefit also of price reductions made to give every possible inducement to stimulate buying for the purpose of keeping labor in the tire factories employed.

It must be evident, therefore, that tire prices have reached bottom and that you can wisely and profitably replace such tires as are worn to a point where they will soon become unsafe, and that also you can anticipate your future requirements to some extent and know you are making a good investment.

With the need of promoting employment wherever possible, and the imminence of a substantial revenue tax on tires, I believe that you will be benefiting yourselves and the country at large by making your tire purchases now.

WOMEN PLEDGE PARTY LOYALTY AT G. O. P. TEA

Plea for Curtis Is Read in Dolly Gann's Talk.

Dolly Gann took time out yesterday from her political conferences in behalf of her brother's renomination for the Vice Presidency to go to the Republican women's tea party at the Congress hotel. In a dozen brief, businesslike sentences she urged the women to support Herbert Hoover; declared they had "never for a moment lost faith in Herbert Hoover."

But between each sentence was an unspoken plea for Brother Charles Curtis.

As soon as she had finished, the reporters surrounded her, to ask why she hadn't mentioned Curtis' name out loud.

"Everybody knows how I feel about him," she explained.

Expects Brother to Win.

Questioned further about the move to oust Curtis, she said:

"Just wait a short time and it'll be over. We'll win it."

That fugitive gossip that Alice Roosevelt Longworth, her old time opponent of the dining table, had had a hand in this political round table mixup, Mrs. Gann dismissed with a wave of her hand and the remark:

"Mrs. Longworth takes care of her own affairs. I have nothing to say about that."

Nor had she anything to say about any possible telephone conversations that she might have had during the day with President Hoover in Washington, in an effort to fight her brother's battles.

Women Loyal to Hoover.

Before Mrs. Gann came to the party Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Kentucky, vice chairman of the Republican national committee and hostess for the tea, introduced the various committeewomen, each of whom vowed loyalty to President Hoover and predicted November success for the G. O. P.

Mrs. Frank R. Mann, a Hoover Democrat, who used to be Democratic committeewoman from West Virginia, got a big hand when she declared that she had been "so happy" in the Republican party and didn't have a single regret.

Mrs. William N. Doak, wife of the secretary of labor, made her maiden speech, a short affair, full of pleasantness and party regularity. Mrs. Fred W. Upham and Mrs. Arthur W. Meeker brought greetings from Chicago.

Dinner for Visitors Tonight.

The Chicago Woman's club will give a dinner to the G. O. P. visitors tonight. Former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas will be the principal speaker at the dinner at the clubhouse, 72 East 11th street, concluding the open house program for the day.

Mrs. Frederick D. Porter of Ravinia, acting president, will receive the guests with Mrs. William Cuthbertson Sr., chairman of the summer activities committee, which is sponsoring the affair. Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, formerly collector of internal revenue and a prominent Republican, will be toastmistress.

Among those who have accepted invitations are Mrs. Ellis Yost, head of women's activities for the party; Mrs. Worthington Scranton of Scranton, Pa., delegate at large; William Allen White, Kansas editor; Ray Benjamin, President Hoover's adviser; Mrs. Manley Fosseen, committeewoman from Minnesota, and Mrs. Emma L. Scofield, committeewoman from Massachusetts.

Chicagoans on List.

Chicagoans and club members who have made reservations for the event include Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Maurice L. Rothschild, Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell, Judge Mary Bartelme, Judge and Mrs. Edmund K. Jarecki, Mrs. Charles S. Deneen, Mrs. Marvin A. Farr, Mrs. Samuel Shirk, Judge and Mrs. John P. McGoorty, and Mrs. Reinecke.

Visiting Republican women were guests yesterday afternoon at two teas, one at the Hamilton club, where Mrs. Frank J. Conrad and her committee entertained, and one at the new headquarters of the Illinois League of Women Voters, at 225 North Michigan avenue.

Robber Accidentally Kills Himself When Gun Jams

Hillman, Mich., June 14.—(AP)—A man identified as Robert Turner, 26, of Flint, accidentally shot and killed himself early today while attempting to hold up a gasoline station here. A man and two women were arrested. James Keegan, operator of the filling station, said the robber fired one charge from a sawed off shotgun, inflicting a flesh wound in Keegan's side, then attempted to fire again, but the gun jammed. As the robber attempted to repair it, a charge struck him in the abdomen.

IT'S GAY, G. O. P. CONVENTION, BUT LACKS A THRILL

Cousin Eve Hopes for More Drama Today.

BY COUSIN EVE.

The Stadium is the snappiest building really I've ever been in, and it did look magnificent yesterday morning at the opening of the Republican convention, with hundreds and hundreds of gay red seats, and a great multitude of American flags pendant from the ceiling. Cool air, and constant music from the best of bands kept the spirits of everybody from being subnormal.

An awfully big place, one had to use a bird glass to see the distinguished politicians, arriving with their ladies, some of them, too, rather rare birds. Early in the session came Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gann, brother-in-law and sister of Vice President Curtis, boxing themselves in front and facing the speaker. There is due to be a great struggle to displace the Vice President, who is dry as dust.

Wet Group Alongside.

Next door to the Ganns were a party of active wets, Mrs. Stanley Field, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mayor Cermak, Robert F. Carr, Miss Florence Carr, Mrs. Orville Babcock, also Silas Strawn. Mrs. Field was wearing brown and white print, which was so prevalent as to be almost a uniform.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth wore the same brown and white pattern with a white hat, and was the objective of many good looking gents from effete eastern cities, who came to pay their respects.

Among the delegates one picked at a glance the tall, distinguished figure of Mrs. Walter Wolf. In a dashing black and red print, with white lightnings zagging all over it and a silk turban of the same colors, she sat, an Illinois alternate, while the Illinois delegation was engaging in a death struggle over at the Stevens.

Mrs. Hert Arrives Early.

Mrs. Alvin Hert, vice president of the national committee, arrived early in that elevated section behind the temporary chairman, each seat reserved with the names of the committee members. Her black and white print silk had loose cuffs of black fur. Mrs. R. R. McCormick and Mrs. Arthur Small also arrived early, as did Mrs. Silas Strawn, whose box was boiling over with visitors. In it were Mrs. Walter Borden in brown and white print, Mrs. James Cathcart, Mrs. Charles Dempster and Mrs. Frank Hixon.

Mrs. R. T. McKeever had Baron Vezenegh, Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Orville Taylor, and Mrs. Freeman Hinckley. Mrs. Barrett Wendell was sitting well to the fore, and Mrs. Edward F. Carry, Mr. and Mrs. George Dulany and Fletcher Durbin were on hand.

There was prayer and much dirge-like singing from a choir of black-coated men who looked vastly like solemn undertakers. Again and again they croaked their sorrowful chants. And ever and anon one heard of the cardinal virtues of loyalty, of stick-to-the-partyism.

Out for Some Exercise.

At this juncture one really had to go out and take a bit of exercise. In the lower corridor it was lots of fun. First person we met was Sidney Strotz, who definitely proclaimed he was "a hard boiled egg." Anyway, he runs the Stadium well. Then along came that slender beauty, Mrs. Paul Gardner, the former Mrs. Elliott Bacon, a Boston girl, and also Mrs. Vaughn Spaulding and Mrs. Wolf.

Sped by that handsome, young, tallest of politicians, Henry Cabot Lodge III., then Theodore W. Robinson, Charles H. Morse, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul FitzSimons of Newport. She, a very chic blonde, the former Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt.

Mrs. William Clow was there, Miss Sarver, Mrs. Donald Douglas. Also the beautiful brunette, Mrs. Norman Whitehouse of New York. One glimpsed Katherine Linn and, all of a sudden, that great beau, secretary of the national committee, George De Benneville Keim.

Alas for All the Words!

I couldn't hear one word Mr. Keim was saying when he spoke from the platform, alas! Only the chaplain's prayers seemed to get across, and judging from the hundreds of empty red seats the Republicans will need them. Prayers, I mean.

However, I wouldn't call the convention a complete flop, not by any means. The opening was very tame. There was no element of suspense, no love interest, so to speak. But there was underlying it all a sense of drama, a conflict of wills which probably will flame out today around about the witching hour of 4 o'clock. Then a large number of persons who are all set for action will appear with the slippery plank for the new Republican platform. At that moment, one predicts, every seat in the Stadium will have a holder.

NOTES OF THE OPENING DAY OF G. O. P. CONVENTION

There was no contest for the honor of the best dressed man of the convention when Col. Lafayette B. Gleason of New York, convention secretary, strode in wearing a gray ensemble from shoes to a ribbon for his glasses. The colonel's tailor would have melted at the ovation.

Street cleaners, hitherto as inconspicuous as mailman, blossomed out with red carnations in their lapels as they swabbed the paper left in the wake of the Crusaders' auto parade.

Chairman Simeon D. Fess of the national committee rapped the gold mounted gavel 16 times in the call to order. The Ohioan is an exponent of the operatic type of gavel play, using the rhythmical beat of the "Anvil Chorus" from "Il Trovatore," while Temporary Chairman Dickinson follows the auctioneer's school of woodpecker hammering.

The first illness among conventioneers was that of Mrs. Susanne S. Farnam, an alternate from Connecticut, who was taken to St. Luke's hospital suffering from a throat infection. She will hear the convention by radio.

Two buses, carrying delegates from Maine and New Hampshire, were driven by mistake to the society entrance. The delegates consulted for a moment and at length marched in boldly, aping the grand manner of their neighbors.

Will H. Hayes, movie czar, from a vantage seat in the Indiana delegation, exchanged nods with Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills in the nearby New York delegation.

A march of communists on the Stadium halted against a line of police at Honore street. The 300 reds shifted on their feet listening to a radio broadcast from a nearby store and returned to the harangues of their own speakers at the close of the session.

The branch post office in the Stadium opened with 4,600 pieces of mail to deliver to those attending the convention. Philatelists increased the work of Senior Clerk Michael Finnerty by seeking souvenirs.

William M. Butler of Boston, manager of the Coolidge campaign in 1924, and former national committee chairman, sat on the platform viewing the proceedings with the air of an actor watching a rival as Hamlet. He left during the keynote speech. Other seats of honor of former chairmen which were vacant were those of Hubert Work, John T. Adams and W. R. Wilcox.

Former Senator Wadsworth of New York, who has a box among the vice presidential candidates, talked of Washington days with Mrs. Charles S. Deneen.

J. Tom Taylor, delegate at large from Tennessee, approached a clerk in the Morrison hotel with, "I want my room moved down a mile or so. I might walk in my sleep." Taylor, who thinks nothing of the cliffs of the Cumberland mountains, was shifted from the 40th to the 27th floor.

Former Gov. Henry Allen of Kansas was one of the handshakers in the Congress hotel during the committee meetings.

One of the women wet workers approached the California delegation with a "vote wet" badge. "Hardly the thing for Mabel Walker Willebrandt," said Mrs. Willebrandt, who is one of the delegation members.

Delegates are keeping posted on current affairs in their home towns. News dealers reported a 25 per cent increase in the sale of out of town papers.

WOMEN UNITE IN PARADE FOR PEACE PLANK

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Relegating the prohibition issue to the back seat temporarily, women wets and women drys climbed into their automobiles yesterday and staged a parade to attract attention to the demand for peace planks in the platforms of both major political parties.

MISS JANE ADDAMS. [Acme Photo.]

The "peace plank" parade formed at Jackson boulevard and the Outer drive and proceeded west through the loop with horns screeching. After circling the Stadium the paraders turned into Paulina street, where they disbanded.

Miss Addams Leads Parade.

Miss Jane Addams of Hull house, recent co-winner of the Nobel peace prize, led the paraders. Later in the afternoon she presented before the resolutions committee of the Republican convention peace planks prepared by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, calling for membership in the world court; for an agreement to consult with other governments in case of violation of the Kellogg pact, and for legislation to make possible control of traffic in arms as a necessary part of the outlawry of war.

As the parade was forming, Miss Jeanette Rankin, first congresswoman from Montana and chairman of the parade, hastened to explain that the peace plank parade was not formed of members of the women's league alone, but of "the unorganized women" from churches and clubs everywhere and represents "unorganized public opinion regarding war."

For an hour before the parade moved off at 12 o'clock women and college students, members of the Youth Peace movement, decorated the growing line of motor cars, under the direction of the parade marshal, Miss Emma Wold, Washington, D. C.

Balloons in Demand.

Balloon men did a land office business selling bright balloons upon which had been stamped "Peace, no more war." Bunting and crêpe paper had been added to lend a festive air, while placards in the motor car windows screamed: "Stop war, cooperate," or "No more war, arbitrate."

Miss Addams, escorted by Greeter Gaw, rode at the head of the procession, followed by a load of Hull house youngsters bearing silken banners declaring, "For our sake, peace."

Among the "unofficial" delegations were those from the National Council of Jewish Women, Lorimer Baptist church, Chicago; Church of the Brethren, National Council for the Prevention of War, Federated Council of Church Women, Federation of Protestant Churches of Hammond, Ind.; Commission on Industrial Justice and Good Will of the Brooklyn Federation of Churches, and Cincinnati Peace league.

A sturdy annex to the parade was a group of college and university students and graduates from Columbia, Colgate, Cornell, Yale, Northwestern, University of Chicago, University of Cincinnati, Oregon Normal, and the University of Iowa. Among them were Tom Marshall, Yale graduate, recently returned from a cruise around the world on a sixty foot sailboat, who was busy selling parade banners; Paul Harris III., who hitch-hiked here from Louisville for the parade, and Ed Huntington of Monmouth, Ore., who rode in on a freight train.

Extortion Victim Fails to Appear; Arrest Ordered

Judge Francis B. Allegretti yesterday issued a forthwith subpoena for George J. Zemans, alleged bookmaker, who failed to appear in the Felony court as complaining witness against four men charged with attempted extortion and carrying concealed weapons. The defendants are John Ryan, 27 years old; John Scanlon, 29; John Counihan, 38, and Daniel O'Leary, 25. They were arrested on May 21 at Harrison and Dearborn streets, where they held Zemans prisoner. Passing policemen attracted by the noisy argument made the arrest. Zemans said that the men had demanded $500 and 20 per cent of his monthly earnings.

DOC TILTON'S CASE DUE TO GO TO JURY TODAY

Dr. Max Cutler appeared yesterday as the final witness against Old Doc Lester Tilton, on trial with two others in the Criminal court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort on charges of conspiracy to violate the medical practice act. Closing arguments will be heard today and the case is expected to go to the jury this afternoon.

Dr. Cutler told the jury the results of experiments made on animals with the salve used by Tilton as a remedy for cancer. The salve applied to a normal guinea pig burned its side, the doctor said. Placed on a rabbit, the salve ate through the skin in three days, Dr. Cutler said. He testified that it is impossible to diagnose cancer without a microscopic examination of cells. Witnesses had told previously of Tilton's method of diagnosing cases by application of the salve.

YOUTH HELD AS BURGLAR.

William Dickson, 18 years old, 6328 Eggleston avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bond of $6,000 by Judge J. William Brooks on charges of burglary of three gasoline filling stations.

Dr. Austin A. Hayden, prominent eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, became president-elect of the Chicago Medical society yesterday in an uncontested election in which fewer than 3,000 ballots were cast. Dr. Charles H. Phifer was reelected secretary of the society. Dr. John R. Harger will retire as president at the annual dinner tonight, in the Medical and Dental Arts club, and Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer will be installed as president. Victor Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, will speak at the dinner.

N. Y. Legion Post Opposing Bonus Reported Suspended

New York, June 14.—(AP)—The World-Telegram said today that the Williard Straight post of the American Legion has been suspended for opposing the Legion's bonus lobby activities in Washington. Several months ago the post sent a telegram to National Commander Henry L. Stevens demanding discontinuance of "all attempts" to "coerce congress." Maurice Stamber, New York state adjutant, refused to confirm or deny the reported suspension.

SEAT HOOVER'S DELEGATES FROM SOUTH CAROLINA

Tolbert Ousted, Reversing National Committee.

National Committeeman Joseph W. [Tiless Joe] Tolbert and his delegation from South Carolina were unseated last night by the credentials committee of the Republican convention. The committee's action was a reversal of the decision last week of the national committee and was taken in response to pleas to "back President Hoover in his fight to clean up South Carolina."

J. C. Hambright and his delegation were seated by the committee after a tumultuous session during which Tolbert and his adherents were repeatedly charged with selling federal patronage in South Carolina. The vote of the committee was 34 to 14 in favor of seating Hambright and displacing Tolbert.

The picturesque old political boss of South Carolina, who won his sobriquet of "Tieless Joe" because he has not worn a tie for decades, took his defeat muttering: "If President Hoover wants lily-whiteism, let him have it."

A Victory for Hoover.

When the national committee last week upheld the claims of the Tolbert delegation, observers interpreted it as a wrecking of President Hoover's attempted reform of the rotten boroughs of the south. The reversal of that action by the credentials committee was taken as a distinct victory for the President. Walter Newton, secretary to the President, was present during the arguments but took no part in the debate.

Attorney George W. Beckett for the Hambright group opened the fight against Tolbert. He charged that the Republican party was dead in South Carolina under Tolbert and that the organization had been kept alive only to dispose of federal patronage under a Republican President.

"The Republican party died in 1910 in South Carolina," he said. "In 1924 only 2 per cent of the total vote was Republican and in 1928, when many southern states went Republican, only 5 per cent of the total vote was Republican. President Hoover refused to recognize Tolbert and cut off his federal patronage. He directly accused Tolbert of selling federal jobs."

Tolbert Defends Himself.

Then the white haired Tolbert, nearing his 90th year, took the floor and defended himself with excited gestures.

"This Hambright bunch wants to cut the Negroes out of the party," he declared. "I've tried to get the white man into the party but I never kicked the colored ones out. If we had been able to land Beckett a job, he'd be with us today. But we could not get him and Hambright federal jobs so he's out fighting us."

N. J. Fredericks, Negro attorney, asserted that Tolbert's delegation was legally elected and should be recognized.

"Hambright's a lily white," he said. "He doesn't want the Negroes in the Republican party in South Carolina. Why, Hambright did not even vote for Hoover in 1928."

This statement aroused some comment from the committee members, who called Hambright before them. The latter admitted he had not voted at all in the 1928 election, declaring it was "useless."

Taft's Son Demands Ouster.

Hambright was being criticized by several members for his failure to vote when Robert A. Taft of Ohio, son of the late chief justice of the Supreme court, arose and made a direct plea in behalf of President Hoover.

"The President has said he is against the Tolbert faction," he said. "I don't think we should run counter to his wishes. The national committee, in ratifying the Tolbert delegation, is asking us to recognize graft and corruption."

The vote against the Tolbert delegation followed. The committee members made ready to hold session until this morning, if necessary, to consider the claims of other contesting delegations, notably those of Georgia and Mississippi.

LA FOLLETTE'S MEN REBUKED FOR DISLOYALTY

Disrespect to Flag Angers Regulars.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

La Follette Republican delegates refused to rise from their seats in the convention hall yesterday in honor of the President of the United States and in respect to the American flag, and by their acts provoked a tumult in the Wisconsin delegation.

GEORGE W. MEAD. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

The regular or conservative Republican delegates from Wisconsin held a special caucus yesterday after the convention adjourned and in blistering language they condemned the La Follette followers as traitors, as bolshevists, and as un-American.

Regulars Draft Resolution.

After a fiery debate, in which the Wisconsin regulars sought to outdo each other in inflicting proper punishment upon the radicals, a committee was appointed to draft a resolution containing the facts in the matter, to be presented to the credentials committee of the convention.

The resolution condemned the La Follette delegates for their disloyalty to President and flag.

The Wisconsin regular delegation also indorsed Gen. Charles G. Dawes for Vice President. While conceding that Vice President Curtis has functioned harmoniously with the Hoover administration, the Wisconsin men, in a resolution, held that Mr. Hoover's running mate this time should be "an outstanding, virile candidate," and they held that Dawes fills the bill. Fifteen of the sixteen Wisconsin regulars supported the Dawes resolution, only Ben Marcus of Muscoda dissenting, and Marcus said his only fear was that Mr. Hoover might prefer Curtis.

Radicals Are Outnumbered.

The indignation of the regulars against the conduct of the La Follette delegates on the convention floor broke loose as soon as the regulars gathered in their caucus quarters at the Stevens hotel. Incidentally the regulars outnumber the La Follettes by 16 to 11 and, with Senators Robert M. La Follette and John J. Blaine absent, the radicals have only nine delegates in attendance at the convention.

Delegate George W. Mead, mayor of Wisconsin Rapids, set off the fireworks at the caucus.

"I want to protest bitterly against the disgrace and shame and insult heaped upon Wisconsin today," he said. "When our President's name was mentioned by the keynote speaker, every man, woman and child in that great hall got up on his feet with the exception of eight or nine men who pose as Republicans of Wisconsin.

"Then later they proved they were not Americans when they sat even as the American flag was unfurled, although every other person rose in reverence.

"Fail to Rise for Anthem."

"When the national anthem was played, I turned around and even then they were sitting down, and I cried shame at them. I turned back, and I didn't see them stand even after being shamed, but I am told they did stand up then.

"Mark you, these men were not cheering or paying respects to a candidate for office; it was the President of the United States.

"These men who recognize only the flag of La Folletteism are not Republicans; they might better be called Socialists or Democrats or bolshevists. I think we should take steps to have them denied the right of sitting in the convention."

William J. Campbell, delegate from Oshkosh, declared the La Follette delegates "have no more right to sit at this convention than a klansman at a conclave of Catholics."

Mr. Campbell declared that he had been seeking concrete evidence showing the disloyalty of the La Follette delegates, and that he obtained it on Monday night when they unanimously voted against a resolution by which they were to have pledged themselves to support the nominees and the platform agreed upon by the Republican convention.

Asks Rebuke for Radicals.

Fears that action taken by the Wisconsin regulars to unseat the radicals might martyr the La Follette men in the eyes of the Wisconsin voters were expressed by Charles A. Dittman of La Crosse. Frank Bentley of Madison expressed the same thought, and he advocated that the delegation give the radicals a "stinging rebuke."

Delegate Marcus favored ignoring the La Follette followers' conduct, although he condemned it as bitterly as his colleagues. Marcus said the La Follette candidates would campaign Wisconsin this fall on a false issue that the regulars, as pawns of Wall street, had unseated the regularly elected La Follette delegates.

U. S. Prosecutor Takes Floor.

Then Levi H. Bancroft, United States district attorney at Milwaukee and a candidate for attorney general on the regular Republican ticket, took the floor.

"Wisconsin has been too prone to compromise and too willing to lie down," he declared. "I say to you now, gentlemen, that I would rather go down in defeat than enter into any compromise with the La Follette delegation.

"It is high time that the real Republicans of Wisconsin utter their protests against these men who have always insulted everything that is Republican, everything that is decent and American. They have stumped our state for Democratic candidates. I think we should protest against their holding their seats and we should go before the credentials committee to demand they be ousted."

Applaud Ouster Demand.

A burst of applause greeted Mr. Bancroft's speech, and one or two of the delegates rose to protest stoutly that they had no intention of compromising with La Folletteism.

Harry Dahl, chairman of the delegation, appointed a committee to draw a resolution as follows: Harry T. Greene of Genesee Depot, George W. Anderson of Kenosha, and Mr. Campbell. The committee withdrew at once and prepared the resolution and later it was given to Col. Frank Schneller of Neenah, Wisconsin's representative on the convention committee on credentials, for presentation to that committee.

The resolution as presented to the credentials committee and accepted by that group before its adjournment at midnight condemned the action of the La Follette members of the Wisconsin delegation in keeping their seats after President Hoover's name had first been mentioned at the convention. There was no question of unseating the La Follette members, it was explained.

A resolution drafted by a special committee on the prohibition issue was presented to the convention committee on resolutions yesterday on behalf of the Wisconsin delegation. It read as follows:

"Be it resolved, That the Republican party pledge itself to test the sentiment of the people in regard to prohibition by immediately submitting the question of repeal of the 18th amendment at conventions in the several states."

"Dawes for Vice President."

The resolution supporting the candidacy of Gen. Dawes for Vice President was presented by State Senator Ben Gettelman of Milwaukee, and it stated:

"Whereas, There seems to be a feeling that as a running mate for President Hoover there should be an outstanding, virile candidate for the office of Vice President, and

"Whereas, Although Vice President Curtis has occupied such office with dignity and in harmony with the program of the national administration,

"Be it resolved, That we indorse the candidacy of Charles Dawes as the nominee of this convention for the office of Vice President."

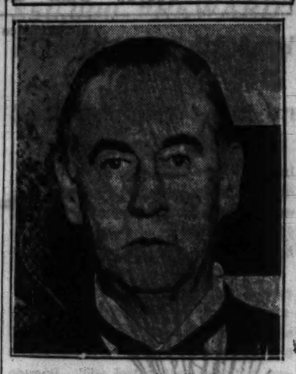

Former Gov. Walter Kohler, who is relied upon by the Wisconsin regular Republicans to defeat Gov. Philip Fox La Follette for reelection, arrived at the convention yesterday. Although a box had been set aside for Gov. Kohler, he purchased mezzanine tickets for himself, his wife and his son, John, and occupied these seats.

Charles Perry of Wauwatosa, speaker of the Wisconsin assembly, who before the state convention at Madison last week had insisted he would be a candidate for governor, regardless of the action of the state convention, visited Gov. Kohler on the mezzanine and assured Kohler that he would give him the fullest support.

"I am with you wholeheartedly in your campaign," said Speaker Perry. "I wish you the very best of success."

Just at this point the convention was adjourned and the big pipe organ took up the tune, "Happy Days Are Here Again," which got a laugh out of both Kohler and Perry.

Dies After Speech

REP. ELLWOOD E. ESLICK.

HOUSE MEMBER DROPS DEAD AS HE URGES BONUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—Debate on the soldier bonus bill was brought to a sudden and tragic close today when Representative Edward E. Eslick [Dem., Tenn.] dropped dead on the floor of the house while making an impassioned plea for payment of the $2,400,000,000 bonus immediately.

Shocked by the dramatic turn of events, the house adjourned immediately as a mark of respect to Representative Eslick. When it reconvenes tomorrow unanimous consent will be asked to dispense with further general debate on the bonus, take the bill up for amendments under a five minute rule and probably dispose of it by midafternoon.

Representative Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], speaker pro tem., quickly obtained an agreement to move to dispense with further general debate on the bonus to spare members further strain.

Fifth Member to Die.

Representative Eslick is the fifth member of the house to die since congress convened in December. The four who preceded Mr. Eslick were Representatives Albert H. Vestal [Rep., Ind.], Percy E. Quin [Dem., Miss.], Samuel Rutherford [Dem., Ga.] and Edward M. Beers [Rep., Pa.].

Mr. Eslick had about half completed a ten minute speech in behalf of the bonus. Picturing the world war army as "the flower of the country's manhood," he waved aside questions of finance and said:

"Mr. Speaker, I want to divert from the sordid——"

He never finished the sentence. As he collapsed, he clutched at a table and partially broke his fall. In a second a score of members were at his side. He was carried from the chamber quickly as the crowded galleries gasped. Dr. George W. Calver, capitol physician, said he had died before he struck the floor.

Wife Present in Gallery.

Mrs. Eslick was in the members' gallery at the time. Assisted by friends she hurried to the lobby and sat by her husband's side while doctors tried to revive him. In a state of collapse, she was taken to her home when the physicians announced that their efforts were futile.

A score of women were assisted from the galleries in a state of near collapse. The house recessed for a few minutes in the hope Mr. Eslick would be revived. Representative Joseph T. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.] announced Mr. Eslick's death and moved for adjournment.

General debate was about half completed when Representative Eslick collapsed. Under the rule limiting the discussion to four hours, the proposal to pay the bonus immediately had been attacked and defended by members on both sides.

Ask End of Debate.

"To debate this bill further," Representative Rainey said later, "will not change a vote. The members of this house are worn to the ragged edge. I am confident there will be no objection to dispensing with further general debate on the bonus."

Representative Eslick was the first member of the house to drop dead in the present chamber. John Quincy Adams, who was elected to the house after he left the White House, collapsed in the old house chamber, now Statuary hall, and died before he could be carried out.

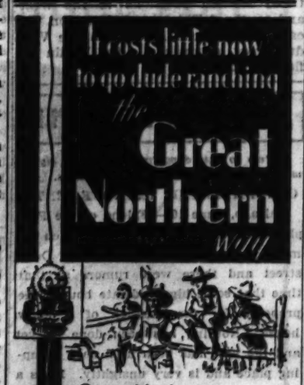

The senate adjourned out of respect to Representative Eslick, following a brief session. A resolution of sympathy was proposed by Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] and adopted. A committee of seven senators, headed by Senator McKellar, was appointed to attend the funeral.

FINES WANT AD RACKETEER.

Charles Bauer, 42 years old, "want ad racketeer," was fined $200 yesterday by Judge Alfred O. Erickson on the complaint of 20 women, who said Bauer represented himself as a wealthy broom jobber, answered their applications for work and tried to make love to them.

Union Chief Arrives Today to Aid "L" Wage Parley

William D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés, is expected in Chicago today, according to President John Bruce of the elevated employés' union, to reopen negotiations with the Rapid Transit company on a wage scale. The elevated employés last Saturday voted down the company's proposal of a 10 per cent wage reduction.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

REPEAL THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT.

Some of the Republicans in convention are trying, with what success today may show, to cut for home without touching second base. Naturally there would be some honest differences of opinion regarding the eighteenth amendment, but they are marginal. The majority of people opposed to national prohibition are opposed to the interference of the federal government in liquor regulation.

The question is the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, the Volstead act, and all other enforcement acts. It is not whether the eighteenth amendment shall be amended. It is not whether the federal interference shall be modified. The demand which must be satisfied is for the return of control to the states.

Any proposal which contains an alternative to repeal, preserving the federal jurisdiction, is unsatisfactory in its essence. It would continue a form of government which must be ended.

Opposition to federal prohibition or regulation recognizes first that such a function is unnatural to the constitution and improper in the Union. It creates a federal police power which cannot be exercised wisely or with good results. Therefore nothing less than the withdrawal of the federal government from the field of liquor control will avail. An exception will be made of interstate commerce, but within a state the control must be returned to the people. They may prohibit or not, as they like. They may adopt the Quebec system, the Ontario system, the Swedish system, or the English system.

The federal government relinquishes jurisdiction. Who wants that government in the liquor vending business? Why should it be considered necessary that it should sell liquor? Yet Illinois very rationally might adopt the Quebec system.

An endeavor to get away from this cardinal point has either a visionary or a dishonest impulse. It seeks either to continue some form of undesirable government misconceived as desirable or to prevent the application of the cure which a majority of the people desire, as indicated by their recent political action.

The people who seek modification of the eighteenth amendment confess the evil of it, but hope to satisfy justified complaint by making it merely a smaller one.

SUBSTITUTE FOR PROHIBITION.

Mr. John R. Mott, president of the International Missionary council and the World's alliance of the Y. M. C. A., favors the resubmission of the 18th amendment to the people, but demands a substitute. This is a suggestion which has been appearing since the reaction against the demoralization wrought by the prohibition regime reached a force too strong to be ignored. We do not accuse Mr. Mott of ulterior intent, but among the dry politicians the demand for a substitute must find favor as a tactical device for dividing the opposition. Many methods of regulating the liquor traffic have been proposed and many citizens who are acutely dissatisfied with national prohibition conditions hesitate to demand repeal because they imagine the removal of that mandate would leave the country at the mercy of an unrestricted liquor traffic until new laws and restraints could be passed.

This is not true. The outright repeal of the amendment would, for example, leave every state prohibition law intact. There are twenty states with such laws. As to states, like New York, which have no prohibition laws, the repeal of the 18th amendment would set them free, as they are not free today, to enact liquor traffic laws which they can enforce. This cannot be done while the 18th amendment and the Volstead act remain.

Besides the prohibition and other state laws regulating state traffic, there is the Webb-Kenyon federal act controlling interstate commerce and transport of alcoholic beverages.

In other words, a substitute for national prohibition now exists in federal and state laws. Any state not satisfied with its laws could proceed to alter them once the 18th amendment were out of its way. If congress were not satisfied with the Webb-Kenyon act it could amend it. But the notion that outright repeal of the 18th amendment would leave the nation or the states without liquor laws is not in accordance with the facts.

THE VICE PRESIDENT.

Much too often a nominating convention pays scandalously little attention to the qualifications of the candidate for Vice President. The Democrats who nominated Judge Alton B. Parker put Henry G. Davis on the ticket with him. Mr. Davis was very wealthy and very old, and the convention was very tired. The candidate, being rich, was thought to be good for something handsome in the way of a campaign contribution. The convention was not thinking of the presidency of the United States, although it was making a bid to provide the succession for it.

The Republicans who nominated Taft selected as his running mate an amiable New Yorker whose best qualification was that he could be spoken of as Sunny Jim. It is often the habit of the convention to toss second place to a section or a faction, to attract or appease without much consideration of the fact that such a nomination is a gamble on the good health of the man elected President.

Some day this gamble will make the secretary of state President, a convention having selected and elected as Vice President some citizen who is well over the divide of life before he is sworn in as holder of second place in the republic. One qualification of the Vice President should be that he has at least a good expectancy, in addition to other qualifications, which would make the office of chief magistrate not unreasonably an object of his ambitions.

The Republicans probably will renominate Vice President Curtis. He is a man of long service in public affairs, but if he has occasion to take the oath of office again he will be 73 years old when he does so. To be presiding officer of the United States senate this ripe age is no apparent limitation, but in the succession to the presidency it makes the succession a gamble on the health of the President, with the possibility of landing the secretary of state in the presidency. It may be doubted that Mr. Stimson could be elected to that high position.

COLLECTING THE BACK TAXES.

The appointment by the county board of a lawyer to collect the arrears in personal property taxes is somewhat curious in view of the law governing these collections. The law places the responsibility for collection upon the state's attorney. The question arises why the state's attorney has been sidetracked. Was the special collection agency authorized at his request or in spite of his opposition?

A special collection attorney with some powers to compromise claims might prove useful on the eve of a political campaign. And the duty of collecting taxes with an election coming on might prove somewhat embarrassing to an office holder running for reelection.

Plainly the situation calls for a good deal more explaining than has yet been done by those concerned in the arrangement.

SALMON COLORED POLITICIANS.

James A. Reed of Missouri says that Mr. Garner's postoffice pork bill is pink if not red. It's not intelligent enough to be red. It must be pink. The only use the Reds would have for such a piece of fool expenditure would be to destroy private property, and even then they would object to such misuse of expropriated wealth. They could deal with the question better with machine guns and extinguish the bourgeoisie more economically than starving them to death in postoffices. That would be too expensive a mausoleum for representative government.

Salmon colored Americans have been fascinated by Moscow methods, but they think the procedure is an end in itself. It will make more extensive and grander ruins than Stalin would care to contemplate as his handiwork.

Editorial of the Day

NO!

[New York Evening Post.]

If the people of this country understood what is being done to them by legislation enacted under pressure from ex-service men they would reply to present and future demands with an indignant "No!" Take just one example of the absurdities which exist. An ex-service man who, prior to 1925—that is, six years after the war—could prove that he had tuberculosis, although it disabled him as little as 10 per cent, and in whom the disease is now completely arrested and is no handicap to his earning power, is entitled to $50 a month for the rest of his life. The widow of a soldier who was killed in the war and who left her their two children to be cared for receives $46 a month. Such are the monstrous incongruities which we are permitting to be put over—not simply on the taxpayers, be it noted, but on the families of those who made the supreme sacrifice.

We forget the careful planning which was done during and immediately after the war to avoid the evils of the civil war pension arrangements. Five major measures were adopted by congress: First, war risk insurance; secondly, cash compensation for veterans who were sick or disabled in consequence of war service; thirdly, compensation for the widows and orphans of those who died in or in consequence of war service; fourthly, hospitalization for those who were sick or injured in consequence of war service, and, fifthly, provision for the conversion of war risk insurance into various accepted forms of life insurance. This is not all. Rehabilitation, vocational training and other matters were provided for.

A pretty good program, wasn't it? So good, in fact, that nobody has suggested any improvement in it. What has been suggested and in part accomplished is the handing out of Uncle Sam's money to persons who either did not suffer in a way to preclude them from earning a fair living or did not suffer at all. Hundreds of millions of dollars are being paid to ex-service men who suffered no disability whatever in the war. There are veterans who are receiving compensation for total disability, although they are engaged in their normal civilian occupations. Some of them are employed by the government.

How honest and patriotic men can agitate for legislation which makes these things possible is beyond our comprehension. But this travesty upon justice and common sense can be stopped. Not only can fresh abuses be prevented; some of those which flourish can be abolished. The National Economy league, composed mainly of ex-service men, has taken the lead by petitioning the President and congress for a reduction of $450,000,000 in the expenditures of the veterans' administration. It has filed a brief showing that this amount can be saved merely by putting an end to the privileges enjoyed by ex-service men who were not disabled because of war service. This is a self-respecting attitude. It deserves the outspoken support of every man and woman worthy of the name of American citizen.

STILL SOME TO GO.

Second Chorus Girl—Another thing I can do and you can not.—Tit-Bits.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

WHAT'S THE USE?

No, Hortense, we do not drop in at a summer garden anywhere in these United States of America and buy a stein of eight per cent beer, no matter what the convention does. Ah, the day will be long and dark, dearie, ere we clink glasses foaming with lager and see Herman, the genteel waiter, wiping the table with a napkin and calling happily to the barkeep, "Heinie, draw two!" But, anyhow, Hortense, you have been brought up on that bootlegger, synthetic kind of beer and you wouldn't be happy with a stein of real genuine eight per cent old fashioned beer if you had it.

Ah, what mischief has been dry prohibition as carried on in this country done to our delicate sense of taste! In the old days we could be blindfolded and given glasses of beer to drink and after a taste or two we would announce with certainty whether it was imported or domestic, Culmbacher or Munich. But if we were blindfolded now and handed something the bootlegger had brought around we couldn't be sure whether it was white mule, needled beer, hootch, hair tonic, or gasoline. Two Frenchmen can sip from a bottle of wine and tell you what year it was made. Of course, we can do that with the sort of whisky sold under prohibition, but it's because we always know it was made last week, or more probably yesterday morning.

But the fact remains that there is one thing neither party conventions, nor congress, nor state conventions can do for us, and that is bring back the sense of taste we used to have. We saw a man once who had been a good judge of whisky in the old days who waited for long hours for the ship on which we were passengers to cross the twelve mile line and the bar to open. He trampled people under foot in his mad haste to get a drink of real whisky, the first he had tasted in ten years. And when he took a sip of it he put the glass down with astonishment, disappointment, and sorrow written deeply on his face. He tried his drink again with the same result. He asked the barkeep if that was real whisky. The barkeep said it was and fifteen years old. The man tried once more. Then he called for the red pepper, the black pepper, and the chili sauce and put them all in. Then he drank his whisky with joy. He had fixed it so that it tasted like hootch.

DANCE OF YOUTH AND AGE.

How lovely in your red rose gown—
Let us dance the young moon down;
We will dance the aged sun up,
Drinking from its crystal cup;
We will dance the high stars pale—
You are lovely, I am frail;
I will hold you lest you fade,
For I am but an ancient jade;
Now you hold me lest I fall—
Age is nothing, youth is all;
I will find my dead romance
In the fire of this one dance;
In your youth I will be young—
Dear, your breasts are apples hung!

The moon is down, the sun is up,
Filled with dregs is the crystal cup;
The sun is up, the moon is down—
High stars are low, red stars pale—

ABORIGINE.

A LETTER WAS INTRODUCED at the trial of the plotters against Mussolini showing that $50,000 was offered for an attempt on the life of Il Duce and only $5,000 for the life of the crown prince. The letter didn't say anything about dukes or marquises or emperors, but they're probably marked down to two for a quarter, if any. 'Tis the twilight of the kings.

IF YOU HAVE TEARS prepare to shed them now. Yesterday while we were having the great Republican cataclysm in Chicago congress was wrestling with the question as to whether or not the government was giving private barges on the Mississippi a break. Talk about being hog tied and shut up in a cage. Think of the statesmen penned up in Washington when the big show is going on in Chicago.

ANYHOW, WE'RE PAST the point with pride stage and very soon we get to the man who period of the convention. Then the foundations of the republic will have to rock and G. Washington and his ragged boys at Valley Forge march around and then they'll all do what—go home. And yet we laugh at the English for saying, "Well, we've always done it this way." So do we.

RICH MAN, POOR MAN.

And did you read the other day—
Wasn't that a "hon"?
Where Henry Ford has a hundred suits
And I have only one!

Think of the worry Henry has Deciding which to wear—
I'm dressed in just a jiffy
For any old affair.

One hundred suits to keep in press
Isn't any fun.
I stick mine 'neath the mattress
And presto! it's all done!

One hundred suits to keep sponged off
Must have him on the run—
Hank, you keep your hundred suits,
I'll stick to my ONE!

JAZBO OF OLD DUBUQUE.

DANGERS OF LACQUERS AND PAINTS.

THOSE who work at spray painting and lacquering, as well as all others engaged in the paint industry, should have access to the facts given by W. J. Burke, chemical engineer of the New York state department of labor.

Most paints contain poisons and the spray method of applying them increases the risks of the painting trades. Even if a man is careful to select nonpoisonous paints, he may be poisoned when he sandpapers an old job in preparation for a new one. Mr. Burke's article above referred to deals only with the new lacquers. The dangers in these relate almost wholly to ingredients other than the pigments.

An average lacquer of the new kind is composed of 30 per cent diluents, 47 per cent solvents, 5 per cent softeners, 5 per cent gums and resins, 3 per cent pigment, and 10 per cent nitrocellulose. The gums, resins, and softeners are not poisonous. Some of the yellow, orange, and green pigments and some metal primers and surfacers contain lead, and therefore are poisonous. With these exceptions, the colors and pigments are classed with the gums, resins, and oils used as softeners, in the list of safe ingredients.

The potential poisons are nitrocellulose, the diluents such as benzol, toluol, xylol, and petroleum naphtha, and the solvents such as ethyl acetate, butyl acetate, amyl acetate, ethylene glycol mono-ethyl ether acetate, ethylene glycol mono-butyl ether, iso propyl acetate, and iso amyl acetate. Some of these ingredients are more poisonous, some less so, but none is entirely harmless. Some do harm immediately upon inhalation, and then only; others may be stored in the body, causing a type of cumulative poisoning. We know best of cumulative poisoning through our experiences with chronic lead poisoning, though most people have heard of chronic carbon monoxide poisoning.

The danger in using these new lacquers lies partly in absorption of the harmful chemicals, and partly in their tendency to explode and cause fires. The vapors do not mix well with air. They gather along the floors in corners and pockets, and when they are concentrated enough and they meet the right temperatures, or they come in contact with flames, they explode with force and start fires.

Once a lacquer has set, and vapors no longer come off, the product is safe. Babies may get lead poisoning from gnawing off lead paint, however old it may be. There is no such danger with lacquer. The danger is limited to the person who is in the room when the work is being done.

These dangers can be obviated. The first requirement is that the diluents and the solvents should be as little poisonous as is possible. The second is that the ventilation of the working place should be properly planned and properly maintained. This includes the regulation of heating and the use of lights.

THERE IS NONE.

D. P. writes: What kind of kidney trouble is it that causes a breaking out on hands, feet, and legs?

REPLY.

None. You are watching the wrong rat hole.

FEAR OF DOG BITE.

REPLY.

The incubation period of rabies is variable. Two weeks may be said to be the shortest. Two months is not far from the mean. One year has been known to elapse—at least in lower animals.

In case the bite is around the face the period is apt to be short. If on a distant part of the body the period is apt to be longer. A severe bite and a severe infection is liable to cause a short period of infection and a violent attack of the disease, and vice versa.

As a rule, the incubation period is long enough to permit of a diagnosis and vaccination if prompt action is taken. The exceptions are usually those in which the bites are around the face.

AVOIDING HEATING FOODS.

G. D. writes: As the hot summer weeks are almost here, I would like to stop eating so many fat and heat generating foods. Should I stop eating bread, cake, meat, ice cream?

REPLY.

When the air is hot we naturally turn away from foods that make most heat and towards those that make least.

Among those that lead in heat making are the fats, oils, and greases. Meats are fairly near the top, fat meat leading lean. At the other end of the line are fruits, vegetables, salads without oily dressings, and breads.

ERYSIPELAS.

J. R. writes:

A says that erysipelas is not contagious. B says it is very catching, that clothing and bed clothes must be sterilized, and that the patient must be isolated for a long time.

Who is right?

REPLY.

A is nearer right than B, though it is not a case where the pot can call the kettle black. In a proper setting, erysipelas is fairly contagious; otherwise, it is practically not so. Instances of a proper setting are: an obstetric hospital, among wounded persons, and women in childbirth.

ALCOHOL HABIT.

L. L. writes:

1. Not long ago I read a statement that alcohol is a habit forming, racial poison. Is this true?
2. Has alcohol food value?
3. Is alcohol a food?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Yes.
3. Practically speaking it is not. The food values are there, but mixed with them are drug qualities that make the food values useless.

EPILEPTIC.

H. C. W. writes: A boy 17 years old, well grown, is in perfect health except that he has convulsions. When he was an infant he had them frequently. He had none after that until he was 13. During the last four years he has had about one attack a year, usually following violent play.

1. Is this caused by his blood being too rich?
2. Poor circulation?
3. Bad stomach?
4. Would cod liver oil help him?

REPLY.

The reply to each of the four questions is "No." The boy is quite certainly an epileptic. The convulsions in infancy were related to those of the last four years. Since he has so few convulsions, the chance that they can be lessened seems good. This will require good medical care, and, above all, properly regulated living habits.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 15, 1916.

ST. LOUIS.—With delegates already flocking homeward from a convention so harmonious that it has ceased to be exciting, the Democratic leaders are considering tonight a proposal to effect the renomination of President Wilson and Vice President Marshall today. If this plan be carried out, the platform will be adopted on June 16 and the convention will adjourn. This development followed a harmonious first session of the convention, in which former Gov. Glynn of New York sounded the Democratic keynote, and the initial consideration of platform proposals by the committee on resolutions, which was not so harmonious. Several spirited fights over the President's planks and outside suggestions as to the tenets of the party faith cropped out.

LONDON.—Russian and German light squadrons met in a battle in the Baltic sea in which the Russians were victorious. The clash occurred near the Swedish coast. A report of the engagement cabled from Copenhagen says the German auxiliary cruiser Koenig von Sachsen was sunk with all on board, while a German destroyer and a number of merchantmen which the German squadron were convoying also were sunk. This dispatch says the Russians had six destroyers and several submarines and approached at such speed that the Germans were taken completely by surprise, and only fired one shot, then made for port in the utmost haste.

EL PASO, Tex.—United States consuls assigned to stations in Mexico have either left the republic or are preparing to leave. With the spread of the anti-American demonstrations south of the Rio Grande the United States flag has been taken down and the national shields removed from the consulates all over the country.

BERLIN.—German troops have captured French positions to the west and south of Thiaumont farm, on the east bank of the Meuse, on the Verdun front, according to the Berlin official statement.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is Merle C. Coulter, professor of botany.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Why are some babies boys and other babies girls?

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

ANSWER.

They are not. In so far as this expression refers merely to the political privileges of United States citizens it may be both sound and useful. To read into it any broader meaning, however, would be objectionable to both social scientist and biologist. Modern man is certainly not free in the widest sense of the term. The innumerable things that go to make up the world are amazingly interdependent; man's behavior is constantly conditioned by his surroundings, by his experience, by the interests of other men, by the activities of innumerable other types of living organisms, by the nonliving materials and forces of his environment. Only by certain concessions and adjustments can man win for himself a modicum of freedom.

As for equality, save for identical twins, probably no two men have ever been created with just the same hereditary endowments. Our race is a grand mixture of hereditary qualities, some good and some bad. For the future of the race it is very important that those with desirable hereditary qualities have many offspring and that those with highly undesirable hereditary qualities have none at all.

CONTEMPLATED IMPROVEMENTS.

Chicago, June 10.—[Friend of the People.]—Six or seven years ago ten or more houses were torn down on Dean street and there were rumors at that time that some big syndicate bought the property for the erection of a show house. Nothing has been done as yet and the land has been used as a dumping place and is very unsightly. 1. As a property owner would like to know where I can report to have this place cleaned up. 2. Who owns this piece of land? 3. Are they going to build any large building there, and if so, what kind? E. M.

Report is made that vacant lot referred to is now in satisfactory condition. The information desired in question No. 2 can be obtained if the writer has the correct street number by applying at the bureau of maps and plats for the legal description and then refer to the county recorder's office for owner's name. The owner of the property is the only person who can give the information desired by the third question.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

SUE FOR DAMAGES.

Chicago, June 1. — [Legal Friend of the People.] — I rented an apartment from agents designated by a sign on the building as managers. Paid $100 cash for which I have signed receipt. The apartment was to be ready for occupancy June 28. I cannot locate the agents to secure keys to apartment. Understand they left the city. The sign, however, is still on the building. Owner of the building is making no effort to prepare same for occupancy. What recourse have I if keys are not delivered and apartment put in shape? H. W. H.

We suggest that you notify the owner of the building that if he does not comply with your agreement you will employ an attorney to sue him for damages.

TO KEEP THE RECORD CLEAR.

Chicago, June 6.—Replying to the letter of Maurice H. Krout—for the purpose of keeping the record straight—I would like to say that the American Hospital association is an organization of hospitals in the United States, Canada and some foreign countries, banded together for the improvement of hospital service in all of its phases, and offers its services to the fullest extent of its ability and resources to any institution desiring and requesting such service.

The association does not conduct individual hospital surveys outside of its own membership unless invited to do so, but reserves the right to make any investigations it deems necessary in those institutions holding membership. By the patient pursuit of its studied methods and progressive propaganda it has become a most potent agency for the betterment of hospital conditions throughout the world.

Very strenuous efforts have been made by the association to induce the Cook county hospital to become an institutional member and many communications have been sent to all officials concerned without result, so that this hospital is one of the few of the large, important hospitals in America which has declined the services of the American Hospital association. It is needless to add that the American Hospital association has neither been invited nor permitted to conduct a survey of the Cook county hospital so far as I know.

Former Executive Secretary, American Hospital Association.

CHICAGO STREET SIGNS.

Chicago, June 8.—What's the idea of the secrecy about the names of Chicago's streets? Being a newcomer, with a desire to get my bearings and know where I am or where I want to be, I find a great lack of street markings. Way down on your lovely Michigan avenue where north and south meet I had to ask the newsboys on three different corners the names of streets running west. There are likely to be many strangers in this city in the next year and a half and I feel sure they will be facilitated greatly in getting about if the streets are marked.

And may I make a suggestion that I think will help a bit? That is, start a movement to get those signs already up washed so one can read them. Why wouldn't those people living or having a business on the corner wash that particular sign as a contribution to the city's good appearance? That might be added to, too, if the owners of vacant stores would wash the windows and remove old posters. A NEWCOMER.

THE HORSE THIEF TRIAL.

Wateska, Ill., June 6.—The two pictures in THE TRIBUNE yesterday—"Custer's Last Stand" and the "Horse Thief Trial"—were wonderful. I am inclined to think, however, that you are overlooking a very fine point, and that is that the picture of the trial has a double meaning. Is it not true that the picture was made originally for the Danites, a society of the Mormons organized to avenge the killing of their prophet, Joseph Smith? I am strongly convinced that the picture is the same that was staged in the '80s, say 50 years ago, and you may remember that it had a very popular run at the best theaters.

The young person reclining against the end of the counter was the heroine of the play, disguised as a boy, to prevent falling into the hands of the Danites. The real name of this actress was Kitty Blanchard, as I remember, and I am quite sure about it.

THURSTON MCGILL.

PATRONIZE YOUR DEBTOR.

Chicago, June 7.—A thought has occurred to me for a slogan which you and others might see fit to publicise, and that is: "Patronize Your Debtor."

There are many debtors in the world, including individuals, corporations and governments, who cannot pay up in cash but who would be only too willing to pay on account in goods or services. [While governments—as such—might not be able to do this, any similar payment by their citizens to the citizens of creditor countries would redound to the benefit of their respective governments, and could be facilitated by international trade agreements.]

During the last decade our government and people have done far too much for foreign debtors in the way of additional loans, and far too little in the way of buying merchandise, the unfortunate outcome of which we know only too well now.

But we do not seem to have learned the lesson with respect to our own insolvent debtors. "Relief" is the present watchword for our needy ones, instead of mutual coöperation. Our initiation of policies which may lead to a dole will ultimately have worse results here than the recent financial collapse of some of our foreign debtors has had upon us. The alternative is to patronize the debtor; that is, to buy his goods or services.

Why not start a campaign for payments in this manner? Debtors with character and a sense of obligation should approach their creditors with an offer of some such solution. Creditors with humanitarian and patriotic impulses should favor this plan, as much for the benefit it would do the community as for themselves. Should any good come of such an arrangement, the ultimate result might be a tremendous impetus toward restoring a condition of more normal business, both within our country and throughout the world.

ALAN D. WHITNEY.

TOO MANY OFFICIALS.

Michigan City, Ind., June 6.—I noticed an article in THE TRIBUNE recently in regard to a new organization being formed for the purpose of lowering taxes. I would like to say that I believe this should be a good move and that it should be pushed to the limit.

Seems to me that if some of those politicians at Washington and in the different states would volunteer their services free until the depression was over it would be no more than fair and right. I think it would be a nice thing to start some propaganda in the press along this line and keep it up.

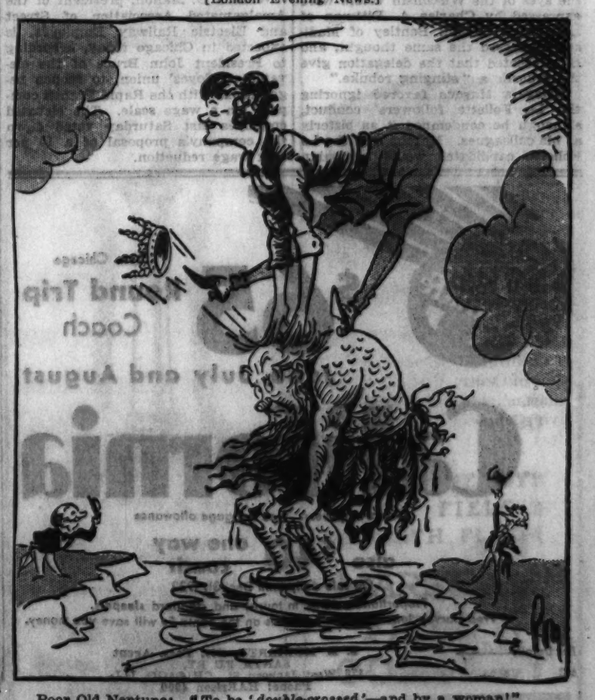

It seems a shame to be putting on more tax at this time when there is no business in the country. They are only making conditions worse. I think it would be a good thing if we could do away with congress altogether and just have a President and Vice President. Then we could hold them responsible if things failed to go right. Also not to have so many states. We do not need so many county offices either. We could send our taxes in by mail. And on down to the cities—the mayor could look after everything if he had to. J. P. F.

PERSPECTIVE.

Moline, Ill., May 31.—It is widely claimed that prohibition is responsible for the present depression and that repeal would bring back prosperous times. This nation has passed through 17 different depressions, of which all but two occurred before the coming of national Volsteadism. Perhaps the weis can explain what caused the 15 depressions which descended on the country during wet times. LESTER E. FROST.

DIPLOMATS DROP DISARM PARLEY IN LAP OF GODS

Sessions Are Suspended "For Time Being."

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, June 14.—This time the international disarmament conference without a doubt really has gone into its big crisis.

How it will emerge, if ever, is a matter on which none of the leading doctors of diplomacy assembled here dare to commit themselves. They followed the lead of Arthur Henderson, British president of the conference, by dumping it in the lap of the gods, declaring through the steering committee that the parley's only hope lies in private conversations in the narrow field of qualitative disarmament.

Expressing the hope that such conversations actually will take place and some results eventually will be achieved, the steering committee today decided to suspend further meetings for the time being. The steering committee thus declared the conference—a method followed by Europe since the war—in bankruptcy.

Technique Thown Overboard.

That technique by which delegations talk for home consumption, assuming public positions from which they are loath to retreat later on, was overthrown frankly in favor of private conversations, where, obviously, if people are inclined to bargain, they will bargain. It was as a last resort that all the elaborate technique was thrown overboard.

Chairman Henderson told the steering committee that this is what ought to be done without declaring a recess, inasmuch as the interest shifts to the financial parley at Lausanne tomorrow.

Everybody agreed. The Germans agreed in a special way, referring to their new memorandum which reiterates the position that qualitative disarmament can only be achieved on the basis of the prohibitions included in the Versailles treaty. They made it clear that this is their condition on entering private political conversations. The Italians and Russians rallied to their side, constituting a bloc that is resolutely opposed to closing this conference with any scheme short of the recognition that Germany's disarmament must be the model for others.

Now's the Time—Germany.

Rudolf Nadolny, chief German delegate, frankly said that Germany understood her disarmament at Versailles was a prelude to a like disarmament by others and was convinced that the time was at hand. Supported by Italy and Russia, her fears of a "phoney" conclusion of the conference imposed by France and Great Britain vanished. All agree that the situation calls for serious results from private conversations or nothing.

Premier Herriot of France said he had not had sufficient time to study the German memorandum and would reserve the French viewpoint. Joseph Paul-Boncour, French delegate, suggested that inasmuch as all had agreed that bacteriological and chemical warfare should be abolished, this ought to be done as the first and immediate achievement of the conference in order to reassure the public at large.

The Japanese expressed their concern over public opinion, stating that they wanted it understood that the private conversations actually would continue and would not languish. Henderson not only failed to exact guarantees of this sort, but, by a slip of the tongue, referred to "the last meeting of the steering committee."

Americans Are Mum.

The Americans, who have made it clear that they were not ready to talk adjournment, did not say a word. However, as a result of Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson's insistence that something be done so that his proposals limiting armed effectives could be considered, Henderson appointed a committee to see if the committee on armed effectives, which has admitted failure, cannot be salvaged.

Young Law Investigator Kills Himself in Hotel

James Peregrine, 21 years old, an investigator for the law firm of McKenna & Harris, was found dead yesterday in a room of the Hotel Planters, 19 North Clark street. He had committed suicide with chloroform. A note beside his body said he "had never enjoyed life very much" and directed that his brothers, Attorneys Irving F. and Moore M. Peregrine, be notified. The dead man lived with his brother, Irving, at 1051 North Humphrey avenue.

ASSASSINS OFFER $50,000 "REWARD" FOR DUCE'S DEATH

$5,000 Price Is Put on Crown Prince.

ROME, June 14.—(AP)—At the trial of Domenico Bovone, charged with instigating a bombing plot against Premier Mussolini, a letter offering $50,000 for the premier's death was introduced in evidence today.

The life of the crown prince was valued at only $5,000 and a few hundred dollars each was offered for the assasination of members of the grand council. The letter described the premier as "the big dog."

Bovone was implicated by Angelo Sbardellotto, who was arrested on June 6 and confessed that he had intended to toss a bomb at the premier during a ceremony in honor of Garibaldi.

Charges Torture by Police.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 14.—"We have repeatedly obtained proof that Italian police, in efforts to get confessions from men arrested as anti-Fascists, used medieval tortures," former Premier Francesco Nitti declared today in commenting on the trial of nine alleged anti-Fascist plotters now going on in Rome.

"The Fascist government would like to get something on about 20 Italians now residing here—former politicians, writers, and journalists. Their object, of course, is to try to compromise them with the French authorities."

Two anti-Fascists accused by Italian police, Imilio Lussu, and Carlo Rosselli, are understood to be living here, but they could not be located.

One of Italy's War Heroes.

Nitti declared that Lussu, who was an influential political writer and one of Italy's great war heroes, has always led a quiet life since his exile and never has engaged in any terrorist activities.

Nitti escaped from a prison island two years ago. He published a book about his escape.

COUNTY UPHOLDS TWO LAWYERS IN BELLWOOD CASE

President Emmett Whealan of the county board yesterday cast the deciding vote which retained the services of John Bolton and Edmund Mulcahy, attorneys for the county highway department, after members of the board had voted 5 to 5 on a resolution for their dismissal.

Bolton and Mulcahy represented the county in seven damage suits brought by Bellwood property owners to whom they agreed to give $160,000 without jury trials, after waiving the county's rights of appeal. Judge Thomas J. Lynch yesterday vacated the judgments.

The vote on the resolution was recorded: Yea, Commissioners Fleming, Sears, Miller, Plumb, Weber; no, Commissioners Byrd, Kasper, Kavanagh, Kelly, LaBuy. With the vote tied, President Whealan voted "No."

By unanimous action the board accepted the proposed 1932 county tax levy of $18,974,375. This budget will require a tax rate of 47½ cents for each $100 valuation for county use. The D. F. Kelly advisory committee urged a 44 cent levy.

State Street Decorations Dedicated by Mayor

The decorations on State street were officially dedicated by Mayor A. J. Cermak Monday afternoon in front of the Palmer house. "Perhaps no city in the world has ever had the opportunity of being host for so many important events in such a short period of time," said the mayor in speaking of the national conventions. "Chicago is the stage of the nation." A detachment of infantry from Fort Sheridan fired three rounds at the conclusion of the ceremony.

ASKS U. S. TABOO ON SPECULATION IN OWN STOCKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—[Special.]—Members of the senate stock exchange investigation today heard Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard university advocate a federally enforced "intelligent and standardized method of accounting" for corporations and legislation to prevent corporation directors from speculating in the stock of their own concerns.

WM. Z. RIPLEY.

He deplored the seeming departure of the days when captains of industry steered and stuck by their own ships.

"The present picture," he said, "too often seems to show the captain rowing away in a life boat, but radioing back advising the passengers to stay aboard."

Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart [radical Rep., Ia.] objected to Prof. Ripley's accounting plan by pointing out that government supervision had not prevented the slump of railroad securities.

"It's scandalous," Prof. Ripley agreed.

Replying to further interrogations he said he did not believe those who had distributed Kreuger & Toll securities to the public were guilty of any willful wrong. He knew some of those involved, he explained, and he labeled them as persons of "great integrity and great stupidity."

ESCAPED PRISON TRUSTY SEIZED IN LAKE COUNTY

Joseph H. Becker, 40 years old, artist, engineer and chemist, who escaped from Leavenworth penitentiary a year ago, was arrested yesterday in a cabin at Grass lake, four miles west of Antioch, by Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county. Becker had served 2½ years of a 3½ year term for smuggling aliens from Canada to Detroit when he escaped.

He had been living in the Grass lake cabin, supporting himself by selling sketches of the surrounding territory, and was identified by a government circular received by Sheriff Tiffany.

Becker, a graduate of a Berlin university, was a trusted prisoner and served as chemist for the penitentiary physician. He had been promised parole and a government engineering job, officials said. After his arrest yesterday he explained that a momentary desire for freedom drove him to flee the penitentiary grounds. He will be turned over to government officials in Chicago, who will send him back to Leavenworth.

75 Year Old Aunt of British King Has an Eye Operation

LONDON, June 14.—(AP)—A preliminary operation for removal of a cataract from the right eye was performed today on Princess Beatrice, aunt of King George. The operation took place at Kensington palace. Princess Beatrice is the daughter of Queen Victoria and the mother of former Queen Victoria of Spain. She was 75 years old in April.

SUCH KRAUT SMELLS MOVE MR. SUCH MUCH; JURY, TOO, IT APPEARS

The jury, before Judge A. W. Summers, found Stephen Such of 1542 Augusta boulevard not guilty of malicious prosecution in the $10,000 damage suit brought against him by Charles Pudlo, head of the Liberty Pickle company, 884 North Hermitage avenue. Not long ago, Such, annoyed by the odors drifting into his home from Pudlo's pickle plant, caused the latter's arrest on a charge of operating a factory without a license. Cleared in court, Pudlo filed the damage suit.

JUDGE DECLINES TO DECIDE WHO KICKED MILKMAID

Mrs. Mary Latches, 11136 South St. Louis avenue, a widow with nine children, unfolded a tale of woe yesterday to Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas when she appeared as a complaining witness against Frank Kernizowski, charged with disorderly conduct.

She planned to marry him, she said, but as the result of what happened Monday evening the plans are off. She was milking a cow in Kernizowski's barn at 10800 South Homan avenue, she charged, when he entered and dislodged her from the milking stool with a well placed kick.

"And he had given me the cow," Mrs. Latches told Judge Jonas.

"I did not," retorted Kernizowski. "I just told her she could milk it once in a while. And I didn't kick her off the stool. The cow did."

It appeared there was also some dispute over the ownership of the cabbages and radishes in Kernizowski's back yard. Judge Jonas continued the case to June 30 and advised them to agree out of court.

Hangs Himself on Evanston Pier; Note Blames Women

Levi B. Kinman, 37 years old, of Macomb, Ill., yesterday committed suicide by hanging himself from the piling of a pier near Calvary beach, Evanston. A note found in his pocket blamed two women for his act. Kinman's estranged wife lives at 7742 Haskins avenue. She said she did not know the women mentioned in the note. Army discharge papers and a bonus certificate calling for $525 were found in Kinman's pockets.

STANDARD OIL OF N. J. ADOPTS FIVE DAY WEEK

Makes Move to Increase Employment.

New York, June 14.—[Special.]—In an effort to create more jobs as a part of its contribution to the employment situation and at the same time to give the personnel of its organization "all practicable insurance of continued employment," the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey today announced that, effective July 1, it would adopt a 40 hour week throughout its entire domestic operations.

The readjustment in hours of work does not involve a reduction in the hourly rate of pay, which will continue on the basis of time actually worked, as heretofore. Salaried employés, however, now on a 5½ day schedule will go on a 5 day basis, with a reduction in pay of one-eleventh. This reduction to a 5 day basis does not affect salaries of $100 or less per month, nor result in a reduction below $100 for those now receiving more than that amount.

President Explains Plan.

"We are confident," W. C. Teagle, president, said in a letter to employés, "that the employés throughout the entire organization appreciate that the company cannot carry on as though business were not undergoing a serious downward revision, and they will prefer this part time and part pay schedule to a horizontal salary reduction. Fortunately, at the time this step is deemed advisable, living costs have been reduced in every part of the country, according to the latest reliable figures, so 80 cents will purchase as much today as a dollar did in 1926.

"It is expected," Mr. Teagle continued, "that this program will result in giving work to a substantial number of those now out of employment and thus be a real contribution by the company and its present employés toward the solution of one of the most serious problems now confronting the country."

Will Increase Employés.

The amount of the total wage and salary disbursement to others than those in the management group will not be substantially affected, it was explained by the officials of the company. The domestic pay roll, which amounts to approximately $92,000,000 yearly, will be distributed among more employés than are now receiving it. Certain departments will need more men as a result of the readjustment, it was said. The reduction in the salaries of the management group will be the only direct saving.

Although the readjustment in working hours applies only to domestic operation, the question of extending it to the foreign departments of the company is being considered.

News of the Republican National Convention will be broadcast through our loud-speaker system in the Narcissus Room, Seventh Floor, North, Wabash, through the luncheon and tea hours. Radios also have been installed in the Men's Grill, Sixth Floor, The Store for Men, and the Reading, Writing and Rest Rooms, Third Floor, North, State.

"THE TALE OF 31,680 SHIRTS"

"We should like to tell you 'The Tale of the Shirt,'" writes Maurice L. Rothschild.

"We put on a sale last Monday of 50,000 shirts at 77c—and on Monday we sold—by actual count—31,680 shirts. These were advertised on Sunday exclusively in The Tribune.

"We received 5,700 orders over the telephone and had to keep fifteen people taking telephone orders Sunday night until 10 o'clock. In addition, we received 1,500 mail orders. No orders were accepted for less than two, and many were for a dozen or more.

"We think it was a wonderful value attainment, and again reaffirms our conviction regarding the power of the Tribune."

STATE WITNESS AIDS LIGHTING TRIAL DEFENSE

5 Accused of $200,000 Contract Frauds.

Francis O'Donnell, deputy commissioner of gas and electricity, was called yesterday as the first witness for the state in the trial of four suspended city employés and an electrical contractor on charges of defrauding the city of $200,000 in street lighting contracts. His testimony was turned to the aid of the defendants under cross-examination by Attorney J. Fred Reeves, in the Criminal court of Judge John Prystalski.

FRANCIS M. O'DONNELL.

The state had charged in opening statements that specifications had been ignored and that 6,905 light posts installed under the contract were unsafe. Questioned by Attorney Reeves, O'Donnell said the job looked to him as though it had been done according to specifications, and that inspectors had approved the work. His statement that the job looked hurried, he said, was not meant as criticism, as the contract called for completion in six months.

Most of Work Underground.

Prosecutor Charles E. Lounsbury brought out that most of the work was underground and personal observation would fail to determine whether the equipment was proper or improper.

The defendants are Harry A. Johnson, president of the Electrical Contracting company, and the four former city employés, John Muerling, engineer; Eugene A. Quinn, inspector; Frank Wargoske, stock keeper, and Joseph Duffy, a custodian.

Outlines State Charges.

The defense had waived an opening statement after Prosecutor Lounsbury outlined briefly the charges of the state. Evidence will show, the prosecutor said, that Muerling, Quinn, Wargoske, and Duffy drew checks totaling $1,450 from the Electrical Contracting company. Using aliases, they were carried on the contractor's pay roll at $300 a month for the first four months of construction, and $250 for the last month of the job, he said. In return the four city employés failed to enforce specification requirements, the prosecutor said. He also charged that cables and transformers were taken from a city warehouse at Johnson's order and not returned.

No engineer's estimate was submitted on materials to be used before the conract was let and subcontracts were let without authority, contrary to the terms of the contract, Prosecutor Lounsbury told the court.

BRITISH-VATICAN DISPUTE ISSUE IN MALTA ELECTION

VALETTA, Island of Malta, June 14.—(AP)—Counting of ballots in Malta's general election, intended to settle a party strife that involved the government of the British empire and the Vatican, was under way today. The voting began Saturday and ended last night.

The elections were to have been held two years ago this month, but were postponed following a controversy which began when supporters of Lord Strickland's Constitutionalist ministry charged the Roman Catholic clergy with unduly influencing their followers.

A report by a British royal commission last February supported the Catholics to the extent of labeling Lord Strickland as a "dominating and aggressive force with a manner calculated to cause irritation and annoyance." The report was followed by an apology from Lord Strickland to the Catholic church and by the bishops withdrawing a pastoral letter in which they urged the Catholic electorate not to vote for the Constitutional party.

Casts Bread Upon Waters and Catches Soused Fish

Batavia, O., June 14.—[Special.]—Leo Feinstein fished and fished and got nary a bite. He soaked doughballs in home brew and alcohol. These he cast upon the waters and soon the surface was covered with gars and goggle-eyes, suckers and sunfish, mud cats and blue cats, all frolicking or fighting. Leo was scooping them up with a seine when a game warden came along. A justice of the peace fined him $50, not for corrupting the morals of the fish, but for illegal seining.

SCHOOL BOARD TO PAY $2,046,000 ON BONDS, INTEREST

Supt. Bogan Proposes $72,500 Saving.

The board of education will pay out $2,046,000 for bond redemption and interest by July 1, the date the obligations fall due, it was announced yesterday afternoon by Lewis E. Myers, president. The funds include receipts from the sale to the city earlier in the day of $200,000 worth of tax anticipation warrants and cash already on hand.

The bonds are of the 1930 revolving fund, which established a working cash fund for the school board. Of the cash to be turned over $1,500,000 will be applied to the principal and $546,000 for interest.

At the same time Supt. William J. Bogan announced that he will propose at the board meeting this afternoon a plan for the saving of $92,500 through closing and combining schools. He also will propose expenditure of $20,000 for a new junior high school. This would reduce the net saving to $72,500.

Would Close Two Schools.

Mr. Bogan will ask for authority to close the Dore and Burroughs elementary schools to effect a saving of $81,500. The recent report of Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university recommended that both buildings be abandoned because of the rapid decrease of school membership in the last ten years. The superintendent declared that pupils could be absorbed in nearby schools.

Another suggestion will be to combine the Andersen and Wells schools into one school to be known as the Andersen elementary school. Twenty-four portables house the Wells school on the Andersen school playground while the Wells Junior High school is being constructed. Through the combination four portables would be released and a saving of $4,000 effected.

Attendance Declines.

By making the Haven and Webster elementary schools branches, respectively, of the Drake and Keith elementary schools, Mr. Bogan said a saving of $7,000 could be made. The Haven school enrollment fell from 1,020 in 1922 to 378 in 1932, and the number of pupils at the Webster school dropped from 745 in 1922 to 526 in 1932.

Mr. Bogan also will ask that a South Division junior high school be installed in the vacant school building at 26th street and Wabash avenue to relieve congestion in the Drake, Douglas and Keith elementary schools, and the Phillips Senior High school. Operation of the new school would cost $20,000.

Other recommendations for economies were being prepared for the board meeting by Col. Howard P. Savage, business manager, and his department heads.

COUNTY TO OPEN TWO BATHING POOLS AND GOLF COURSE

Two new swimming pools and a new 18 hole golf course in the forest preserve district will be opened Saturday morning, Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, announced yesterday. The pools are the Emmett Whealan, located at Devon and Milwaukee avenues, the clay hole at 159th street and Torrence avenue. The golf course, named Indian Boundary, is at Belmont avenue and the Des Plaines river.

The Emmett Whealan pool was built with funds saved from the forest preserve corporate fund, the clay hole pool with funds from the improvement fund, established through a bond issue. Funds for the golf course were taken from profits of the other four golf courses in the forest preserves.

GIRLS HUDDLE IN CAR AS POLICE BATTLE BANDITS

Two girls huddled in the rumble seat of an automobile last night while a policeman, standing on the running board, exchanged shots with four bandit fugitives over a chase of two miles on the south side. The girls, Miss Marion Granger, 18 years old, of 6048 South Lincoln street, and Miss Evelyn Bergman, also 18, of 6048 South Lincoln street, had been held up with Charles Markle, 22, 6048 Lincoln street, and Melvin Kersten, 23, 6127 Lincoln street, as they drove into the garage in the rear of the Markle home.

The bandits, four in number, took Markle's wrist watch and drove away in his car. Markle, the girls and Kersten drove in Kersten's automobile to the Chicago Lawn station to report the theft. As Kersten and the girls waited outside the four robbers passed in the stolen auto. Kersten summoned help and Policeman Tim O'Connell and Sergt. William Kilborn hopped on the running board of his car. Kilborn was jolted off, but O'Connell clung to the car as the pursuit got under way. The girls remained in the rumble seat. The bandits abandoned the machine in front of 3505 West 60th place and escaped.

CUMMINGS BUYS GARY RAILWAYS OF INSULL GROUP

Walter J. Cummings, president of the Chicago and Calumet District Transit company, announced yesterday that his company had purchased from the Midland Utilities company, one of the Insull group, the Gary Railways company. The railway company represents an investment of approximately 5½ million dollars and operates 83 miles of street railway and interurban tracks in Gary and leading to Hammond, East Chicago, Valparaiso, Hobart, and Crown Point.

The purchase gives the Chicago and Calumet District Transit company, acquired by Cummings a year ago from the Insull interests, control of all the local transportation facilities in Lake county, Ind. The company already operates street cars and buses in and between Hammond, East Chicago, Whiting, and Indiana Harbor, with a connecting line to Chicago.

Cummings is also head of the Chicago and West Towns Railway company, operating street cars and buses in the western suburbs of Chicago, and of the street car system in Des Moines, Ia., and is a vice president of the J. G. Brill company of Philadelphia, manufacturers of trolley cars. Charles W. Chase, president of the Gary Street Railways company since 1919, will go to Indianapolis on July 1 to head the street car system there.

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley yesterday overruled a government motion for a default judgment against Joe Grein, city sealer, in the government's libel action against malt, hops, and merchandise valued at $20,000. The government is seeking to confiscate the merchandise on the ground it was to be used in violation of the prohibition laws. When the defense opens its case today Clarence Darrow, defense attorney, will aid Attorney William F. Waugh in the presentation of evidence. Grein will take the stand in his own behalf.

SUPREME COURT AGAIN UPHOLDS 1929 TAX ROLL

The Illinois Supreme court again upheld the validity of the 1929 tax roll in Cook county yesterday at Springfield when it denied a rehearing on the Bistor case which attacked the levy.

The court had previously dismissed the suit, filed by the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers. The suit attacked the 1929 levy on the charge that real estate had been overassessed through failure to place large amounts of personal property on the tax rolls. Practically the same contentions which were overruled by the Supreme court in the Bistor case are made in an 8,000 page bill attacking the 1930 levy, filed recently in the Circuit court by the taxpayers' association.

The Supreme court also denied Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg a rehearing in the proceeding in which the court had previously held that he acted without jurisdiction in impaneling a special grand jury during the primary campaign in April.

HITLERITES TELL GERMANY WHAT THEY ARE AFTER

Ready to Defend Political and Social Liberty.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 14.—"We do not want war, but we are not afraid of it if it is necessary to defend German political and social freedom," Gregor Strasser, one of Adolf Hitlers lieutenants, told Germany over the radio tonight and one day after the regulation denying Nazis the use of the government controlled broadcast system had been lifted.

The governments of Bavaria and Württemberg refused to permit the Munich and Stuttgart stations to relay the address. So did Austria.

"We Hitlerites do not favor civil nor class hatred," Strasser said. "We do not want to persecute the Jews, but we will not allow Jews and Jewish capitalists to pull wires behind the scenes."

Explains National Socialism.

He explained that National Socialism, Hitler's own slogan, means state control of railways, traffic and utility companies, the liberation of farmers, and the high ideals of the old time Prussian officers and officials. The movement, he said, arose as a protest against making a machine of man.

"We propose to revise the Versailles treaty, abolish the 'war guilt lie,' and to restore Germany's honor. We do not favor senseless arming at any cost. We want other nations to keep their sacred promises to disarm. If they do not, then we must be entitled to take the measures necessary for our defense."

Among the demands of the movement he listed universal military training and obligatory labor.

New Tax Decree Signed.

The Nazi leader's speech climaxed a day of political events, featured by the imposition of Chancellor Franz von Papen's emergency tax decree and which was signed by President Paul von Hindenburg.

The republicans denounced the Von Papen decree, stating that it places the bulk of financial sacrifices on the working classes and the unemployed. The decree places a tax on practically all who have any sort of a job, restores the tax on salt, and cuts all dole payments and other forms of relief.

The communists demonstrated against the "heaviest tax burden in the history of the reich," but were quickly dispersed by the police.

In a statement explaining the new measure the chancellor said that the government intends to put Germany's economy on a rational basis by "eliminating artificial experiments."

"We will do everything possible, besides encouraging the exchange of goods between states, to lead Germany's economy gradually back to recovery by a determined policy of encouraging the domestic market, especially by measures in the field of homesteading and farm improvement and by utilizing idle labor," he said.

Vienna Nazis Fight Police.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, June 14.—Enraged because the government managed broadcasting system refused to relay today's speech of Gregor Strasser, Berlin Nazi leader, 2,000 Austrian Nazis swarmed into Kaertnerstrasse, Vienna's main boulevard. Cafés and restaurants were closed. Mounted police tried to disperse the crowd. Chief of Police Driak ordered the boulevard closed. Police clashed with the demonstrators and twelve Nazis were arrested.

ROMAN GOVERNOR TO VISIT POPE; 1ST TIME SINCE 1870

ROME, June 14.—(AP)—A governor of Rome will visit the pope for the first time since the pontiffs in 1870 became voluntary "prisoners in the Vatican" when Prince Boncompagni Ludovisi calls on Pope Pius XI. at noon tomorrow.

The call is one of a series of visits of officials following the reconciliation of the church and state and the pope's reception of Premier Mussolini on Feb. 11.

The governor's father, Ugo Boncompagni Ludovisi, is a monsignor, having entered the priesthood after the death of his wife in 1895.

ENGLAND ORDERS SIFT OF SUICIDE IN LINDY CASE

Reveal Miss Sharpe's Marriage.

New York, June 14.—[Special.]—Edward Henry Gerald Shepherd, acting consul general in New York for Great Britain, was instructed today by the foreign office in London to submit a report on the death of Miss Violet Sharpe, maid who committed suicide last Friday in the home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow in Englewood, N. J.

Miss Sharpe was one of the twenty-nine servants in the Morrow-Lindbergh homes who had been questioned since the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby on March 1. The theory has been expressed in some quarters that repeated sessions with the police may have unnerved Miss Sharpe to the point that she took poison.

Mr. Shepherd, it is understood, will interview all members of the Morrow household who have any direct knowledge of the case. The report will in all probability also contain a summary of editorial comment on the girl's death. Mr. Shepherd plans to attend the burial of Miss Sharpe in Brookside cemetery in Englewood, tomorrow.

Convinced Girl Was Innocent.

Mrs. Morrow, her daughter, Constance, and her son, Dwight Morrow Jr., sailed for Europe tonight. It is understood Mr. Shepherd saw her before she left. Friends of Mrs. Morrow have said that, while she was convinced Miss Sharpe was innocent of any connection with the kidnaping, she did not attribute the girl's death to "third degree" police methods.

When Gov. A. Harry Moore was informed that the foreign office had asked for a report, he said that "British government representatives will be given the opportunity to examine any witnesses and go over records if they desire. Everything will be made available to them."

Col. Lindbergh was present at some of the times when Miss Sharpe was being questioned, according to transcript of the girl's testimony released by the New Jersey state police.

The official stand in the matter is that Miss Sharpe was treated kindly, but that she told conflicting stories of her movements the night of the kidnaping, that she failed to reveal the identity of the man who was her escort on that night and that she identified a photograph of Ernest Brinkert of New Rochelle as the man, only to have another Ernest—Earnest Miller of Closter, N. J., come forward to admit he was the one.

Bares Nurse's Marriage.

The death certificate filed today in Englewood said that Violet Sharpe was married but that her husband was "unknown." Word came from England last night that the dead girl's sister had revealed there that she was married to a Londoner named George Payne, just before she left England two and a half years ago. It was a secret between the sisters. Miss Sharpe's parents did not know of it. It was not generally known in the Morrow household, either, although there was some talk of her having lost a husband in the war.

OAK PARK TO USE WARRANTS TODAY TO MEET PAY ROLL

Oak Park, described as the richest large village in the world, will use tax anticipation warrants for the first time in meeting its bi-weekly pay roll today. There are 300 employés, excluding teachers, drawing a total pay of $24,000.

Ted R. Leth, village controller, said that the authorities expect to pay in warrants only every other pay day. Alternate pay days, he said, will be met with cash. The warrants will be in denominations of $12.50, $20, and $25.

Controller Leth said that the use of warrants in paying was necessitated by delinquent tax payments, directly traceable to the 1928 assessment. Oak Park's finances are in sound condition, he explained, and expenses have been kept well within the budget. The village, he said, has been operating on borrowed money.

KINGFISH SENDS FOR COHORTS TO OUTHOLLER FOES

Tax Protesters Swamped by Pay Rollers.

New Orleans, La., June 14.—[Special.]—Paul Revere may have been a great rider, but he couldn't cover the ground of the night riders sent out last night and early this morning by Senator Huey P. Long, Louisiana's Kingfish.

Taxpayers of Louisiana met in the state capital at Baton Rouge today to protest against increased taxation as proposed through Gov. O. K. Allen, backed by Senator Long. As a matter of fact, the Kingfish has drawn all of the tax bills and taken charge of their passage through the legislature which he controls.

More than a thousand citizens in opposition to the Long bills marched on the state capital and there was talk by several speakers of pistols and tar and feathers. Speakers demanded that the people be heard. News of this proposed protest had gone all over the state following meetings in all of the parishes.

Calls in His Cohorts.

Late last night riders visited Long backers in New Orleans and all over the state and told them that orders had been given to be in Baton Rouge today and make a counter demonstration against those opposing the policies of the Kingfish.

More than 2,000 jobholders in New Orleans were ordered to the state capital. They left in two 12 coach trains and by automobile. A squad of New Orleans police with tear gas bombs and armed were rushed in automobiles to Baton Rouge. Official orders were given for them to go by Senior Police Captain Capo. He says he don't know who gave the orders. The Kingfish in Baton Rouge said that the police came there to be heard on police pension matters.

State highway policemen were also rushed to the state capital. They didn't know why they came or who ordered them to come.

"The newspapers gave such a big play to the proposed meeting of taxpayers opposed to my tax programs," Long said, "that my friends thought there was going to be a big barbecue here, and you know how they like to attend barbecue's where there is plenty of good eating."

Band Heads Delegation.

When the New Orleans delegation reached Baton Rouge, they marched through the state capital carrying banners inscribed with such words as: "We are friends of Senator Long." "We are for Louisiana." They were led by a band. When the tax hearing got under way those opposed to the senators were almost crowded out of the building. Members of the New Orleans delegation, when asked why they went to Baton Rouge, replied: "Because we were ordered to."

These were men employed by the dock board, the levee board, the state highway commission, the state board of health, and all other boards, all appointees of Long. At the hearing this afternoon speakers from each parish demanded that the legislators cut salaries and reduce taxes. Their speeches were almost drowned out by backers of the administration policies as drawn by the Kingfish.

Up in Shreveport delegates from every parish in this state, led by three ex-governors, Jared Y. Sanders, John M. Parker, and Ruffin G. Pleasant, at one of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held in Louisiana picked delegates to the Democratic national convention, which will meet in Chicago.

These were in opposition to those named by the state central committee at the dictation of Senator Long. Speakers denounced Long as a traitor to Democratic principles, and John M. Parker declared that Louisiana was the worst boss ridden spot on the globe.

RANCHER, 74, HURT AND ALONE, CRAWLS HOME IN DARKNESS

Wheatland, Wyo., June 14.—[Special.]—T. J. Maus, 74, veteran of the western cattle ranges, told here tonight of his singlehanded, thirty hour struggle to obtain aid after his left leg had been broken in an automobile accident.

Maus, a widower, who lives alone on his ranch, started for town Sunday noon in his ancient automobile, so old it has but one door. Something went wrong with the steering apparatus and the machine plunged over an embankment, pinning him in the wreckage.

Inch by inch he pulled himself over the rough ground, lacerating his hands and almost tearing his trousers from his legs. At daylight Monday he crawled over the doorstep of his home. He was unable to reach a water pail, but did knock a pot of cold coffee from a table.

A neighbor visited the ranch last night, found the helpless Maus on the floor, barely conscious. He will recover.

CONVICT BANKER WHO USED GOLD ON DOORKNOBS

Court Sentences C. A. Mueller for Fraud.

Carl A. Mueller, former president of the Laramie State bank, was found guilty yesterday of making false statements to bank examiners and was sentenced to the penitentiary for from 1 to 10 years. Mueller, who is 50 years old, was a plumbing contractor before becoming a banker, and the banking house he erected at Laramie and Chicago avenues was ornately furnished with gold plated fixtures.

CARL A. MUELLER.

The trial was before Judge George Fred Rush without jury. Mueller is the third banker to be sentenced by Judge Rush since the assignment of four judges to hear only cases in which ex-bankers are defendants. Defendants accused of mishandling of bank funds have shown a preference for trials without juries, according to the prosecutor.

Rejects Plea of Error.

Mueller was found guilty of the specific omission of an item from a report made to state bank examiners on June 29, 1929. An overdraft of $38,500 was not listed and Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach sought to attribute the fact to Mueller's lack of knowledge of the banking business. Judge Rush decided the report was deliberately falsified.

In the trial of Alexander and Samuel Flower, brothers and former executives of the Roosevelt Bankers' State bank, which is being conducted before a jury in Judge Philip L. Sullivan's court, testimony was given yesterday that a $65 week employé of another concern was asked to sign an accommodation note for $37,000. W. Ellis Stewart, secretary of the Supreme Liberty Life Insurance company, testified the company had borrowed $40,000 from the Roosevelt bank and had repaid $25,000 by June 30, 1930. A report to the bank examiners of that date listed the company as owing $39,000, and the prosecutors said this entry was made to deceive the examiners.

The Flower brothers were acquitted in a former trial, which was without a jury, and this time the state demanded that a jury pass on their guilt or innocence. Mueller also was acquitted in a former trial before a jury.

Bains on Trial Today.

John Bain, former head of a chain of twelve banks that failed, and his five co-defendants will go on trial today before Judge John M. O'Connor without a jury. They are accused of conspiring to defraud the public. On Monday the court decided to permit the introduction by the state of Bain's personal records.

In Judge William J. Lindsay's court yesterday County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough was a witness in the suit to recover $884,000 of public money held in the Bain banks. The money was collected by the Bain banks from taxpayers and it is McDonough's contention it should have been paid into the treasury but inasmuch as it wasn't, the county is entitled to be given preference as a creditor. Judge Lindsay took the matter under advisement.

JUDGES ORDER USE OF FEES TO PAY EXTRA HELP

Members of the county board finance committee clashed yesterday with Judge Denis E. Sullivan, acting chief justice of the Superior court, when he informed them that the judges of the court have authorized Frank V. Zintak, its clerk, to employ five more deputy clerks than are provided by the county budget.

Clerk Zintak has been instructed to pay the extra clerks out of the fee collections of his office if the county board refuses to approve their pay roll, Judge Sullivan said.

"It's your own fault," he told the commissioners. "The judges told you that we need these people and have to have them to do business."

Commissioner Amelia Sears called the judges' action illegal because all of the fees under the law must go into the corporate fund. "I've yet to see the time when the judges helped in any matter of economy," she declared.

Commissioner Maurice Kavanagh, chairman of the finance committee, said the board will take no action until a pay roll is presented for the extra help.

SPAIN'S PREMIER WINS CONFIDENCE VOTE BY 273 TO 0

MADRID, Spain, June 14.—(AP)—Premier Manuel Azana suddenly demanded and got a vote of confidence in the national assembly tonight in debate on charges that a member of his cabinet had granted an illegal tobacco concession. The vote was 273 to nothing, the opposition declining to vote.

Indalecio Prieto, minister of public works and former finance minister, was accused in the assembly several days ago of having entered into an illegal arrangement with a French concern after nullifying a tobacco concession of Juan March, wealthy Spaniard.

March recently was expelled from the assembly for "moral incompatibility" after charges of bribery were brought against him.

Emmerson Grants Death Stay to Negro Slayer

Springfield, Ill., June 14.—(AP)—A reprieve staying the death sentence pronounced against James Smith, East St. Louis Negro, for the slaying of a storekeeper in a holdup, was granted by Gov. Emmerson today. The reprieve stays execution of the sentence until Aug. 19.

The Wet Stampede is a FLOP

If you believe the headlines, the Wets are stampeding all the time, but wet stampedes seem to get only as far as the headlines. Something always happens. Way back in '28 the Wets went on a great stampede, but when Election Day was over it seems they were headed in the wrong direction. Fifty-two times since 1920 the Wets tried to stampede the 18th Amendment out of the Constitution, by means of court decisions, and fifty-two times Wet stampedes failed. Think back over the big headlines of the past years. How many times did the Wet press intimate that the President had been stampeded into the Wet column? These stampedes failed again and again.

This wet hip-hip-hurrah is simply a confession that the high-salaried wet organizers have failed. Their years' sowing of propaganda and bunk-logic flowers only in the headlines. When the votes are counted their effort has melted like the snows of yesteryear. The Wet professional agitators, despite most heroic efforts, only succeeded in getting 17.16 per cent of the 20,000,000 Literary Digest poll ballot returns marked for the Wets. The great Wet stampede failed by a large percentage. Do you recall the promised stampede of last month when all Congress was going wet? The beer-for-revenue bill was defeated in the Senate 60 to 24. In the House a similar bill was defeated 228 to 169. What a flop this wet stampede was!

Last year the Wets promised to stampede 20 states from the dry enforcement column to the wet nullification column. Each of these 20 stampedes failed. Abraham Lincoln said "Liquor has many defenders but no defense." This great truism explains the success of the salaried Wets in getting so many mouths wagging, but producing so little logic. Booze dollars have made possible the headline stampedes, but votes have made the stampedes impossible.

Of course, the rich Wets would like to shove their tax burdens onto the shoulders of the masses by means of a beer tax. This might save the millionaire Wets' millions, but the masses will not be bunked into paying taxes now paid by the rich. But these millionaires are short sighted, because if liquor is legalized their incomes will be reduced more than their taxes.[1] The stampede to convince the public that prosperity can be brought back by beer is as ridiculous as the soak-the-poor beer tax idea. The Wets claim that there is more drinking now than before Prohibition. Then they claim that legalized beer would put men back to work. Even a Russian Cossack cannot ride two horses going in the opposite directions. This is what the wet "logic" tries to do.[2]

Prohibition is simply a method of reducing the consumption of liquor. It has outlawed the liquor traffic, closed 200,000 saloons, abolished liquor advertising and saved the masses more than $20,000,000,000. Prohibition has reduced drinking by 65 per cent.[3] Prohibition has reduced crime substantially.[4] Prohibition has brought about a decided decrease in alcoholic diseases and death.[5] The chief thing that handicaps Prohibition repeal, as Will Rogers said, is that the wrong people are for it.

Let's have the TRUTH about Prohibition

(1) The Wets claim that beer taxed three cents a bottle would produce $1,000,000,000 a year revenue. To raise this fabulous revenue would require a consumption of 12½ gallons of beer daily by every family in states formerly permitting the sale of beer. Government records show that letters were used by millionaires in an effort to organize against Prohibition, pointing out that the income from a beer tax would of necessity reduce the millionaires' income tax and, therefore, would save them millions of dollars each year.

(2) The Department of Commerce reported to the Senate, January 11, 1932, that in 1914 only 86,000 men were employed in the manufacture of liquor. The Wets claim that more liquor is being dispensed now. Of course, that is foolish, but if only one-third as much is being consumed now as before Prohibition, in all probability as many men are employed in producing liquor as in 1914. For every million dollars invested, the brewers employed 78 wage earners, while $1,000,000 in other industries averaged 318 workers. Money spent by the masses for booze cannot buy shoes nor any other legitimate commodity, and for every man hired by an increased production of beer at least three would be fired by the industries that would lose the beer money.

(3) The Government measured the amount of hops, corn sugar, rye, barley, etc., raised and imported, subtracted the amounts used in known legal enterprises, and reported the amount of raw material left would make less than a third of the former liquor consumption.—Colonel Woodcock's testimony before subcommittee of House Appropriations Committee, January 21, 1932. (Smuggled liquor totals, liberally computed, were included.)

U. S. Bureau of Census records, 1910 to 1928, prove crime rate decline almost 40%, even with added arrests for "new laws" on drugs, liquor and motor traffic.

(4) New York crime figures show there were more arrests in pre-prohibition years than since, despite tremendous population increase since then; homicide rate was 31% greater, felonies were 11% greater, drunkenness was 129% greater in wet years.

Alexander G. Jamie, director Chicago's Secret Six: "Prohibition violation crimes in the last year or two have shrunk to a size that can no longer command the chief attention of the forces waging war on the underworld; several active criminal industries bring more revenue than bootlegging to the underworld.

"Alcohol links the lowest elements of the underworld with the millionaires financing the fight to overthrow prohibition and lower their taxes . . . having the taxes come from the wives and children of the workingmen, who would spend their wages in saloons as they did before prohibition.

"Four per cent beer will not do away with the criminal use of the machine gun, bomb, acid vial, torch, and the quick getaway afforded by auto and airplane."

(5) The Census Bureau figures dispel beyond all argument the claim that prohibition has brought an increase in alcoholic diseases and deaths. Quite the opposite, they show a decided decrease in alcoholic diseases and deaths.

According to Census Bureau figures, the death rate from alcoholism has averaged 42% lower since prohibition than it did during eight years before prohibition. The death rate from cirrhosis of the liver has been 41% less, and that from Bright's disease has been 10% less during the same period.

Deaths from alcoholism, U. S. Government figures, are an example. Here they are for every 100,000 of population:

Z. T. MILLER, 62, INSURANCE MAN, KILLED IN AUTO

County's Toll for 1932 Passes 500 Mark.

Zachary T. Miller, 62 years old, vice president of the Washington Fidelity National Insurance company, 1737 Howard street, was fatally injured, and three others, including his daughter-in-law and his granddaughter were hurt, one seriously, in an automobile collision in Niles Center last night.

Miller and the others, Mrs. Mary E. Miller, 32 years old; Barbara Miller, 2, and Gerald Partch, 23, of 5317 North Kedzie avenue, driver of the other car, were taken to St. Francis' hospital in Evanston, where Miller died. His daughter-in-law and granddaughter were not seriously hurt, but physicians said Partch may die of a skull fracture.

Both Machines Overturn.

The Millers were driving east in Main street, Niles Center, toward their home at 7639 Eastlake terrace, when Partch, westbound in the same thoroughfare, at Crawford avenue, appeared to lose control of his automobile, police said, and hit the Millers' auto. Both cars overturned.

Mr. Miller's death and four others increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 503. The other victims:

Mrs. Mina Fifer, 72 years old, 2600 Kimball avenue. Hurt in a collision Sunday in which her son, Jacob, was killed. Died at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Loretta Fee, 9 years old, 5028 South Union avenue. Died of injuries suffered Sunday when she was struck by a hit and run driver at Halsted street and 50th place.

Adeline Delgiudice, 7 years old, 1016 North Monticello avenue. Killed last night at Augusta boulevard and Monticello avenue by the car of Arthur Peterson, 21, of 2835 North Kilbourn avenue.

Peter Intrieri, 25 years old, of 918 South Springfield avenue, a clerk in the federal district attorney's office, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by Judge Francis Allegretti in Felony court yesterday. It is charged that he fatally injured Paul Olefsky, 25, owner of a Wilmette fruit store, April 13, and sped away. Intrieri surrendered the following day, saying he did not know he had struck any one.

WANT ADS CARRY 3 MESSAGES FOR FUGITIVE BANKER

Pennell, former auditor and assistant cashier of the People's Trust and Savings bank, 32 North Michigan avenue, fled last Friday shortly before embezzlements of $32,040 were discovered.

"C. L. P.: Will not negotiate in your absence nor can any promise be made," read the ad signed by E. A. Hintz, cashier of the bank which went into liquidation the day Pennell disappeared. Mr. Hintz said he had received an indirect message from Pennell and the ad was his reply.

"Get in touch with Skinny Mack at once. Say no more," read another message signed by "Angeline." Officials of the bonding company seeking Pennell said the "Skinny Mack" might refer to Attorney Frank A. McDonell, a well known practitioner of criminal law.

The third message, signed "Mae," presumably a relative, read: "Remain where you are and you will hear from me later."

Pennell, who is 43 years old, lived with his wife and two children at 6621 North Ashland avenue. He had been employed by the bank for 25 years and his salary was $6,300 a year.

FRIEND OF WIFE ADMITS SLUGGING LEGION LEADER

County Officer Likely to Die from Beating.

Oakland, Cal., June 14.—[Special.]—Claude Forbes, 25, confessed tonight to the mysterious slugging of Harry E. Nelson, Alemeda county deputy assessor and leader in American Legion affairs, according to the announcement of police.

Forbes and Nelson's estranged wife, Bessie, both of whom disappeared from the Nelson home May 31, were arrested in Santa Cruz, Cal., earlier today. Police assigned Forbes' and Mrs. Nelson's desire to collect the $40,000 insurance carried by Nelson as the motive for the beating.

Nelson Likely to Die.

Nelson, 46, and an infantry lieutenant in the famed "Lost Battalion" in the world war, was struck five times with a club as he lay asleep in his Oakland home. His skull was fractured and little hope is held for his recovery. He has not regained consciousness.

Nelson was found by his mother-in-law, Mrs. May Howlett, who lived at his home, and by Mrs. Muriel Forbes, wife of the man arrested in Mrs. Nelson's company. Mrs. Forbes is housekeeper at the Nelson home. Although both women spent the night in the home, both told police they had heard no sound of a struggle or any outcry.

Wife Hears of Attack by Radio.

Mrs. Nelson learned of her husband's assault through listening to a radio broadcast. She immediately telephoned her mother, Mrs. Howlett, who informed police of her daughter's whereabouts.

Santa Cruz police said Forbes had returned to Mrs. Nelson this morning after an absence of two days.

PHYSICIAN TELLS OF SPYING ON WIFE AND FRIEND

Dr. George Carl Fisher Accuses Young Mate.

Dr. George Carl Fisher, 7558 Kingston avenue, told Judge Joseph Sabath yesterday in the Superior court how he perched on a log one chilly evening last January and peeked through a bedroom window at Mrs. Miriam Chickering Fisher, whom he is suing for divorce, and a male friend.

As he watched them, Dr. Fisher stated, he slipped off the log. A friend who was with him climbed up, looked inside, and then took his revolver away from him, the physician testified.

Mrs. Fisher, who now lives with her mother at 7020 Chappel avenue, has a cross-bill pending, charging cruelty. She is 22 years younger than her husband, and is a niece of Clifford Chickering of Pasadena, Cal., retired president of the Chickering Brothers' Piano company.

Doctor Marries Patient.

Dr. Fisher met his present wife when she came to him as a patient in 1924, he testified. They were married in 1928 and, at her request, he said, he resigned his post on the faculty of the Northwestern university medical school that he might pass more time with her. In March, 1931, she went to California, and upon her return in July was cold and indifferent to him, Dr. Fisher charges.

Shortly after that, he said, he became suspicious of her friendship with John Revelle, whom he identified as "a bosom friend of mine for many years." Revelle is married and lives at 6949 Merrill avenue, he testified.

"I first became suspicious when I saw them patting each other under the table at parties at the Beachview club," he said.

His attorney, Ben Davis, then asked if he recalled any occurrences on Jan. 10, 1932.

"I certainly do," replied Dr. Fisher. "My wife told me she was going to her sister's bungalow at 8454 Blackstone avenue to care for her fierce police dogs. She was gone all afternoon and at 7 o'clock she telephoned me and told me that she was still busy. I drove to the bungalow with a patient, Reginald Fisk." He then told of seeing his wife and Revelle together.

Wife Objects to "Snooping."

"Later," he said, "my wife came out, and I confronted her and said, 'I trust you had a pleasant time?' She brushed past me and drove hurriedly away. She was at home when I got there and she told me, 'I think that's the dirtiest trick I ever heard of, for a husband to snoop on his wife.'"

On March 15, Dr. Fisher said, his wife called him on the telephone and made a date with him to play bridge that evening at the Beachview club, which is at 1725 East 53d street. She did not appear and when he returned home, he charged, he found that she had removed all of the furniture from the apartment except his bed, desk and a single chair.

Judge Sabath ordered attorneys to attempt to settle the case out of court. If they are unsuccessful, the testimony will be resumed today.

JAP PARLIAMENT APPROVES BILL TO INFLATE YEN

TOKIO, June 14.—(AP)—Parliament today completed the tasks for which it was convoked in special session recently. It appropriated funds for the support of the army campaign in Manchuria during the remainder of this year, increased several tariff schedules and enacted new currency control legislation.

The lower house unanimously adopted a joint resolution, presented by the Seiyukai and Minseito parties, urging the government to recognize the new Pu-Yi régime in Manchuria immediately. The session will be adjourned at a formal session tomorrow.

The new currency control bills give the government wide powers to prevent the flight of capital abroad, raise the limit of the Bank of Japan's note issue to 800,000,000 yen [$250,000,000 at current rate of exchange] and permit currency inflation.

Cool Summer Frocks Reach Shops Each Day

Designers Remember All Types of Persons.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THEY arrive with commendable regularity every morning, boxes and boxes of these crisp, cool, washable frocks that every one lives in during the summer.

Country clothes and town clothes—every body can wear them, for once in fashion history the dress designers have planned for the tall, short, plump, and not so plump shoppers, flocks of tricky little daytime frocks that flourish even more colorfully after repeated trips to the tub.

Not much change in fashion temperatures when it comes to stripes of slender silhouettes with normal waistline effects and wide shoulders . . . cottons are made simply with emphasis on belts and epaulet shoulders . . . linens are impeccably tailored and of course the first linens to find their way into your summer wardrobe are the suits and dresses which are fashioned of that new linen with a shantung texture that flatly refuses to wrinkle.

Stripes are still slanting boldly on many of the newest frocks . . . cut by a geometric genius that must be slightly cock-eyed to be able to match these dizzy V formations so deftly.

Printed linen ensembles are most effective and cool to wear . . . a lovely red and white flowered print in sheer linen has a rather short jacket with a tie belt and full sleeves that end a little above the wrist . . . white organdy cuffs and a matching organdy collar on the short sleeved frock are the only contrasts. This same costume is perfect in green and white or blue and white with white accessories and a colored linen hat.

Anybody with a stingy little clothes allowance will fall heavily for all these new "washables." They are as carefully made and designed as silk dresses last year and the year before that . . . those good looking inspirations that made you look just differently distinctive enough to justify your squandering quite a large portion of your bank balance to get . . . this summer you can safely shop for the same sort of frocks and spend much less money and have more clothes to gloat over.

Perhaps you have been hearing a lot about this seersucker stuff . . . from now on you will not only hear but see and wear some of the smartest, newest clothes, all made of this simple, quaint looking material . . . its positively uncanny, the sophistication a smart designer can achieve with this funny wrinkled fabric.

You'll look with incredulous eyes at snappy little blouses to wear with summer suits and gasp with astonishment at the intricately put together dresses that have all the fashionable flair of silk . . . and no matter how blandly unenthusiastic you may have been about seersucker, you'll be wearing it before the summer ends!

Seersucker suits may sound rural and rustic, but they are the smartest suits the city sophisticate can wear.

There is precious little information to be added to the shopper's knowledge about the many models of piqué, for by this time every one knows that piqué goes everywhere and anywhere from early dawn till dark, for spectator and active sports, for town shopping, for country invasions, for afternoon garden parties, and the newest things under a midnight moon are the delectably pastel tinted evening dresses of piquantly perfect piqué, made with shoulder caps of fringed piqué flowers or hung with leis of frilled piqué flowers.

There's no doubt in any shopper's mind that cotton has successfully captured the town.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan Married Fifty Years Today

Children and Grandchildren to Be Present at Dinner; Friends Send Congratulations.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NO reception has been planned to mark the fiftieth wedding anniversary of the Frank G. Logans because Mrs. Logan's health has not been of the best this last year, but that will not prevent a host of friends from taking or sending their good wishes and congratulations to this dearly loved couple today.

Only the family has been invited to dine with the bride and groom of fifty years ago, but since the Logans have four children and a number of grandchildren . . . and even great-grandchildren, although none of them are in Chicago . . . there will be a good sized company at the table tonight.

One son, Stuart, lives in Chicago, and he and his wife and two daughters, Shirley and Loraine, will be there; another son, Waldo, arrives from his home in Los Angeles this morning; a third son, Spencer, and his wife and two children, Mimi and Frank, came yesterday from Mamaroneck, N. Y., for the celebration; and the fourth son, Howard, and his daughter, Josephine, also came from New York to be with the Logans today.

The only daughter, Mrs. Charles A. Munroe [Rhea Logan], and Mr. Munroe are expected to arrive today from the east. They were in New York for the wedding yesterday of Miss Louise Boone and Thomas G. Terbell, at which three of the Logans' grandchildren, Mrs. Joseph B. Terbell [Phoebe Logan, daughter of Stuart Logan], Mrs. Charles A. Moore Jr. [Rhea Munroe] and Mrs. Herbert Lloyd [Josephine Munroe] were present, Mrs. Terbell being the matron of honor and her husband best man. Mrs. Logan does not expect that any of these granddaughters or their babies will be here for the golden wedding celebration.

Wedding Dress of Daughter.

Today Mrs. Logan is wearing her daughter's wedding dress, a lovely white satin gown made in princess style, worn when the former Rhea Logan became the bride of Charles A. Munroe on Aug. 20, 1907, at the Logans' summer place at Rowayton, Conn. The lace gown that Josephine Hancock wore when she was married to Frank A. Logan fifty years ago is not a good fit for Mrs. Logan today, although she still is slender and handsome.

The book of Mrs. Logan's verse, "Light and Shadows," that is to be published late in August, will contain poems written over a period of many years, although none of them has ever appeared in print. One of the shorter but appealing verses is entitled "Weep My Soul Away" and is as follows:

"I cannot afford to cry
Else I would weep my soul away.
I dare not smile
Lest vengeful things
Accuse me of tempting fate.
So, tense, with bated breath,
I look on life,
Uncompromising and afraid."

Social Affairs of Convention.

Convention notes—Mrs. Charles H. Swift, whose interest in politics has hitherto been passive, seemed to be having as much fun at the opening session yesterday morning as she does at the opera or a concert.

Wearing a pretty, cool looking black and white print dress and a wide black straw hat over her blonde curly hair, she arrived early and gave rapt attention to every word of the long keynote speech.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills and another couple were seen lunching together after the session at the Blackstone hotel, where, by the way, there is a clever captain who supplies the curious ones with the names of all the notables lunching there.

Other decorative ladies at the convention were Miss Mary Dawes, daughter of the Henry M. Daweses, who wore a trim navy blue suit and a small blue sailor hat with a floating face veil; Mrs. John A. Stevenson, in a black crêpe dress with a plaited shoulder cape and a tiny turban; Mrs. Freeman Hinkley, all in beige; Mrs. Orville Taylor, in a soft red dress and black hat, and Mrs. James Ward Thorne, wearing a black silk suit with a printed blouse.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn gave a large luncheon at the Casino after the session, their guests including Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Doak, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Whigham, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn, and Mr. and Mrs. Reeve Schley. Mrs. Ellis A. Yost and Mrs. Alvin T. Hert were invited to the Strawns' party, but couldn't get to the Casino because of official business.

Other social affairs for convention visitors yesterday were a luncheon given by Mrs. John Nef at the Arts club for Mrs. Frank Vanderlip of New York, the Austin Niblacks' small dinner party for their house guest, Mrs. Norman Whitehouse of New York, at their Lake Forest residence, and Miss Marie Rozet's tea for Mr. and Mrs. Ogden L. Mills at the La Salle street residence of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William Prescott Hunt. Mrs. Mills is a cousin of Miss Rozet and Mrs. Hunt.

Only about a dozen guests were invited to meet Mr. and Mrs. Mills at the tea and we're told that the secretary of the treasury and his wife have not accepted any other invitations for the week.

About 100 guests have been invited to the dinner that Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn are giving tonight at the Casino for their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Whigham and Miss Sybil Whigham of New York.

Society at Hurley Dinner.

Such a gathering of the clans as there was last night at the Stevens at the dinner given by the Woman's National Republican Club of Chicago for Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley—Republicans from all the camps, and even Democrats!

Those at table with the Hurleys and Mrs. Jacob Baur, president of the club, who presided, included Gov. and Mrs. Emmerson, Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling, Mrs. George A. Dean, Miss Martha McClure, James Francis Burke, Daniel E. Pomeroy, Max Epstein, whose guests the Hurleys are during their stay in Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Hillies, Mrs. Worthington Scranton, C. Bascom Slemp, Mrs. Guy B. Gannett, Ray Benjamin, Everett Sanders, Mrs. Harry E. Thomas, Charles S. Dewey, Walter H. Newton, Admiral and Mrs. Crosley, Gen. and Mrs. Frank S. Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahnke, Mrs. W. E. Hull, and Dean Richmond. And a few tables away were some of our leading Democrats: Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and a party of friends, and at another table was Mrs. George Bass, leader of the pre-convention Roosevelt women's activities in Chicago.

It was a gay and colorful party, the ballroom decorated with the flags of all the states and on each table was a bouquet of red and white peonies and blue larkspur or cornflowers. The gowns of the women—a little more than half of the 1,300 guests were of the fair sex—added to the picture. Most of the smartest looking women were in black, white or pastel shades.

Mrs. Hurley wore a lovely creation of pale yellow which was most becoming with her golden hair, and Mrs. Baur was wearing white embroidered in gold butterflies.

Tiny gold butterflies were engraved on the place cards at the speaker's table and there were tiny red, white and blue elephants on the cards, too. The dessert also carried out the G. O. P. decorative scheme, the ice cream being molded into the shape of elephants.

I wonder if many of the Chicagoans at the party noticed that when Mrs. Baur introduced Miss Edna Kellogg, who gave a program of songs, she said, "Miss Edna Kellogg of the Metropolitan Opera company and of the late Civic Opera." Did she mean late of the Civic Opera or what she said—I wonder?

Mrs. James W. Morrison of Groton, Conn., formerly of Chicago, was a late arrival at the banquet, slipping in quietly just before Mr. Hurley started to speak and after dinner was over.

Mrs. Howard Linn, who had postponed her large dinner for the Whighams from last night until tonight so that she and her guests could attend the banquet, was looking unusually lovely in a gown with a black skirt and a white bodice with a cape effect edged with dark fur. Mrs. Waller Borden chose black for her costume; Mrs. William L. Hodgkins also was in black, and Mrs. James Ward Thorne was in deep violet, gown and wrap, the latter trimmed with chinchilla.

Among other familiar faces I saw in the ballroom were Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Zaring and her father, George W. Dixon; Mrs. John W. Gary, Miss Emily Larned, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Yager [Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick was to have been their guest but illness prevented her attending the party], Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walker, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Miss Cornelia Conger, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Pitcher, Prince Michael Cantacuzene, Miss Harriet Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Brewer, Frank McNair, Howard F. Gillette, and Russell Tyson.

When Mrs. Mildred Marshall Blair of New York, formerly of Chicago becomes the bride of John Hayward of New York, Washington and Boston, this morning in the Community

Girl Knows Her Books, but Not Her Men

'The Rakish Halo' Is Good Light Fiction.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Rakish Halo," by Harriet Henry. [Morrow.] Published today.

THIS is the season of light fiction—the lightness being in most cases something that is left out of the baking rather than something that is put in, a froth of sugar and well beaten eggs rather than a heavy mixture leavened and raised by yeast. There are two sorts of "lightness" in fiction, the kind that is concerned only with light subjects and the kind that makes of whatever solemnity something gay. The latter kind is as rare as a snowflake in Venice—it has been known to happen but not often! Most light fiction is about light people in their lightly lived moments.

HARRIET HENRY.

Harriet Henry has written a typical light novel in "The Rakish Halo," but it has a trace now and then of something more solid than its tone and material leads the reader to expect. It is about a girl who wore a halo—that is, who wasn't the necking kind but who found life pretty exciting despite her aversion to indiscriminate petting. She was the secretary to an editor in a publishing house; she read manuscripts; she had excellent judgment about books, but in her judgment of men she was not such a brilliant critic.

Given the ingredients, the reader could almost write the novel himself, so far as the plot is concerned, for there is nothing unusual about it, but it would take an unusually gifted reader to make as good a story out of the ingredients as Miss Henry does. She manages to make her "types" convincing human beings. The charming Maurice who was crude and constitutionally averse to any of the finer sentiments [which were Julie's reason for being] Miss Henry has given his dues of charm, and she has made perfectly understandable his fascination for Julie, just as she has made understandable Julie's distaste for him and her final revolt against him.

The plodding "friend" who adores Julie is like all of the other plodding admirers of modern novels, except that his lack of appeal to Julie is made as comprehensible as his later lure for her. In other words, Miss Henry plays fair with all of her characters, and she makes them what they are so convincingly that they vivify the pages.

"The Rakish Halo," is a delightful story of a modern girl in modern surroundings and her reactions to love and marriage.

This is also the publication date of "Madam," by Richmond Barrett [Liveright]. The heroine of "Madam" is as remote from the heroine of "The Rakish Halo" as two women might well be.

"Madam" is an eccentric who spends most of her time playing the invalid, and who is aided in her performance by the fact that she is heiress to millions and has a way with her. Lovers come and lovers go, but "Madam" goes on her eccentric path as if it were as straight as the Lincoln highway. She knows where she is headed for, and she manages to get there, after having picked up exactly the passengers she wanted on the way.

"Flame," by C. E. Scoggins [Morrow], is likewise published today. It is a story of a placid island in the Caribbean, "Angel Isle," which ironically did NOT live up to its name. It harbored the scum of the earth and doings went on there that made one visitor at least call it a "hell hole." It was because he was sick of the hectic life of New York and because he was afraid of the speakeasy clutch, for his sister, too, that he took her and another girl and another man to Angel Isle for a lazy cruise.

How lazy that cruise was and what happened under the wings of the Angel you will find in "Flame." It is recommended to those who "like their adventure—and their romance—neat!"

And also from the presses today comes "Bing," by Thomas C. Hinkle [Morrow]. Mr. Hinkle has written before this of dogs, noble and brave, and in Bing his admirers will find another hero like the heroes of "Tawny," "Black Storm," and "Shag." "Bing" is a tramp dog—a white and silver collie, fearful of man until he finds a human friend in a cowman. Into the peace of the Kansas valley a "killer dog" intrudes, killing pigs and sheep and stirring the ranchers to wrath and vengeance. Bing, the tramp dog, is suspect. How he and his master win the community's respect ends the book.

"ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENSE."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Well, "Attorney for the Defense" should spell finis to the cycle of "lawyer" pictures. It's a weak brother of "The Mouthpiece" and not as good as "State's Attorney," which was a long shot from being in a class with the Warren William production.

The story doesn't bore you, for the reason that it's excellently acted; but it's claptrap that at no time convinces nor spurs the emotions.

A prosecuting attorney who sends an innocent man to the chair resigns his office and devotes himself to criminal defense, uplift work, and the rearing of the boy whose unfortunate father he had convicted. He is ably assisted in all his activities by a charming and capable young woman secretary who loves him silently and for ten long years before . . . happens what happens. [During those ten years the only person who ages noticeably is the boy whose foster father the hero constitutes himself.]

Burton has summat of a past—which up and swats him. Behold, then, this former prosecutor behind bars, defending himself on the charge of a murder he hasn't committed.

The usual courtroom scenes, low comedy, and melodramatic "punch" are all present, but to no particular effect.

You may not care for the play, but you WILL like the players. Mr. Lowe is polished, insouciant, immaculate, with the cutest mustache in the world, a gay dog eye and a caressing voice that I bet makes Lilyan Tashman watch him like a hawk. He keeps his tongue a bit too persistently in his cheek. Can't quite forget Sergt. Quirt.

Constance Cummings is lovely as the secretary. Evelyn Brent plays a naughty lady as effectively as the script permits. Nat Pendleton as Mugg, the hero's tough chauffeur, contributes several laughs and all other rôles are handled in good shape. Direction's not at all bad. H. E.

See you soon!

Couturiers Use Stenciled Crepe for Midsummer

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Printed dresses, without coats are fashionable to wear during the torrid weather of midsummer. When these frocks are worn by Parisiennes they are usually made of the fashionable stencil printed crêpe silks that the French fabric makers launched this spring. The name explains itself—big stenciled flowers or leaves, are printed on a plain white or colored ground, making a two colored fabric, and one that is fresh and airy looking. In Paris, green, blue, red, or yellow leaves scattered over white crêpe silk make the frocks that the most elegant women prefer for hot weather.

The Louiseboulanger frock shown in the sketch today is made of a stencil printed silk in blue and white. The simple blouse of this dress has brief kimono sleeves with flaring cuffs of white organdy and the draped collar is also of white organdy. Both collar and cuffs are joined to the bodice by a bias band of red silk. This bit of vivid detail is one of the most important details of summer fashions in France.

The skirt of this summer frock is flared by the cleverest of seams and cutting. It begins its enlargement just below the hipline, and it has a notched hem, a feature that is both new and exclusive to Louiseboulanger this summer.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

Sudden Love

By

ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. The widowed Mrs. Sully loves her children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Lew, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Jimmy Consadine, a crook lawyer, forces Lew, whom he has in his power, to introduce his sister. Esmee, starved for beauty and change, is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Then she meets Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright. It's love at first sight. She feels his need of her is real. Returning home one evening, Esmee finds Michael waiting for her. He'd been drinking heavily. Esmee takes him home in a cab, but he has no key and can't get in. In desperation she takes him to a hotel and registers as his wife. Claire Cowley, Michael's sister, tells Esmee that Michael is engaged. But when Michael calls Esmee goes to see him. He tells her his engagement is broken; that he can't live without her, and wants to marry her. Esmee tries unsuccessfully to break with Jimmy. He accuses her of double-crossing him and threatens to have Lew sent to jail. Esmee drives out to the country with him on Sunday. He forces her to accompany him to a roadhouse, where his word is law. Michael, who has trailed Jimmy's car, breaks in and rescues her. Jimmy swears he'll have Michael killed. Michael and Esmee stop at an inn for dinner. Esmee determines to have one last happy evening with Michael and then go to Jimmy. Michael wants to take Esmee to spend the night at Claire's.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

A DREADED WELCOME.

"It's none of Claire's business, to begin with," Michael said arrogantly. "And in the second place, there can be a perfectly good explanation. I mean—I can say I stopped at your house this morning and we'd gone out for the day, and when I took you home you found your mother had been called away by telegram and I didn't like to leave you alone."

"But, Michael! Don't you see . . . ? Then I couldn't arrive without a bag, not if I'd been home."

Esmee could think of plenty of other and far more serious objections, but the sight of his face checked her.

"All right, Michael dear!" she said. "I'll go to Claire's with you, gladly." And smiled, and her smile was so lovely, so touching, and so utterly yielding and loving that his heart smote him.

"Esmee, darling. . . . Little heart's darling. . . . We'll be married in a few days, won't we?"

"Yes," she said, telling the lie readily. Because this was to be Michael's evening to remember, and it must be unclouded.

"You are happy, aren't you, Michael?" she cried.

"Who wouldn't be?" he asked.

But when she looked at him, she knew he was not. They talked together, they laughed, yet beneath the surface there lay something bitter and sorrowful, so that she could almost think he knew, as she did, that this was the end.

They decided upon the earlier train, and she went upstairs. She looked about the room, and wanted to remember every detail, for the rest of her days, wanted to remember every moment of this evening.

There were no tears in her eyes; she had gone past that.

"I'll have to marry Jimmy," she thought. "This is the last day I'll ever see Michael."

When she went down to join him in the lobby, there was a quarter of an hour to spare before the taxi would come to take them to the station.

"Let's go out," said Michael, and they opened the door, stepped out into the lovely gardens.

Esmee tried to talk, to be gay, so that Michael should be happy, but he was curiously distrait; he scarcely answered her.

"Michael . . . don't you love the sound of the pines. . . ?"

"I . . . yes . . ." he said. "I . . . Esmee! I can't—let you go!"

Now for the first time she realized Michael's youngness. He had seemed to her so much surer, more experienced than she, so much cleverer. But now, in the gust of passion that swept him, he was only young, like herself. And, like herself, he was afraid, afraid of any parting. They clung to each other with a sort of desperation. He kissed her as he had not kissed her before, not as if she were a little blessed image he worshiped, but hotly and violently.

And because she loved him so, she made no protest, only laid her hand against his cheek.

He let her go, suddenly, took her hand and bent his head over it.

"Esmee . . . I didn't . . . Esmee, my darling. . . . Esmee. . . . You've got to know how I feel about you. How I—honor you."

She was silent for a time.

"You—are temperamental . . ." she said, shakily.

"I'll try not to be," he said, humbly. "Come on! Here's the taxi."

In New York he telephoned to his sister. She was out, but he left word with a servant that he was bringing Miss Sully out to spend the night.

"Then they don't live in that hotel where I saw them, Michael?"

"That's only a little pied à terre. Claire loves the country, you know, tennis, and riding, and things like that. I only like 'em on and off. I always drift back to the city somehow—where will you like to live, Esmee?"

"I want only to be where you are."

Then she said: "I'll have to telephone to mother, Michael."

She went into the booth in the Grand Central, and he stood outside, watching her. It seemed to him that he could watch her forever, that exquisite line of her cheek and jaw, her childish throat, the long lashes that drooped, as she waited.

"Mother? It's Esmee. Mother, dear, do you mind if I stay at Mrs. Cowley's tonight, out in Greenwich?"

"Of course not, my pet! I hope you'll have a beautiful time. . . . And what do you think? Josie's asked Cynthia to come and stay all night with her tomorrow, and who do you think's going to be there?"

"Not Joe!"

"Yes!" cried Mrs. Sully triumphantly. "Josie's rang me up. . . . She spoke so beautifully. . . . She said she was so wonderfully happy since she'd married Owen, and she wanted to try to bring Cynthia and Joe together again. Cynthia doesn't know he's going to be there. She's so proud and unreasonable, poor child, I'm certain she'd refuse to go. But I've always thought that if once they could meet. . . . The whole thing—all this heartbreak and loneliness, has been so unnecessary. A little tolerance and patience from either of them. . . ."

Michael, watching outside, saw how eager and radiant Esmee's face had grown. For no grief, no anguish of her own, could make Esmee indifferent to those she loved. She so longed for Cynthia to have her husband again, to be happy. . . .

Then she had to remember that other, even dearer to her than Cynthia.

"Mother. . . . Have you heard anything from Lew?"

"No," said Mrs. Sully. "No. . . . But you know he said he'd probably be home on Monday. And boys—just don't think about telephoning. . . ."

"See you tomorrow, mother dear! Give my love to Cynthia!"

"Good-night, my pet!"

"It's some rather good news about my sister," she told Michael when she came out of the booth.

He asked her questions, he listened, he was really interested. Because he loved Esmee, and all that concerned her was important to him, and also because of his warm interest in his fellow creatures. Michael would always listen to other people, listen with a faint scowl on his dark face, and he would always put his hand in his pocket for a fellow creature. Like Esmee, he was not given to blaming, to judging, but his compassion had a critical, analytic sense absent from hers. He knew more of the world, and less of the heart.

On the train out to Greenwich, Esmee became distrait and he let her alone, thinking she wanted time for her own thoughts. He could not, however, imagine her secret dismay.

She so dreaded Claire's cool politeness. Claire was kind enough, in her way, but, thought Esmee, she was kind because she believed it her duty to be so.

"I'm sure she's charitable," thought Esmee, "but she'd investigate cases and be sure they were deserving.

When they descended from the train at Greenwich a taxi driver hurried up to Michael. He had the air of a vassal of Michael's. He asked for no address.

"How's the pup?" asked Michael.

"O, he's comin' along," the driver answered. "Hard to keep him quiet and off of that there paw, that's all."

Once in the cab, Michael put his arm about Esmee, and she drew close to him, let her head rest on his shoulder, and found solace in his nearness.

"I'm not going to care!" she told herself. "Even if they're not nice to me. I'll be in the same house with Michael, and nothing else matters."

The taxi turned into a driveway, and along a winding road.

"Claire must have an awfully large piece. . . ." said Esmee.

"The grounds are large," Michael answered. "She and Pen like that. The house isn't big, though. It's an old place, remodeled. Darned nice. You'll like it."

But when a turn of the road disclosed the lighted windows of the house, it looked large to Esmee, very large, very intimidating.

I wouldn't. It might prove embarrassing if he never acknowledged it.

GASOLINE ALLEY—EVERYBODY AGREEABLE

Stuffed Baked Egg Plant Is Delicious Treat

May Be Served Plain or with Cream Sauce.

BY MARY MEADE.

Ever since the days in sixth grade art classes when we sat by the hour sketching big fat purple plants and gloating over their satin skin and sprawling calyx, and then carried both drawing and ruddy fruit proudly home to mother, we've had a weakness for the royal big fellows, both artistically and gastronomically.

And since we suspect others share this friendly feeling, though perhaps not for just the same reasons, we want to pass on to you today some egg plant specials. Our own garden fruits won't be ready for some weeks yet, but the markets are well supplied with fine big whoppers which make egg plant suggestions at this time of year quite in order.

Supposing you are going to buy, rather than take pot luck from the home garden, choose heavy solid fruit that has a glossy, unbroken skin. The size purchased will depend on the use you plan to make of the fruit. Three very small egg plants [for a family of six] are the best size to get if they are to be stuffed, for this gives a half, which is a good generous serving, to each one. Usually egg plants come on the market shaped as they are named—after an egg. However, don't be startled some day to meet one long like a cucumber and colored in any shade from deep purple through the reds, violets, creams, and almost to the off shades of white. Some of the egg plant cousins are like that.

STUFFED BAKED EGG PLANT.

Cut three very small or one large plant in half lengthwise, cover with boiling water and let simmer for about fifteen minutes. Remove from the water and scoop out the center pulp, leaving merely a sturdy shell. Press out most of the water from the pulp and add to the pulp three tablespoons of melted butter, half an onion chopped fine, one-half cup of chopped fresh tomato, one well beaten egg, two cups of cold chopped meat, and dried bread crumbs sufficient to make the stuffing packable. Season to taste with salt and pepper and cook gently for ten minutes. Fill the shells, sprinkle with cracker crumbs, and dot with butter. Bake until well browned and serve hot, plain, or with cream sauce.

BROILED EGG PLANT.

Peel one large egg plant and cut in one-fourth to one-half inch slices. Season two tablespoons of oil or melted fat with ½ teaspoon of salt and one-fourth teaspoon of pepper. Dip the slices in the oil and broil in the oven till tender and brown on both sides.

EGG PLANT WITH BAKED EGGS.

1 teaspoon salt.
Flour.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
4 tablespoons fat.
6 eggs.

Peel the egg plant and cut in six even slices. Dip them in a mixture of the milk, salt, and pepper, then in the flour, and sauté in the hot fat in a large skillet till tender and brown on both sides. Now onto each slice carefully break an egg. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake in moderate oven five or ten minutes.

French fried egg plant you've all tried, and to me it's one of the most pleasing methods of all. Before dipping in egg and in bread crumbs, give the peeled slices a chance to stand an hour in a stack well sprinkled with salt, and weighed down with a heavy plate.

Plain fried egg plant, with the fruit cut in one-half inch cubes and pan fried with chopped onion, parsley cut fine, a bit of minced garlic and a tablespoon of vinegar, is something else to get excited about and serve frequently this month.

Dinner Can Be Occasion for Friendly Talk

Youngsters Respond to Parents' Lead.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A father of a large family and of wide interests who was talking about children the other day said something I think is well worth passing on. Boys and girls of varying ages he has and often their young friends visiting at his house.

"I think," he said, "that dinner is a pretty important occasion. We have a lot of good fun at our table, and the children learn a great deal, too. Without their knowing it, I make it my business to see that the dinner table talk is educational for them."

"How do you mean?" I asked.

"Well, of course, the boys and girls talk about school, and parties, and the things they're especially interested in. Sometimes things in connection with school come up that we can discuss, or news that they've read in the papers.

"I told them things that men I meet have told me, or describe things that happen to other people, or to me. It's surprising how often our dinner talks will tie up with their work at school and relate it to the world at large. It all gives reality to their lessons, so that they seem part of life, not just duties shut in by the four walls of the school room. And the boys and girls who have dinner at our house enter into the discussions and seem to enjoy them.

"Our own children are allowed to be pretty natural and their friends seem to fall in with our ways and feel perfectly at home. I don't analyze my way of managing the children usually, but our dinner table talk is one thing I've done deliberately."

Not much like "the children should be seen and not heard" idea, nor the looking on dinner as stoking time. Personally, I think the evening meal is the pleasantest meal of the day, except Sunday morning breakfast. Hunger and food may bring us all to one spot at night, but there's more to it than that. Dinner is an occasion which brings the family together at the end of the day and it can be made a friendly and interesting occasion, or a strictly utilitarian one—an asset, or a liability.

Confer Advance Degrees on 409.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Eight hundred and seventy-nine students received degrees at the University of Chicago's 168th convocation in the university chapel yesterday morning and afternoon.

At the morning ceremony 409 students, all of whom had completed five years of university work, many of them six and seven years, received their advanced and professional degrees. Emery Filbey, acting vice president of the university, presided in the absence of President Robert Maynard Hutchins, who is quarantined with mumps. Among the 409 receiving degrees, 100 held degrees from other colleges, including 11 foreign colleges.

Ernest Freund, who holds the John P. Wilson chair of law at the university, made the address at the morning exercises on "Law School and University."

Two women, Dorothea Blonder and Ruth Woyand, 20 years old, received the degree of doctor of law. Miss Woyand, who virtually earned her way through school, had the second highest scholastic average in her class. Seven women became doctors of medicine: Adelaide Johnson, Grace Robey, Elena Boder, Beulah Bosselman, Bertha Brainard, Julia Lundstrom, and Evangeline Stonhouse.

Guillermo Pachoco, who attended the University of St. Andres, La Paz, Bolivia, received his fourth diploma from the University of Chicago. He won the Ricketts prize two years ago for studies in cellular immunity.

Four hundred and seventy students received the bachelor's degree in science, arts, or philosophy in the afternoon exercises. The total number of degrees awarded by the university throughout the last academic year thus was swelled to 1,973, the highest number graduated in its 40 years of history. Prof. Chauncey S. Boucher, dean of the college, spoke on trends in education.

Mrs. Charlotte Weinreb, 5426 Eastview park, and her daughter, Fernlee Weinreb, were among the students who received the bachelor's degree.

During the commencement exercises it was announced that gifts totaling $921,167 have been received by the university in the last three months.

The bulk of the gifts are in the form of appropriations from the Rockefeller Foundation to renew help in research work. Of this renewal fund, $225,000 is given on condition that other sources contribute dollar for dollar. Other funds donated are $12,000 from Mrs. James Nelson Raymond of the Blackstone hotel and $15,000 from Swift & Co. The Raymond gift is to be used as a medical school endowment to be known as the "Anna Louise Raymond Fellowship." The Swift company grant is for research in physiology.

Six members of the class of 1882 were honor guests at a banquet in the Congress hotel last night given by 400 alumni and faculty members of Rush Medical college of the University of Chicago.

Speakers included Dr. Ernest E. Irons, dean of the college; Dr. Frank R. Lillie, dean of the biological department of the university; Dr. Edwin M. Miller, president of the alumni association, and Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and member of the class of 1912.

Prof. John H. Beale, founder of the law school of the university and professor at Harvard law school, addressed 150 alumni and 70 members of the 1932 class of the law school at a dinner held elsewhere in the Congress hotel.

Graduates of the Barnard school, at 103d and Charles streets, will hold a reunion this evening at the school building in honor of Miss Mary Marsh, who recently retired after forty years as a teacher in the eighth grade.

The seventy-third annual commencement program will close today at Wheaton college. The graduates represent 24 states and five foreign countries. Thirty-five students are completing courses in the Wheaton college academy.

Dr. Koliang Yih, Chinese consul general in Chicago, addressed the alumni of Lake Forest academy at luncheon in Mandel's men's grill yesterday. He was introduced by William Gillespie Strong, Chicago attorney.

A FRIEND IN NEED

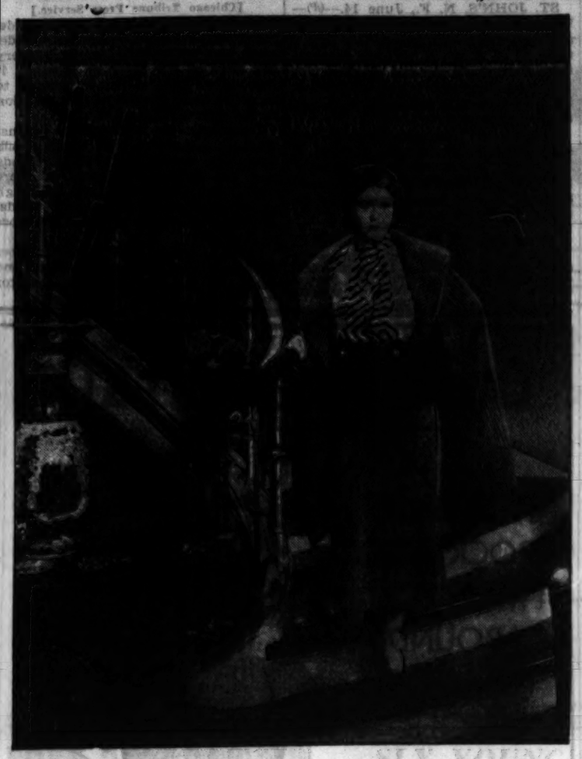

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Appeal for Clothing.

"My wife and I are badly in need of clothing of all kinds. I need a suit and underwear, size 38 or 40, shoes 8½, and socks. My wife needs dresses, underwear and a coat, size 34, shoes 5½-C, and stockings, size 9. I have been out of work so long and have no other way to get these things. The clothing we have is almost in rags. A. M."

Presentable clothing would mean new life to these people. They have been on the unemployment list so long and have been forced to go about in tatters until they have reached almost the depths of their despair. Won't you help them by giving any clothing you have been planning to discard?

Merge Shubert and Erlanger 'Road' Affairs

Stage's Thirty Years' War Comes to End.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The American theater, as it exists outside of New York under the trade name of "the road," is now being reorganized in preparation for next season's activities. The recent merger of the Theater Guild and the Dramatic League, so far as touring dramatic companies are concerned, was followed yesterday with an announcement that the Erlanger and Shubert booking offices will be joined.

This is a technical matter, of no special interest to the average playgoer, but to theatrical people it means the end of a long and bitter professional rivalry. The Thirty Years' War of the American stage has come to its armistice day.

The announcement was made by a representative of the Irving Trust company, New York, co-receiver of the Shubert Theatrical corporation. He stated that a new company will be formed to arrange and manage the tours of the various theatrical productions, musical and dramatic, that are sent out of New York, with the idea of preventing unnecessary losses through competition. Marcus Heiman, an executive of the Erlanger company, former president of the Orpheum vaudeville circuit and former Chicagoan, will head this organization.

About thirty theaters will be used on this circuit—one-half the number of houses that were controlled by both circuits in the pre-depression era. The other half, apparently, will be abandoned. No combination of producing activities or booking is contemplated for New York, according to the announcement, although rumors have been running along Broadway to this effect.

Lew Leslie's new revue, "Clowns and Clover," which is scheduled for a summer run in Chicago, beginning June 26, will start a preliminary engagement at the Cass theater, Detroit, next Sunday night. Hal Forde has been added to the cast, which has Walter Woolf and Kay Strozzi in leading rôles.

Dwight Deere Wiman, producer of the "Little Shows," has started to prepare the fourth edition in this series of revues. He recently returned from Europe with a contract signed by Greta Kellar, a singing girl much esteemed in Berlin. The "Fourth Little Show" is due for a Broadway première in September.

A Jovial Mood Marks Portrait of President

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

President Hoover may within the week be smiling with pleasure at the news of his nomination. If he is, we have a splendid opportunity to know him in that jovial mood through an autographed portrait of him by Ernest S. Klempner in the exhibition of Mr. Klempner's paintings which has just opened in the Knoedler galleries, 622 South Michigan avenue.

Apparently President Hoover is watching with friendly appreciation the passing of a patriotic parade, for he is bareheaded and at his back are the broad red and white stripes of a billowing American flag. He is smiling broadly. Obviously [or he would not have autographed it] the likeness is good. It is pleasant to get a visible token of the human spirit of the President.

A more signal spirit of determination shows from the features of Earle H. Reynolds, whose portrait is in the same exhibit. Melvin A. Traylor is portrayed, as well, and he looms up as a man with an infinite capacity for action. Even in his portrait he is on tiptoe to be up and doing. Enthusiasm and vitality flow from each detail of his finely poised body and alert face.

The other canvases by Mr. Klempner are of women. Arms, apparently, are the painter's most difficult bit. With the men this weakness is lost sight of, but where in the women's portraits the arms are distinctly a decorative part of the whole one is occasionally brought up with a shock by the ineptitude with which the problem has been solved. This is particularly true of the portrait of Miss Beatrice Kirk.

Among the most charming of the portraits are those of Mrs. George Plammonden Jr., Miss Nancy Traylor, and Mrs. Eugene McDonald.

The superb portrait etchings by Walter Tittle may still be seen at Knoedler's. They are grouped under the "Arms Conference Portfolio" and comprise portraits of many of the statesmen who discussed in Washington the limitation of armaments. Aristide Briand, Lloyd George, Dr. Sze, Admiral Baron Kato, Elihu Root, Henry Cabot Lodge, Sir Aukland Geddes, Earl Beatty, and the earl of Balfour are among the men portrayed.

The exhibits will continue through June.

Miss Fanny Ogden McPherson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald F. McPherson of Winnetka, who is with her grandmother, Mrs. Frederick T. West, at Court Hill in Pittsfield, entertained at luncheon at the Old Egremont tavern in South Egremont recently, where Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Fairman and Miss Joy Fairman of Winnetka spent the week-end.

Mrs. Frank P. Graves of Winnetka and her daughter, Mrs. Morris R. Glaser of Glencoe, are at the Bessie Millard inn in North Egremont, and the Misses Marian and Nancy Short of La Grange were recent visitors to Miss Mabel Choate's Mission House Memorial at Stockbridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker are leaving next week for their Santa Barbarba residence to spend the summer there. Their son Arthur Jr. expects to go to Europe a bit later in the season.

Coonleys to Move This Week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart Coonley are moving this week from their apartment at 1130 Lake Shore drive to the Hubbard Woods residence of the late John W. Scott. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Underwood [Frances Coonley Rawson] will return from their wedding trip abroad the latter part of this month and will spend the summer with the Coonleys. Mrs. Underwood's little daughter is with her grandparents.

Mrs. Frank R. Meadowcroft of the Webster hotel left yesterday to spend the summer at her residence at Wiscasset, Me., the little New England village which has been her favorite summer retreat for many years.

Mrs. Louis F. Cody of Cleveland and her two children, Billy and Jane, are visiting Mrs. Cody's sister and brother-in-law, the Elliott Donnelleys, in Lake Forest.

Miss Helen Bell, who remained with friends in Europe after her mother sailed homeward last month, is expected to return this week to her parents' residence in Hubbard Woods.

Miss Suzanne Hally-Smith, the attractive young Parisian who has been visiting the Donald F. Boweys of Lincoln Park West, is leaving Friday for some visits in the east before returning to France.

Miss Hally-Smith was one of the former Ann Kachlein's attendants when the latter became the bride of Donald Bowey in Tacoma, Wash., a year ago last January, and this is her first visit to the Boweys since then. Mr. and Mrs. Bowey and his mother, Mrs. Charles F. Bowey of North State street, also are leaving Friday, but they are going west for a visit with the younger Mrs. Bowey's parents in Tacoma.

Mrs. Sollitt Opens Summer Home.

Mrs. Sumner Sollitt, formerly of 3995 Ellis avenue, has opened her summer residence, "River Bend Orchards," near South Haven, Mich. Her two daughters, Mrs. Harold Marks and Miss Grace Sollitt, are with her, and the Sumner S. Sollitts of Kenilworth with their children, Sumner III. and Sally Shannon, will be frequent visitors at South Haven during the summer.

When Miss Janet O'Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William O'Leary, became the bride of Rufus Choate Brown III. last night she wore a gown of ivory satin, made simply with long sleeves, and a Brussels lace veil that had been worn by her older sisters when they were brides. She carried gardenias and valley lilies.

The maid of honor, Miss Dawn Beatty, wore turquoise blue mousseline de soie, and the bridesmaids, Miss Greta Luckow, Miss Virginia Melody, Miss Margaret Ellen Downes of Oshkosh and Mrs. Charles V. Frings of Pekin, wore peach color dresses of the same material. The dresses were old fashioned in style with round necks and short, puffed sleeves; and the young women carried old fashioned bouquets.

The Rev. George Roberts read the service at the First Presbyterian church of Lake Forest, after which there was a small reception at "Robinwood," the O'Learys' Lake Forest residence. Henry Brown was best man for his brother. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will be at home after Aug. 1 on Oakwood road, Oshkosh.

'Naturals' Are Out in Beauty Awards Today

No One Type Preferred, Says Antoinette.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

An older generation was given to a set pattern for beauty nomination. If a girl didn't have this and so—she just wasn't a beauty. Time and again I have noticed this 'a older women. I've wondered if they do not still carry an ideal type in their minds when comparing one I may think registers on enough points to make a beauty. Or, if they are swayed in their judgment by perpetuation of the "type" idea, as expressed perhaps in a cover magazine pretty. Or, if women still hold the notion that to be a beauty you must be a "natural" and not a self-made one, as so many of our modern eyefuls surely are self-made.

I had occasion, the other day, to run over back numbers of a magazine and saw there an early picture of Joan Crawford. In her earlier days I never saw Joan in the flesh. But in the photograph referred to, her own mother would hardly have entered her as a prize winner. But look at the girl today! A prize winning exhibit, to put it mildly!

The same could be said and has been time and again about Greta Garbo, about others now hoisted to the front row of devastating beauties. Self-cultivation. Self-cultivation. AND, the moral of today's lesson, self-cultivation on a plane that does not involve great financial expense. By which I mean the actual physical changes have not meant money expenditure.

You think at once of the fairy tale coffers into which these movie beauties may dip a hand and perhaps say: "O but look at the money they have to spend!" On clothes—yes. We'd be ninnies to say that good clothes do not matter. On the other hand, there's always that girl bobbing up in our midst with her bargain dress, looking the proverbial million. Looking the money, however, less because of the bargain dress than because of the slender figure, the good coiff, the general good grooming.

The point I'm driving at is that there aren't any "best points" any more in the beauty appreciation scheme. It's the cultivation of all points, not concentrating on a couple of good ones and trusting them to get you by. That's your modern knockout, a self-made bloom.

Divorce Must Be Legal Before Second Venture

Otherwise Bigamy Charge Can Be Made.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Be off with the old before you're on with the new! Know that you're signed off legally before you lead or are led by another mate to the altar.

There has come to light in recent headlines several instances of marriage begun with a second mate before the ties of the first matrimonial adventure have been legally unknotted. Legally, it is the proper procedure, psychologically it is advantageous to set out anew with the slate washed clean. Or, as clean as alimony entanglements allow.

The half completed job of dissolution provides a rope upon which to hang a grievance, real or fancied, in the second adventure. It provides an easy loop hole of escape, too. If you're going in for second and third marriages, at least you should be tidy about it, or them.

But, speaking of unfinished first marriage business, it is startling to learn of second marriages performed without benefit of legal dissolution at all. The gambling instinct, to which all marriages are more or less a party, peculiarly victimizes certain men and women into believing it worth while to take any chance. Even to taking a chance on a second venture without any attempt to have the first union dissolved. Of course, there must be unintelligence behind such dangerous action. The person involved cannot be aware that the infraction is listed among criminal offenses.

Though one may have been very young when the first marriage was committed, the law requires that it be rightfully dissolved before a new partner can be taken on. The case before me at the moment is that of a girl who married at 17. The marriage was kept secret.

The boy ran away two months later and the girl has never heard from or of him since. Because no one seemingly was aware of the elopement, the girl proceeded to marry without acquainting her present husband of the earlier marriage. The marriage record stands, however, giving her frequent nightmare attacks, jarring her with the knowledge that she isn't even a common law wife, that any day she may be swooped down upon with bigamy charges.

Elissa Landi Is Permitted to Read Again

Recovering from Infection to One Eye.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 14.—Elissa Landi is beginning to be allowed to read again, after spending ten days in a darkened room, part of the time with her eyes bandaged. She suffered an infection to one eye when a bit of makeup got in it. Her husband, John Lawrence, British attorney, received an exaggerated idea of the seriousness of her injury in a message sent to London and cabled a disturbing return message which indicated he thought the authoress-star was headed for blindness.

Miss Landi's injury was kept secret until specialists could determine its extent. Her mother, Countess Zanardi Landi, is attending her.

Ricardo Cortez has filed a legal disclaimer to the suit against him as husband of the late Alma Rubens by a local modiste, who contends that Cortez should pay for $143 worth of apparel which the modiste says she furnished Miss Rubens in May, 1929. Cortez says the bill was not brought within the time prescribed by law.

Mrs. A. M. Williamson, British author, who is here to take a peek at films, says: "American slang has completely Americanized the British public in that effect. It is not at all out of the way at a special gathering to hear a dignified judge says: 'O, yeh,' and to have all the ladies parade their American slang proudly."

CAPTAIN OF SHIP DESCRIBES HOW HE SAVED FLYER

Says Hausner Collapsed as Help Reached Him.

BY CAPT. JAMES W. WILSON.
[Master of the S. S. Circe Shell.]

With these words the Polish flyer, who had drifted miles on the Atlantic on his wrecked airplane, greeted us when we found him.

He literally fell into the lifeboat which we had lowered to fetch him, and he was helped aboard my ship in almost complete darkness.

"Thanks very much, captain. I've been waiting for you for eight days," he said.

Then he collapsed.

Almost Missed Rescue.

He almost missed being rescued, for the darkness was falling rapidly.

It was difficult to see, but the lookout on the Circe Shell sighted something ahead. It looked like a drifting buoy, but he could make out some peculiar markings on the top.

He picked up his long glass and trained it on the object. He saw then that what he had thought was a buoy was really an airplane with its tail sticking up in the air.

Right away when he had told me what he saw I stepped to the engine room telegraph and signaled my engineer to cut the speed.

We slowed down and moved closer. We got to within one mile of the derelict and then I stopped the ship. We drifted and slowly closed in.

See Man Aboard Plane.

My men, watching from the rail, were amazed to see the figure of a man which seemed to be lashed to the machine.

We blew a blast on the ship's siren and the figure moved. He waved frantically. We could see now that he was not lashed down.

Right away I ordered a lifeboat away. It was manned by volunteers under my second officer.

From the bridge I watched them row away. When they were about fifty feet from the airplane they hailed him and the flyer answered in English.

There was a rough sea running and it was getting worse and we were afraid the airplane might founder at any moment.

But my men were able to reach it in time to take off the exhausted aviator.

Not Seriously Injured.

Almost all of my Chinese crew had gathered at the rail in the excitement to greet the unexpected flyer when he was taken aboard.

It was then forty-five minutes after the first sighting and night had fallen. I endeavored to obtain a coherent statement from him as soon as he showed signs of revival. But his exhausted condition made this unfeasible.

Therefore we contented ourselves with supplying Hausner with his immediate necessities of water and food. An examination revealed only superficial cuts, bruises, and sores, all external injuries, and none of them serious.

At the time of my sending this radio the airman is progressing splendidly. He did not sustain any obvious internal injuries, but continues seemingly incapable of discussing his experiences.

It was amazingly fortunate that we encountered him at the time we did, as by midnight the weather had turned hazy and four hours later a dense fog set in. Even when he was first sighted the barometer was falling, the sky was overcast, and visibility was decreasing.

TWO YOUTHS DROWNED.

Two youths were drowned yesterday in Lake Michigan. Chester Carmody, 18 years old, sank while swimming off Lawrence avenue. Walter Bramczyk, 17 years old, 8525 Buffalo avenue, fell from a pier at 95th street where he was fishing with his father.

MACHINE GUNS END THREATENED REVOLT OF 1,000 PEASANTS

HELSINGFORS, Finland, June 14.—(AP)—An attempt of 1,000 distressed farmers to revolt in the Nivala district of Ostrobothnia ended in failure today.

A company of infantry arrested 230 of the peasants, but the leaders escaped. The trouble was believed to have been started by a few noncommissioned army officers as a protest against the refusal of the speaker of the diet to call an immediate special session to consider unemployment relief.

The peasants were hemmed in by machine gun troops of the regular army after they had made threats against the local authorities. There was no bloodshed.

FOREIGN FEARS OF NEW CHILEAN REGIME EASED

Socialists Seem Anxious to Avoid Conflict.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, June 14.—William S. Culbertson, American ambassador, is carefully watching over American interests in Chile, while Ralph H. Ackerman, American commercial attaché, is in contact with the American Chamber of Commerce regarding the business outlook in the light of recent political developments.

Up to now no anti-foreign action by the Socialist junta which seized control of the government last week has been recorded. The general opinion is that there will be none. The reshuffle of the junta, including the resignation of Carlos Davila, suggests a possible moderation policy.

Despite the withdrawal of Davila the general impression is that the present leaders are not anxious for a collision with foreign interests, but are determined to proceed with their socialistic program.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 14.—Carlos Davila, former ambassador to the United States, who resigned Sunday from the Socialist junta, which last week seized control of Chile, will leave this week for Europe. He has been appointed to a government mission. It is believed that he will act as the agent for Chile in soviet Russia.

On resigning Davila issued a public letter to his friends, denying that he is at odds with the government and asserting his intention to support its principles. The letter follows:

"The course of events has placed me in a position to resign as a member of the government junta. I have divided with you the responsibilities of the revolution and for a brief time the management of public affairs.

Revolution a Definite Fact.

"The Socialist revolution is a definite fact. Neither the difficulties which may accompany the new state of things nor the change of personnel that is a natural consequence will be enough to retard the advance and the application of the new doctrines.

"It is possible that I have committed errors. Many times I have been in disagreement with the majority of you in appreciating facts and methods, but I always proceeded with the most profound revolutionary sincerity and have been a stranger to all classes of group interests or considerations which did not have as their goal to serve the ideas which made us march together in the short, but definitive step in the nation's life.

Asks Support for Junta.

"My retirement is not a subtraction from the revolutionary forces. On the contrary, my going away at this instant constitutes a help from a material standpoint of happenings. Moreover, it leaves my friends free of any personal suspicion in order that they may better collaborate in the hard task that awaits them."

The minister of finance today declared a 30 day moratorium on debts owed by retail merchants, and also extended all loans held by such merchants at the national savings banks.

Javier Angel Figueroa, chief justice of the Chilean Supreme court, resigned tonight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 14.—The admiralty announced tonight that the British cruiser Durban had been ordered to Callao, Peru, "to be ready in case of need for the protection of British interests in Chile."

Honduras Rebel Leader Slain.

TEGUCILGALPA, Honduras, June 14.—(AP)—Word from the mountainous regions of the north, where government troops have been pursuing a rebel band for a week, said Col. Moises Vasques, a rebel leader, was killed in a skirmish yesterday. A federal detachment cut off a rebel column which was retreating through the mountains to join the main rebel army. It was estimated that about 20 rebels were killed.

DE VALERA DEFAULTS ON $7,500,000 LAND ANNUITIES DUE TODAY

(Copyright, 1932, By the New York Times.)

DUBLIN, June 14.—The half year's installment of £1,500,000 [about 7½ million dollars at normal rates of exchange] on Irish Free State land annuities is due Great Britain tomorrow, but it will not be paid.

President Eamon de Valera has no intention of transmitting the money, contending that if Britain believes she has a right to receive the annuities she must prove her case in the courts. All signs point, therefore, to intensification of the Anglo-Irish quarrel. Irish farmers are fearful of quick tariff retaliation by Britain.

Although politics are to be banned during the Eucharistic congress, the government has snubbed Gov. Gen. MacNeill by not inviting him to a state reception for Cardinal Lauri, papal legate, in Dublin castle next week. Invitations have gone to all other diplomats and high officials in Dublin.

Hurricane Destroys Banana Plantations in Honduras

NEWFOUNDLAND'S PREMIER ROUTED; WINS TWO SEATS

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., June 14.—(AP)—With only three seats to be heard from at noon today, the opposition had a total of 21 seats in returns received from Saturday's general election.

The noon standing was opposition, 21; government, 2; independent, 1, and three unreported.

12 FINED FOR SHORT WEIGHTS.

Judge Edward S. Scheffler yesterday assessed fines of $487.50 in 12 short weight cases directed against eight meat market owners, one baker, two vegetable peddlers and a sausage manufacturer.

MEXICO TO RULE CONFISCATORY TAXES ILLEGAL

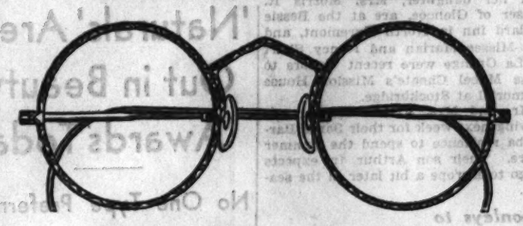

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, June 14.—The department of interior tomorrow will declare unconstitutional the confiscatory tax laws of the state of Hidalgo, it was stated today. This is thought to be preliminary to a similar declaration in the case of Vera Cruz state.

Following the declaration against Hidalgo, department of interior officials will confer with Gov. Tejeda and the attorney general of Vera Cruz. The Vera Cruz laws, although somewhat different in form, are fundamentally the same in spirit as those of Hidalgo.

Political circles here blame the laws for the lack of confidence here and abroad in private enterprise and for the decline of the Mexican peso.

ECONOMIC OUT OF DERBY UNLESS LEG KINKS GO

Develops Lameness After Workout.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A new favorite bowed his way into the American Derby picture yesterday when Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Stepenfetchit arrived at Washington Park. He became the favorite at about the time he stepped out of the motor van which brought him over from Arlington Park, for it was just about at that hour that Economic, the early choice, developed a lameness which most likely will keep him out of the parade to the post in the Derby.

MRS. JOHN WHITNEY.

Last night Trainer Happy Buxton was making a last valiant effort to relieve Economic of the pain which came with his lameness. Economic was standing with his left foreleg, first in a tub of hot water, then in a tub filled with cold water. The pain and swelling were vanishing, but Trainer Buxton held out only a slight hope that his charge would be able to get to the post in the $50,000 Derby on Saturday afternoon.

Apparently Sound After Trial.

It was the strangest of all the misfortunes that have come the way of our many unfortunate three year olds this year. During the morning Economic had taken it fairly easy and had worked the Derby route of a mile and a quarter in 2:10. His trainers and others in the stable retinue were all smiles when it was over. Economic walked back to his stable apparently a sound horse.

Two hours later the left foreleg began to swell. Veterinarians were summoned, and it was discovered the ailment was in a ligament. It may keep Economic out of training for a long period or it may respond to treatment at once, the horse doctors said.

Economic had ruled as the 4 to 1 Derby favorite until this misfortune overtook him. Stepenfetchit had been the second choice at 5 to 1. He was installed at 4 to 1 last night and the price against Economic was lifted to 20 to 1. You couldn't find any one who wanted him even at that price.

Economic's injury almost on the eve of the American Derby was a climax to the most disastrous season 3 year olds in American racing ever encountered. First it was the notable Burning Blaze and the fleet Hygro which went amiss. Then rapidly one after another came training mishaps of one kind or another which put Tick On, On Post, Evening and finally the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, Burgoo King, on the shelf.

Fifteen Still in Field.

So the race for the 3 year old championship may be just beginning all over again, and it is possible a great champion will come out of the wreckage after all. There are plenty trying for such honors, for 15 still are left in the American Derby field and there are enough rich events remaining on the season's program to afford them every opportunity of developing into greatness.

The dark horse which was beginning to sort of walk out of the dark last night was Marmion, which turned in a sensational workout before the rain turned the Washington Park running strip into a sea of mud. He ran a mile in 1:38 4-5, which is flying, and finished out the mile and an eighth fighting for his head in 1:53.

This fellow won his only start at Washington Park and has been on the improve all season. Since he came to the races a year ago he has been highly regarded and it may be that he will capture the Derby and go on to the championship.

I Say Wins Again.

Next to Stepenfetchit, Boatswain, winner of the Withers, and Faireno which captured the Belmont stakes, had the most backers. There also was some support for Sunmelus, Osculator and Gusto, and some long shot players were backing Yonkel.

While the Derby candidates were looking around to see which would be incapacitated next, I Say, the Chicago filly from Al Sabath's stable, was racing to another Washington Park victory in the Lake Shore Beach purse at seven furlongs.

After a furious battle with Princess Camelia down the stretch she won by a head and made nearly everybody in the crowd happy, for she was the odds on favorite at $3.24 for a $2 ticket. The muddy track was just to her liking. Her time for the seven furlongs was 1:26 3-5.

FOXX HITS PAIR OF HOMERS; A'S BEAT TIGERS, 10-5

Detroit, Mich., June 14.—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics unlimbered their heaviest artillery and shelled the Tigers into a 10 to 5 rout today, the barrage including Jimmy Foxx's 24th and 25th home runs in successive times at bat.

Vic Sorrell pitched passable ball for four innings, but in the fifth was hit for six hits and five runs, including Foxx's first homer of the day, with Simmons and Cochrane on base.

Truett Banks Sewell, just recalled from Toronto, relieved Sorrell in the sixth, but the first four men to face him in the seventh hit safely and all scored. The first hit of the inning was Foxx's 25th home run.

YANKS WHIP INDIANS, 7-6.

Cleveland, O., June 14.—(AP)—It took some of the New York Yankees' best hitting and a flashy triple steal to give Danny MacFayden his first victory since he joined the club today. MacFayden was officially credited with the victory as the Yanks defeated Cleveland's Indians, 7 to 6, but he was hit hard and finally pounded from the mound in the ninth. The victory gave the Yanks the series, three games to one. The Yanks were always on top after Bill Dickey clouted his tenth homer of the season in the second inning. Averill also hit a homer, his eleventh of the year, with none aboard in the third, smacked a double to open Cleveland's ninth inning rally, in which he scored on singles by Vosmik and Morgan, and hit two singles.

SLY YOUNG FOXX MAKES HOUND OF BABE

The great American Clout Stakes. Jimmy Foxx, the catcher who had to make good as a first baseman to stick in the big show, is giving the old home run king the double X. Jimmy hit two yesterday to bring his total to 25 for the season. Babe Ruth, who heretofore has been the superlative in everything that is home runs, has 21. Foxx is now six home runs and 24 days ahead of the Babe's pace in 1927, when Ruth established the all time record of 60 homers for the season. Babe also is ahead of his 1927 pace by two homers and seven days.

Touring Cubs Hope to Catch Up with a Ball Game Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—The Cubs have no business hereabouts until tomorrow, but they came to town early this evening for the want of anything better to do. They were scheduled for a final game with the ambitious Braves at Boston this afternoon. Some typical pea soup weather, however, nullified proceedings for the second time in succession. So the Chicagoans packed up their first place honors and fetched them along to show to the revived Giants tomorrow.

Pat Malone, who waited two days for a chance to pitch in Boston, will be Manager Hornsby's nominee tomorrow in the first of the four games at the Polo grounds. The big speed baller will be in quest of his sixth triumph. He also will try to do a better job than usual. He, more than anyone, is worried about that deadline on trades tomorrow night. If he is still wearing Cub flannels after that time he will be breathing a lot more easily.

There'll Be Plenty Difficulty.

The four days' traffic with the Giants probably will be strenuous and if the Cubs can leave here in first place they will be satisfied. The Giants, since Bill Terry supplanted the more or less illustrious John McGraw, have developed quite an appetite for victories and unless somebody forces them into a nose dive pretty soon they will be right up among the league's élite.

Terry thus far has proved that a so-called master mind, which McGraw was alleged to have possessed, is not essential to success. Memphis Bill, who never regarded baseball as anything other than an easy way to make a living, doesn't pose as an intellectual giant.

"You gotta get them base hits to win," is his theory, and he is operating on that basis. The boys are permitted to show they have common sense, something McGraw never permitted, and they are proving they are not mere puppets. Later on Mr. Terry's leniency may be retroactive, but just now the Giants are doing well enough to convince the ability is there.

Hornsby Picks Giants.

Hornsby, who is a pretty fair country judge in matters of baseball, believes the New York club is one of two outfits the Cubs must beat if they are to win a pennant. Many experts think the same. The other eventual contender, Hornsby believes, is the world champion St. Louis club, which is gradually beginning to square away after a slump that at the time appeared to be permanent.

The Braves, who just now are disputing the Cubs' leadership, are not regarded seriously. Their hitting is not holding up and the pitchers are fading. If the Cub pitchers should fade in the same way, the Chicagoans will drop right along with the Braves. Hornsby doesn't have the hitters needed to offset any slump in mound effectiveness.

Philadelphia Next.

The Cubs, after finishing at the Polo grounds, will jump to Philadelphia for four days. And that will be no vacation. The Phil hitters all have their eyes trained on the short right field fence in their hat box premises and visiting pitchers, no matter how good they may be, always find that extremely annoying.

An even break there will suit the Cubs, because they can make up the difference at Wrigley field. From Philadelphia, the Chicagoans jump to St. Louis for four games.

JIM FOULIS' 145 BEATS HAMPTON FOR PRO CROWN

Finishes One Over Par for 36 Holes.

Champaign, Ill., June 14.—[Special.]—Chicagoans won the first five places in the Illinois state professional golf tournament at the Champaign Country club course today. Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake Country club, Hinsdale, took the championship with 145 strokes for the 36 holes, one over par.

Harry Hampton of the Beverly Country club, who led by two strokes at the end of 18 holes, was second with 146. Harry Cooper of Glen Oak finished third with 147, followed by Eddie Loos of Lake Shore with 148, and Sam Bernardi of Briergate with 149. Harry Rubendall of Freeport with 149, had the best downstate total.

Under Par on Last 18.

Foulis, a 27 year old professional and a nephew of the first national open champion, trailed by two strokes yesterday when he carded 39—35—74. Today he made it in 37—34—71, one under par. The new champion's card for the 36 holes:

Out	555	453	435—39
In	344	443	346—35
Out	565	553	433—37
In	343	353	445—34—71—74—145

Abe Espinosa of Medinah, defending champion, who got off to a bad start yesterday when he took 83, had somewhat better success today. He went around in 39—39 for a 78, but finished far down in the list.

Rouse Turns In 150.

Sonny Rouse of Deerfield, considered one of the strongest contenders, finished with a 150, while Jock Hutchison of Glen View and Gunnar Nelson of Rockford each took 152.

Foulis played in a threesome composed of Harry Cooper and Horton Smith. He was informed at the fifteenth hole that he had a chance to win. On the 18th Foulis needed a par five to clinch first place. His tee shot was about 250 yards out to the right in the rough, while his second, also to the rough, lacked about 52 yards of the green. He then sent the ball within ten feet of the pin, putted cautiously to within half a foot and sank the championship shot.

In the pro-amateur foursome competition this afternoon Eddie Loos set a course record of 66. He had 33 on each nine.

Loos Wins Best Ball Match.

Out	344	543	433—33
In	353	344	344—33—66

Second place went to Harry Cooper and George Dawson, Glen Oak amateur with a 33—36 for a 69, three under par. Frank Walsh, pro at Bryn Mawr, and Art Gruenwald, amateur from the same club, carded 35—36—71, as did Hutchison and his son Jock Jr.

Amateur play will get under way tomorrow morning.

DODGERS DROP THREE PLAYERS TO REACH LIMIT

New York, June 14.—[Special.]—With the deadline for reducing to the player limit set for tomorrow night the Brooklyn National league club swung the ax this afternoon and three players, Fresco Thompson, Paul Richards, and Bruce Caldwell, were sent to the minors. The release of the trio brought down the Dodgers to the 23 player limit allowed after June 15.

Richards, a catcher, was sold to the Minneapolis club of the American Association; Thompson, who plays second base, was sent to the Jersey City International league team, and Caldwell, first baseman, went to the Hartford club of the Eastern league on option.

CLIFF HEATHCOTE IS RELEASED BY CINCINNATI REDS

Philadelphia, Pa., June 14.—[Special.]—Cliff Heathcote, Cincinnati outfielder, who formerly was a member of the Chicago Cubs, was given his unconditional release by the Reds today. His release reduced the Reds to the major league limit of 23 players.

Heathcote, who went to the Reds on waivers in 1930, was traded to the Chicago Cubs for Max Flack on May 30, 1922. He remained with the Cubs until 1930, when he was sent to the Reds. Heathcote begun his major league career in 1916 with the St. Louis Cardinals.

German Olympic Sprinters Break 400 Meter Record

KASSEL, Germany, June 14.—(AP)—The German Olympic sprint team of Koernig, Borchaungen, Lammers, and Jonath, today bettered the world's record for the 400 meters relay, running the distance in 40.6 seconds. The listed world's record is 40.8 seconds.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, you said I better go over to the Republican convention and see whether I could get any pointers on how to run big shows which might come in handy when we stage those International Golden Gloves bouts against the picked German team at Soldiers' field July 26.

Well, all I can say is that if the Republican windup bouts are not more spirited than the preliminaries were you don't want any pointers from the convention for the Golden Gloves bouts, because we expect a lot of action and some keen contests there. Of course, I suppose President Hoover is the champion and has awed all others who otherwise might be challengers, but even that condition never prevails in our Golden Gloves bouts. A champion has to fight to stay champion.

Moreover, Arch, if there weren't more people present at any of our bouts, even the semi-finals, than were present yesterday you'd regard our show a "bust." I don't know where the people were, for you remember what a hard time I had to snare a ducat so we'd get some pointers. Perhaps those chaps along Madison street who were hawking mezzanine locations at $8 per throw had some of them. If so, they must have them yet, because I didn't see any one handing over any $8.

Now, there was a good crowd on the first floor, or what we'd call the ringside section. But those seats were occupied by the delegates and the alternates. The mezzanine was not half filled and two upper galleries where our $1 amateur boxing patrons sit so enthusiastically contained only a scattering.

Some estimates of the crowd ran as high as 15,000, but, Arch, if you were checking the house I think you'd be willing to take settlement for 8,000, not more than 10,000 anyway, including the "paper."

Instead of the ring being in the center of the house, as at our indoor shows, it was erected on the Madison street side just in front of the mezzanine. Of course the platform was larger than our 24 foot affair and it was not squared—don't let the compositor drop the "d" on squared—but it had to be larger because the national committeemen and committeewomen sit in the ring instead of in rows outside as our judges and members of the boxing commission do.

Well, in front of the ring were the delegates and alternates. It was confusing to me at first because I saw a Hawaii sign, indicating the location of that delegation, and then I saw another one way off in the distance and I wondered why Hawaii needed so much room. Then John Boettiger, who was sitting next to me, explained one sign was for the delegate and the other sign was for the alternate. I might have learned more from John only he "walked out" on the show while Senator Dickinson was keynoting.

Another thing, there was supposed to be no smoking, just as at boxing shows. Naturally a few guests sneaked a "fag" now and then in mezzanine and balcony, but, unlike the boxing shows, the ringsiders were not annoyed when they transgressed, and a number of delegates and alternates were attached to cheroots.

O, yes, I nearly forgot to tell you about the press seats. I wasn't in there because they were reserved for our political writers. They were around the ringside just like a boxing show, but on account of the ring not being squared and having only three sides, the press seats extended east and west from the ring.

Another thing, I never saw so many sergeants-at-arms. They wear imposing gilt badges attached to a red, white, and blue riband. Several Northwestern and Chicago football players were in this category. I asked one of them I knew what were his duties and he said it was principally to keep out of the way of the ushers and to find a good seat for himself, and that was easy because there were so many vacant seats.

I'll not try to tell you what took place, Arch, because that's what our political staff is for, and how would we like it if they moved in and tried to tell about our Golden Gloves bouts?

Now, honestly, I tried to do what you said and get some pointers for our shows, but let me tell you something—these great leaders of party thought ought to send for you and learn how to stage a real "show." If the Golden Gloves bouts against the Germans at Soldiers' field July 26 are not more interesting and better staged I'll not even turn in an expense account for that week. Regards.

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

STRATEGY ENDS IN TRAGEDY AS FONSECA FAILS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The miserable Boston Red Sox yesterday showered Ted Lyons with fourteen base hits, including four doubles and a triple, but the brave White Sox stood off defeat until after they had filled the bases in the eleventh inning. Then they succumbed to a 5 to 4 licking.

BENNY TATE.

It was, in part, another alumni festival. Former White Sox players figured vitally in the production of four of the winners' runs. Benny Tate, class of '32, drove in Boston run No. 2 with a triple; Johnny Watwood, class of '32, scored run No. 3 when he was driven home by Smead Jolley, class of '32; Tate drove in No. 4, and the winning run was placed in scoring position by Watwood's sacrifice in the eleventh.

Bob Weiland, class of '31, pitched six and a third innings and during six innings allowed only five hits. But Bob Fothergill's homer in the sixth softened him up and a single by Hayes, followed by a triple by Selph, which drove in the tying run, led to his withdrawal in favor of the most able and large Bob Kline with one out in the seventh.

Marty Gums Up Matters.

The game never would have gone into extra innings but for some sour second basing by Marty McManus, which gave the White Sox a run in the second inning. Marty also threw the game into a panic in the eleventh when he made an unbelievable muff of a cinch double play ball. It was after this muff that the Sox filled the bases.

And while we are on the subject, we'll unfold something of the White Sox strategy in the last of the eleventh. Seeds singled with one out. Berry shot a perfect double play ball to Warstler. The Boston shortstop came up with it and made a perfect toss to McManus. Instead of carrying on an easy double play, McManus muffed the ball. Seeds was on second and Berry on first. Jones ran for Berry and the master minding set in.

Hodapp batted for Lyons and sacrificed for the second out. Just why Hodapp sacrificed is not clear, for Kline is the man who was pitching when Manager Fonseca tried his sacrifice with one down in the laughable final at Boston a month ago, and at that time revealed no weakness for bunted balls, as Fonseca probably remembers.

Mr. Fonseca Ends It All.

So there were two out, men on third and second and one run needed to tie when Funk came to bat. Funk immediately was passed, filling the bases. Fonseca batted for Hayes and undoubtedly would have been a hero had he singled home the tying and winning runs. But he didn't. He grounded to Pickering, who knocked down the ball, recovered it and scrambled to third base to force Jones and end the game.

The Chicago Sox scored in the first inning on a walk to Hayes, a single by Selph and Kress' long fly. The inning ended on the first of two amusing attempts to effect a delayed theft of second.

Van Camp, whose double in the eleventh resulted in the Boston victory, also started the game with a double, but was sunk by some nice pitching by Lyons. Pickering, however, opened the second inning with another double and he couldn't be blighted. He got home on Warstler's single.

Bostons Score Some.

The White Sox took the lead in the third, after two were out, on singles by Funk and Kress, a pass to Sullivan, and McManus' boot with the bases full.

The count became two all in the

CANZONERI HAS NOTHING TO LOSE WITH DUBLINSKY

Victory Tomorrow Would Boost Harry's Stock.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The West Side Boxing club, which begins business tomorrow night at Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, yesterday turned on the final flood of publicity in an effort to put over the Canzoneri-Dublinsky scrap in a great big way. As the final publicity drive commenced, the principals in tomorrow's battle completed their boxing and now affect a calm optimism.

Canzoneri, working at Trafton's gymnasium, boxed four rounds, two of them with Danny Neenan, Golden Gloves lightweight runnerup of the recent amateur campaign. Tony's other opponent was Pete Pantaleo. Dublinsky finished with five rounds at the Arcade, two against Solly Dukelsky and the others with Danny Mahoney, who claims the lightweight championship of Florida.

Tony Has Nothing to Lose.

There was none yesterday who would say Dublinsky will defeat the lightweight champion, but many predicted a close fight which would go the limit of ten rounds. Canzoneri, of course, has nothing to lose by defeat, at least what prestige he would lose easily could be regained in the two championship fights he has billed in the next five weeks. It is likely that Sammy Goldman, Tony's manager, looks on Dublinsky as an excellent preparatory match in that he will furnish excellent competition and yet does not rate to win.

Harry, however, figures the situation differently. He's done right well in the east and he is a favorite in Milwaukee. He bears a reputation as a hard worker with more than average ability. This is his best opportunity. If he whips Canzoneri he will step into the top flight.

Canzoneri saw Dublinsky recently against Benny Bass, and while Bass received the decision, Tony must know that Harry was a worthy opponent. And prior to that Dublinsky defeated Johnny Jadick just before Jadick won Canzoneri's junior welterweight title.

Garden Promoter Coming.

There is considerable interest in the bout outside of Chicago. Jimmy Johnston of the Madison Square garden, who has matched Canzoneri and Billy Petrolle Aug. 8 in a lightweight championship fight, has wired he expects to be at ringside. And Lew Tendler, now a fight promoter in Philadelphia, who will feature Tony against Jadick on July 18, also expects to be here.

Tendler will arrive tomorrow morning. He is promoting a bout tonight between Benny Leonard, his former rival, who, as the 135 pound title holder, beat him several times, and Billy Angelo.

Dublinsky's advantages tomorrow night are superior height and reach. He outreaches the champion three inches and his jabbing left, which has brought him success so far, is expected to cause Tony trouble. Dublinsky's problem will be to avoid Tony's hard hitting right hand, which if it lands, may end the bout before the tenth round.

Al Miller, a matchmaker, may substitute John Baima and Harry Paul for the six round bout between Mickey Patrick and Nick Taft. Taft has asked to be excused because of a sore throat. If another opponent can be secured, Patrick will remain on the card. He knocked out Larry Udell, a heavyweight under Jack Hurley's management, at the Stadium recently and continues to be a Chicago favorite.

Levine Battles Cheek.

One of the best supporting bouts will be the six rounder between Sammy Levine and Franklin Cheek of Milwaukee. Cheek whipped Babe Colima at the Stadium, and Levine will have trouble beating him. Sammy, a former Golden Glover, is seeking to regain lost support when Paul Dazzo outslugged him in six rounds. Dazzo boxes Mickey Cohen in the six round semi-final bout tomorrow night.

Harry Shuman and Joe Meyers, six rounds, and Nick Scialaba and Bobby Allen, four rounds, complete the card.

Lew Massey, Philadelphia boxer, has wired Al Miller that he cannot meet Barney Ross at Sparta stadium June 30, when the second West Side Boxing club show will be presented. Massey said he meets Ray Miller at Pittsburgh June 29. He is willing to box Ross on July 14.

Marcus Rankin, Penn State college football coach, and Joe Spiegal, Uniontown, Pa., junior welterweight, plan to leave for Chicago very shortly. Rankin, who has signed to manage Spiegal, says Joe has won all but two of his 29 professional bouts. Spiegal was national A. A. U. lightweight champion in 1930.

DUBLINSKY OR DUB-LINSKY? TONY'LL FIND OUT

Fame is holding out a beckoning hand to Harry Dublinsky, Chicago lightweight. But he's got to whip Tony Canzoneri at the Sparta Stadium tomorrow night if he wants to make the grade. This is Harry's first shot at a champion. It's a non-title fight, but victory will be golden to Harry just the same.

Tunney Misses Fast Workout by Sharkey

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 14.—Although disappointed by the non-appearance of James J. Tunney and James J. Corbett, former world's heavyweight champions, who were scheduled to watch him work today, Jack Sharkey breezed through a brilliant performance for a select crowd including Barney Oldfield, famous auto racer; Johnny Dundee, and Joe Shugrue, great fighters of an earlier era, and Deputy Boxing Commissioner Charles Goodman.

The challenger amazed the crowd by his boxing skill and his knack of easing punches through the smallest openings in his two round bout with Joe Sekyra, Dayton, O., heavyweight.

He stepped around with the speed of a lightweight and punished Sekyra severely with right hand smashes to the body and sharp left stabs to the face. Sharkey boxed a third round with Charley Anderson, colored Chicago heavy, but it was serio-comic after.

SCHMELING PLAYS GOLF.

Kingston, N. Y., June 14.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling's training camp took on the aspect of a deserted village this afternoon when the heavyweight champion left to play golf over the Twaalfskill course a couple of miles away. Max Machon, his trainer, accompanied him, and Bill Cunningham and Mrs. Cunningham of Boston, opposed them in a foursome.

With Joe Jacobs in New York to see about tickets and one thing and another, and also to broadcast over the radio his views of the coming contest for the title, the small army of war correspondents who have been covering the camp packed up and vanished toward Orangeburg to get a final peek at Sharkey.

SALMON TO SELL HORSES OF HIS EASTERN STABLE

New York, June 14.—[Special.]—Walter J. Salmon, prominent turf man for many years, announced today that the eastern division of his Mereworth Stud Farm racing stable would be disbanded and disposed of at a public sale. Mr. Salmon has several horses racing in the west, but no announcement was made as to whether they would be included in the sale.

"Prevailing conditions" were given as the reason for the disposal of the stable. The announcement, coming soon after the retirement of the Fair stable, owned by Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, indicated that possibly other large stables would retire from racing.

Mr. Salmon has been a large stake winner with Display, Dr. Freeland and Vigil, all being winners of the Preakness, as well as other important features.

VALLEY LEAGUE PRESIDENT CLEARS DAVENPORT CLUB

Davenport, Ia., June 14.—[Special.]—The Davenport baseball club was cleared by Dr. C. R. Logan, Mississippi Valley league president, today following an investigation of more than a dozen protests filed by rival managers in the Valley.

Clarence Roper, Dubuque manager, filed the principal protest, saying that Davenport was carrying too many veterans, O'Shaughnessy and Bradford, pitchers, being under suspicion. Dr. Logan decided the local club was not violating player, salary or veterans' rules.

Other charges were that the Blue Sox were carrying more men than the prescribed 14 and that Larson, rookie, who was released, was being "carried in the grandstand."

RENAISSANCE IS FIRST BY A NOSE IN UNION STAKES

Tug o' War Sticks All the Way to Wire.

New York, June 14.—John J. Robinson's Renaissance, a 3 year old colt by Master Charlie, hard ridden by S. Coucci, held his lead all the way to win the Union claiming stakes, feature at Aqueduct, today. The Glen Riddle farm's Tug o' War, a Man o' War colt, lost by a nose after getting away last and going wide in the stretch. Five lengths behind these two front runners, the Belair stud's Pardee was third.

The winner's share of this fixture, run for the first time in 1906, was $3,575, after the field had been reduced to five starters by the withdrawal of Fall Apple, Contribute, Brandon Prince, and Barcelona Pete.

Boy Crazy Wins Filly Race.

Boy Crazy, racing in the silks of Col. E. R. Bradley, was the fifth straight favorite to win when she defeated five other 2 year old fillies in the fifth event at 5 furlongs. This was a surprising achievement for the public choices, which usually encounter tough going in the mud. Eva B. was second, while the Greentree stable's Lazy Daisy pulled up third. The winner closed at 7 to 10.

Seb, a castoff from the stable of Herbert Bayard Swope, proved the sixth straight favorite of the afternoon to register, the son of High Time running away from his rivals in the final 6½ furlongs to complete a double for Jockey Mills. Zaidee saved much ground by cutting the corner at the head of the stretch and this enabled her to take place honors from Portam.

And Another Favorite Scores.

Three horses started in the Bramble handicap and the Log Cabin stable's Caplin, 9 to 10 favorite, won by a length and a half with Bejshak in the saddle. Honey Grove was second and Paramour was far back.

DEAD HEAT IN ASCOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ASCOT, England, June 14.—The king and queen and several other members of the royal family watched one of England's most interesting horse races this afternoon when Sandy Lashes, owned by Mrs. L. W. S. Long, and Son of Mint, carrying the silks of J. Brown, pounded down the stretch to finish in a dead heat in the Ascot stakes, one of England's historic turf fixtures.

The race, which opened the Royal Ascot meeting, attracted 24 of the best thoroughbreds on the English turf. It was the first dead heat in the history of the Ascot stakes, which was first run in 1839.

Close behind Son of Mint and Sandy Lashes as they raced to the finish line was Roide Paris, owned by J. Cooper. The race was worth 2,000 pounds to the owners of the winners, who divided the purse. Sandy Lashes was at 100 to 6 in the betting, while Son of Mint was at 100 to 8. Roide Paris was at 5 to 1.

With the king and queen in the royal stands were the prince of Wales and the duke of Gloucester. Six carriages carried the royal party to the races.

In addition to those trophies a large cup, donated by Otto Schoeppel, who has for years been associated with the promotion of amateur athletics, will be presented to the organization which has the greatest number of members placing in this event.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 14.—(AP)—The Phillies rallied in the ninth inning for three runs to win the first game of today's double header with the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 5, but they couldn't beat Jack Ogden's seven hit pitching and Jim Elliott's bad first inning in the second contest and Cincinnati came through with a 5 to 2 triumph. Chuck Klein hit his 16th homer in the seventh inning of the first game with two on base. In the ninth, the Phils nicked Owen Carroll for five hits to win. Eddie Delker's homer accounted for the only Philly runs in the second game. Score:

HUSKIES ARRIVE ON HUDSON FOR REGATTA MONDAY

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 14.—(AP)—The arrival of Washington and Massachusetts Tech today completed the roster of crews which will race in the intercollegiate regatta Monday.

Both crews got on the water before nightfall, but Washington had only a short test. Coach Ulbrickson said the long, hot ride from the coast had taken so much out of his men it would be several days before he would put them in intensive training. Washington is represented only by the varsity this year.

Several late arrivals in the Tech camp compelled Coach Haines to cut the initial practice to two crews, with the varsity and freshmen filling most of the places.

Three time trials were held over the championship course, Cornell and Pennsylvania in the morning, and Columbia in the late afternoon, but times were not given. Columbia's stock, well down during the early training season, was given a boost by the Light Blue's performance today.

Wooden stepped into the basketball limelight as a sophomore in 1930. He was co-captain in 1931 and again this year. Wooden set a new Big Ten individual scoring record this year with 154 points in 12 games.

MOON MULLINS—PUTTING THE FINGER ON BURLAP

Boston Whips White Sox 5-4 in 11 Innings

fourth, when Oliver walked, paused while Warstler fanned and came home on Tate's triple. Benny was left on third because Weiland fanned and Hayes threw out Van Camp.

Watwood opened the fifth inning with a single to center, was sacrificed to second by McManus and scored on Jolley's smash to right. In the first of the sixth, Warstler doubled and came home on Tate's single off Kress' shoulder, making the score 4 to 2 in favor of the enemy.

They Tie It Again.

In the seventh the score was tied at four apiece. Hayes singled with one out and came home on Selph's triple to left. Weiland then went away and Kline barged on the scene. Selph was held on third while Pickering threw out Kress and died there when the same young man threw out Sullivan.

The winning run was scored by Van Camp, who opened the eleventh with his second double and third hit, went to third on Watwood's sacrifice and scored on McManus' long fly to Fothergill.

In winning yesterday's contest the Red Sox split their series here. The season series between the two Sox now stands five to three in favor of the White ones.

JONES FACES YANKS

Sam Jones, who pitched and pitched well, the one game the White Sox have played with the Yanks this year, is ready to pitch the opener against the New Yorkers this afternoon.

While the powerful Sox are showing off to the natives of Waterloo, Ia., Friday, the Yanks will be doing their stuff against the Brewers up in Milwaukee.

Lu Blue will not play this afternoon but expected the misery in his side to ease in time for participation in the week-end games with the New York first placers.

The boys in the counting room are praying for an early adjournment of the Republican convention this afternoon. It is figured that many delegates who never have viewed Babe Ruth in action might like to do so.

After midnight tonight it will be too late for the Sox to do any swapping with other major league clubs. It is rumored that a last minute deal or two may be effected.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 14.—[Special.]—Although Walter Hagen turned in a course record of 67, two University of Michigan golfers, John Fischer of Cincinnati and Jack Lenfesty of Chicago, defeated Hagen and Joseph Jurado, South American champion, 2 up, on the university course here today. The collegians made a best ball score of 64 to 65 for the visitors.

The Michigan golfers won five holes and their opponents three, while 10 were halved. They also took the tenth hole. Birdies by Fischer on the 13th and 14th again squared the match and Lenfesty counted another birdie 3 on the 415 yard 16th hole to put the Michigan golfers ahead.

Stears Signs to Coach at Purdue Again

Lafayette, Ind., June 14.—[Special.]—Purdue's football coaching staff was completed today with the announcement that George Stears, former varsity guard, who was an assistant coach last fall, had been signed again.

The signing of Stears assures the Boilermakers another balanced coaching staff. Heading the staff of assistants who will aid Coach Noble Kizer is Mel Elward, former Notre Dame star who played with the late Knute Rockne. Elward is generally recognized as one of the keenest technicians in the game today. He will be starting his sixth year as a member of the Purdue staff, in which time he has been identified with the rise of Purdue football to its present place of prominence.

The other three assistants are all former Purdue stars—Glen Harmeson, all-western half back; Guy (Red) Mackey, all-conference end, and Stears.

BERLINGER HEEDS BUSINESS CALL; SHUNS OLYMPICS

Philadelphia, Pa., June 14.—(AP)—Barney Berlinger, former American decathlon champion and all around track and field star, indicated today he will not compete in the forthcoming Olympic games.

Joseph Labrum, director of sports publicity at the University of Pennsylvania, said Berlinger has entered business with his father, a Philadelphia manufacturer, and feels he should devote his time to industrial activities rather than spend two months in intensive training and competition in the Olympic trials and meet.

Berlinger was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania a year ago.

What's This! Dizzy Dean Must Have Lost His Tongue

New York, June 14.—(AP)—What's become of Dizzy Dean, the blustering St. Louis rookie, who would sign up for a parachute jump on a moment's notice or tell you there wasn't a batter in the National league who could touch his fast ball?

He's disappeared, almost without a trace. In his stead is Jerome H. Dean, a tall, solemn young man who says very little.

Gabby Street, who witnessed and, perhaps, did something toward engineering the metamorphosis of the year's loudest recruit, was the attention caller. He motioned toward a figure stretched out in a lobby chair eyeing the ceiling.

"If you want a story on my club, there it is," he said. "It's a better story than what I think of our chances to win the pennant or why we aren't any higher than sixth place today. There's a great young pitcher who has learned something the last two months. He used to be fair game for every reporter that came along, but try to get him to give you a dizzy speech now."

It seemed like a good suggestion. Surely there was a spark or two left in the Dean, who devoted the last two years to running Texas league managers dippy.

"How are you finding these National league hitters by this time, Dean? Are they bothering you any to speak of?"

That, in another day, would have produced something good. But the new Dean only settled deeper in the upholstery.

"They're all pretty tough," he said. "you've got to have something to make good up there. My, how that Chuck Klein and Don Hurst knocked me about up at Philadelphia, and Bill Terry sure can hit that ball."

Not a word about Dean. The Cardinal system has attended to that. Even though the big fellow has been pitching fine ball of late and has won himself a place as a regular starter, he refused to mention the fact. He merely expressed mild disappointment that it was raining and he couldn't take his turn against Brooklyn.

HOWELL, VINSON BREAK PAR IN AMATEUR MEET

Birmingham, Ala., June 14.—(AP)—Two youthful challengers for the southern amateur golf championship—Billy Howell of Richmond and Eugene Vinson of Meridian, Miss.—shot sub-par rounds of 70 to tie in the first 18 holes qualifying round today.

The boys were the only contestants to equal or break par 71, and were three strokes ahead of William Sadler of Birmingham.

Sam Perry of Birmingham, the 1929 southern champion, and Charles Yates, young Georgia titlist of Atlanta, had 74s while Emmett Spicer, champion in 1926 and 1930, Julius Hughes of Atlanta, Joe Adams of Asheville, N. C., and Pollack Boyd of Chattanooga had 75s.

TEN BLACK BASS IS QUOTA TODAY AS SEASON OPENS

Illinois River Beckons to Fisherman.

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois black bass fishermen can toss their lures today. The open season is officially scheduled for the morning of June 15. This date holds true for the northern zone only. In the southern part of the state the open season began earlier in the month.

The Illinois law says that it is illegal "for any person to catch or take, in any one day, in excess of ten black bass or trout [except lake trout], or 25 bass [rock, white, or striped], crappies, perch, sunfish, goggle eye, or bluegill.'" The black bass must be ten inches long to be retained.

Hit for Illinois River Trail.

Although it still is possible for a fisherman to catch bass in the northern Illinois lake country in lakes like Pistakee, Fox, Grass and Petite, there is no doubt that the snappiest fishing is found on trails which take you into the Illinois river country. The river valley is dotted with spring fed lakes, which still produce dandy strings of fish, although net fishermen have upset the fishing picture during the last few years.

When we were in Peoria a short time ago we obtained some information about Spring lake, which is reached out of the town of Pekin, below Peoria. C. C. Block and several other sportsmen in that vicinity were telling us about the big bass the boys have been catching in Spring lake, which, before the evils of drainage disturbed the water conditions, was a much bigger lake than it is now. Apparently there are some fine bass in Spring lake, even though the lake has dwindled in size. Boats are available. Any one going to this lake may get road directions in Pekin.

Other Spots Down Stream.

Farther down the Illinois one can locate many more excellent bass fishing grounds. Around Sheldon Grove, which is not far from Browning, we know of an old hunting guide and an expert with a fly rod, who hooks beautiful strings of large mouth bass by fishing among the snags and stumps which dot all the old sloughs and lakes along the river. Illinois fishermen must not forget their licenses. If you are more than 21 you must have a license, and the cost will be 50 cents.

Shaw Enters Speedway Car in Roby Race

Wilbur Shaw, for a time leader of the Decoration day 500 mile race on the Indianapolis speedway, will battle practically the same field in the 100 mile classic at the new Roby-Chicago speedway Sunday when he makes another bid for a better rating in the national championship standing. Shaw will go to the starting post with the same car he drove at Indianapolis.

Shaw has driven himself into popularity with Chicago fans in races at Roby and in this district. He never has nursed a car into a big money place, but has driven his mount as fast as it would go on every occasion, sometimes to his own sorrow.

When Shaw lines up with other speedway stars at Roby, including Freddy Frame, Indianapolis winner; Howdy Wilcox, second; Bob Carey, third, and winner of the recent Detroit 100 mile race, he may be distinguished by his white crash helmet. The derby is made of material heavy enough to prevent head wounds in case of a crash.

ADOPT PLAN TO REFINANCE FOUR STRAUS ISSUES

Original Bond Total Was $810,000.

BY AL CHASE.

Adoption of reorganization plans on four more Chicago properties, with bond issues originally totaling $810,000, were announced yesterday by the S. W. Straus & Co. bondholders' committee. The four include the Caverswall Court apartments, at 1350 Madison park, containing twenty-four suites of five and six rooms; the Essex apartments, at 76th and Essex, with thirty flats of three and four rooms; the Colfax apartments, at 7608 Colfax avenue, with twenty-six suites of four rooms, and the Beacon Manor, at the northwest corner of Wilson and Beacon, containing six shops and twenty-four apartments of two and three rooms.

M. A. ROSENTHAL.

This quartet represents four distinctive methods of approach in solving problems of real estate reorganization, according to M. A. Rosenthal, vice president of S. W. Straus & Co. In the case of the Caverswall Court, the depositing bondholders will receive new 5 per cent cumulative fifteen year sinking fund income bonds and in addition trust certificates for one share of common stock in the new company, which will own the building, for each $100 in par value of bonds deposited.

90 Per Cent Deposited.

The plan provides that the new bonds may be subject to a new small first mortgage if obtained, the proceeds of which will be used to pay foreclosure and reorganization expense. It is stated that 90 per cent of the bonds have been deposited and none will be accepted after June 20. The plan of reorganization is conditioned upon the acquisition of the property by the committee at foreclosure sale.

Essex bondholders who deposit their securities on or before June 20 will receive trust certificates for 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock for the full face amount of bonds plus accrued interest. The depositing bondholders also will receive trust certificates for one half of the common stock. This plan of reorganization also is contingent on the purchase of the property by the committee at foreclosure sale.

The plan for the Colfax reorganization provides that new first mortgage bonds will be issued to the depositing first mortgage bondholders. These will mature in fifteen years and will bear 5 per cent interest after April 1, 1934. These bonds are subject to retirement through a sinking fund to consist of 66 2-3 per cent of the net earnings of the property.

Trustee to Hold Title.

The property is to be conveyed to the Straus National Bank and Trust company, as trustee, on the condition that it shall be turned over to the owners if on April 1, 1934, they have paid all operating expenses, delinquent and accrued taxes and rehabilitation up to $2,500. Otherwise, title to the property shall continue to be held for the benefit of the holders of the new bonds. The owners have agreed to supplement the funds in the hands of the trustee to the extent necessary to complete the necessary rehabilitation and to carry out the reorganization, Mr. Rosenthal states that a foreclosure probably will be avoided.

Reorganization of the Beacon Manor property provides for immediate foreclosure and purchase for those bondholders who deposit before June 20. After acquirement a new company will be formed to hold title, the common stock in which will be apportioned to the depositing bondholders, one share for each $100 of bonds.

Subject to Recapture.

"In the Caverswall, Essex and Colfax reorganizations where recognition has been given the junior interests, such interests have been made subject to recapture for the depositing bondholders within a fixed period, in the event that the properties should not earn their requirements under the readjusted financial structure," said Mr. Rosenthal. "This means, of course, that the bondholders in such an event would become the sole owners of the property, without the necessity of further proceedings.

"In the Beacon Manor reorganization, provision has been made that trust certificates for common stock held by junior interests will not participate in any cash distribution from the proceeds of any new first mortgage."

LEE, HIGGINSON TELLS PLAN FOR NEW COMPANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—Lee, Higginson & Co., for many years bankers for corporations in many parts of the world, distributors of upwards of a billion dollars in securities, announced today plans to discontinue shortly such issuance and distribution. The firm plans eventually to liquidate its assets.

Its initial financing in connection with the Swedish match interests of Ivar Kreuger came in July, 1925, with the offering of an issue of $24,250,000 of preferred stock of the International Match corporation.

Under the new plan, the business of distribution of securities will be taken over by a corporation to be known as the Lee, Higginson corporation, which will confine its activities to New York, Boston, and Chicago. In those cities the present firm now has its principal offices.

To Close Sixteen Offices.

Offices in sixteen other cities will be discontinued. The Paris office, Lee, Higginson et Cie, similarly will reduce its activities. The London firm, Higginson & Co., will, however, continue all of its business as heretofore.

The last piece of public financing done by the firm was late in April, when it headed a syndicate which offered and quickly sold an issue of $30,000,000 Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston 4½ and 5 per cent notes. Not only has the firm headed major banking groups of its own in marketing securities, but it has participated in many others.

The foregoing was included in the official announcement, which also contained these words:

"A corporation to be known as Lee-Higginson corporation, with its capital paid in from sources outside the present partnership, is presently to be formed to engage in the securities business with offices in New York, Boston and Chicago.

"The assets of Lee, Higginson & Co. will remain with the partnership, and following the formation of the new corporation the firm will devote itself to the protection and eventual liquidation of its assets and to the handling of its existing acceptance business."

Partners Are Named.

The partners of Lee, Higginson & Co. in New York are Frederic W. Allen, Jerome D. Greene, Donald Durant, George Murnane, and Edward N. Jesup. The Boston partners are George C. Lee, who is the only partner to hold a membership in the New York stock exchange; N. Penrose Hallowell, Francis L. Higginson, James Nowell, Charles E. Cotting, Edward H. Osgood, and Ralph Lowell. The Chicago partners are Charles H. Schweppe, Barrett Wendell Jr., and William McCormick Blair.

The firm has memberships in the New York, Chicago, and Boston stock exchanges, the Investment Bankers' association, and associated membership in the New York curb exchange. It has its own wire system. Branch offices are located in Hartford, Conn.; Portland, Me.; Springfield, Mass.; Worcester, Mass.; Concord, N. H.; Providence, R. I.; Cleveland, O.; Newark, N. J.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Pittsburgh, Pa.; Milwaukee, Wis.; St. Louis, Mo.; Minneapolis, Minn.; St. Paul, Minn.; Indianapolis, Ind., and Kansas City, Mo. In addition it has representatives in several other cities.

Some of Its Clients.

Some of the corporations for which Lee, Higginson & Co. have acted as bankers are as follows: Bell Telephone Company of Canada, Budd Wheel company, Ujigawa Electric Power company, Ltd., of Japan, Puget Sound Power and Light company, Savannah Electric and Power company, Oy-Products Coke company, European Mortgage and Investment corporation, Rhine-Main-Danube corporation, U. S. Smelting, Refining and Mining company, Gypsum Products company, Montana Power company, Fairbanks, Morse & Co.; Follansbee Brothers company, Solvay American Investment corporation, Remington Arms company, and the Shell Union Oil company.

California-Oregon Power Offering $4,000,000 Bonds

An offering of $4,000,000 of the California-Oregon Power company refunding mortgage 6½ per cent gold bonds is being made by a syndicate headed by the Harris Trust and Savings bank and including H. M. Byllesby & Co., W. C. Langley & Co., A. C. Allyn & Co., J. Henry Schroder Banking corporation, and Chase-Harris-Forbes corporation. This is the first new offering of its kind in several weeks. An interesting feature is the privilege of the holder to convert at his option into long time 6 per cent mortgage bonds and receive $50 cash upon conversion. The bonds are priced at 93, yielding 7½ per cent, and are due May 1, 1942.

Many housewives find electric cooking convenient, efficient and labor-saving. $65,000,000 of electricity was consumed in 1931 in cooking this modern way—and there is still a great potential market of 10,000,000 unwired homes!

Cities Service Company subsidiaries supply electricity to thousands of homes and factories, and are also prominent in the Natural Gas and Petroleum industries. Write for information about Cities Service Company securities.

BANK OF FRANCE CALLS GOLD FOR $55,000,000

Exports Believed to Be Near End.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The Bank of France, which virtually means the French people, either took yesterday or arranged to take a total of more than $55,000,000 in gold from the United States. The French central bank had $5,138,000 actually shipped and had the New York federal reserve bank set aside, or "earmark," an additional $49,995,100 for future shipment.

These transactions, according to bankers, almost complete the withdrawal of French balances in this country. Similarly, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland have almost converted their balances in this country into gold and have taken it home. Officials of the United States treasury and our federal reserve system estimate that foreign short term credits outstanding in this country now total less than $500,000,000, including French balances of less than $100,000,000.

Need Larger Balances.

Foreign trade experts estimate that European nations must maintain balances of at least $300,000,000 or $400,000,000 in the United States in order to finance their commerce, even at the current low level of trade. Therefore, it is their opinion, which is subscribed to by American bankers, that the long outflow of gold is near an end. Moreover, it also is their opinion that a return flow of gold must eventually take place.

The moratorium granted by the United States a year ago is nearing an end, which means that France and other European nations next winter will be obliged to resume payments on their debts, unless some further development in international politics and finance intervenes.

A further factor is that the United States still is selling more goods to other countries than it is buying from them and, barring reversal of this trend and selling of foreign bonds in this country, Europe and the rest of the world will have to send us gold to satisfy our excess of exports over imports. It doesn't seem likely that American investors will again absorb large foreign bond issues for some time to come, at least.

Dollar Rallies Briskly.

All of these factors were reflected in the foreign exchange market yesterday. The dollar again rallied briskly and, conversely, the French franc sagged to the lowest level since the gold movement began. Dutch exchange rates dropped below the point where gold withdrawals are profitable and the Swiss rate was down almost to that point. So it would appear that the "run on the dollar" is about over.

The French "earmarking" of gold yesterday was the largest single transaction that has occurred since the gold withdrawal movement was precipitated last September when England suspended the gold standard. During these nine months gold stock of the United States has declined from above $5,000,000,000 to around $3,900,000,000. But Europe has withdrawn more than the difference between these figures, as the United States has received considerable gold from South America and the orient.

All told, it is estimated Europe has cashied in a balance of around $1,500,000,000 in this country and the bulk of this amount has gone to France. While the loss of gold has narrowed our credit base somewhat, the withdrawal of these great foreign credits is not an unmixed evil. It has removed a threat of future and sudden disturbances to American finance and it has lessened the influence of Europe, and particularly France, on our international policies. Hereafter, American statesmen and financiers should be free to enter international relations as their judgment dictates.

GOLD HOLDINGS GROW

New York, June 14.—(AP)—The gold holdings of the Bank of France have increased from approximately $2,900,000,000 last September to a current level in excess of $3,600,000,000, only moderately under our own total, which is still the world's largest. The total stock of monetary gold in the world is estimated at only about $11,000,000,000.

Paper "Warns" America.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 14.—Further "warning" to America that European "support" of the dollar will be conditioned on cancellation of debts was delivered in Information today.

Commenting on the sudden rise of the dollar due to the cessation of spot sales and heavy buying by the Guaranty Trust company—American currency now being quoted well above the gold point—that paper expresses doubts that this firmness will last. Speculating on what would happen if weakness of the dollar were increased it hints that maintenance of the gold standard would be subordinated to an accord with the Bank of France and the Bank of England and that it is extremely unlikely that such support would be offered without return in the shape of debt cancellation.

Pines Winterfront Co. Reports Deficit for Year

Pines Winterfront reported a loss of $290,410 after depreciation and expenses for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1932, as compared with a net profit of $174,929, equal to 50c a share on 347,511 shares of capital stock in the preceding year. In addition there was charged against surplus $854,348, representing depreciation in the market value of the company's stock owned by the company, inventory adjustments and dividends paid last year. These writeoffs, combined with the net loss, resulted in a decrease in capital and earned surplus to $1,277,300, as compared with $2,722,053 a year previously.

Another Road Will Not Pay on Preferred

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—Directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company today omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share due at this time on the 7 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock. Regular quarterly dividends had been paid on this issue since the initial payment Jan. 1, 1928, after issuance of the stock in October, 1927.

The official statement issued by the company said:

"At a meeting of New Haven directors it was decided, on account of prevailing business conditions, to omit the preferred dividend."

Action on the dividend was deferred until today from the meeting on May 24. The New Haven has omitted payments on its common stock since a disbursement of $1 a share on Oct. 1 last year, the total for 1931 having been $5.50 a share.

Western Union Omits Payment.

The Western Union Telegraph company today omitted action on dividends on the common stock. On March 18 it paid $1, compared with the previous quarterly rate of $1.50.

Western Union paid $8 annually for several years prior to the first cut in its rate in October, 1931. The company's dividend record is a notable one covering sixty years in which stockholders never failed to receive some distribution. A statement said that results for the first six months this year will show that fixed charges have been earned without sufficient excess for a quarterly dividend.

Trustees of the Bank of New York and Trust company today voted a reduction in the dividend rate paid by that institution from $4.50 to $3.50 quarterly, cutting the annual basis from $18 to $14.

Standard Gas Cuts Dividend.

The Standard Gas and Electric company declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the common stock, placing it on a $2 annual basis, compared with $3.50 annually previously paid.

Directors of the Pacific Life Insurance company declared the usual extra dividend of 10 cents a share and the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share.

American Brake Shoe and Foundry company declared a dividend of 15 cents a share on the common stock. In the two preceding quarters dividends of 40 cents a share each were paid, compared with a previous annual rate of $2.40 a share.

Chicago Railway Equipment declared a dividend of ¾ of 1 per cent, or approximately 22 cents a share, on the cumulative preferred stock, compared with a quarterly dividend of 43¾ cents.

Cut in Payment.

Carnation company declared a dividend of 37½ cents on the common stock. Previously the company paid semi-annual dividends of 75 cents. The regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 was declared on the preferred.

Directors of National Steel car corporation declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, compared with 50 cents quarterly paid previously.

An initial quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the new $5 par stock of the Pan American Petroleum and Transport company was declared, payable July 20 to stock of record June 30.

Bancamerica-Blair to Vote on Capital Stock Reduction

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—Stockholders of the Bancamerica-Blair corporation have been called to a special meeting for June 20 to act on a reduction in the amount of capital stock from $14,710,120 to $1,471,012, indicative of a reduction in the par value from $10 a share to $1, it was reported today.

Holders of record June 6 will be entitled to a vote at the meeting. Shares of Bancamerica-Blair are held entirely by stockholders of the Bank of America National association, share for share, and are transferable only with the stock of the bank.

Fidelity and Deposit Board Would Cut Par of Stock

Baltimore, Md., June 14.—(AP)—The proposal of the board of directors of the Fidelity and Deposit company for a reduction of the company's capital stock from $50 a share to $20 a share was approved today by the stockholders. The total valuation was reduced from $6,000,000 to $2,400,000 and $3,600,000 was transferred to surplus.

Stockholders of the Maryland Casualty company approved a reduction of the capital stock from $10 a share to $2 a share, cutting the total valuation from $5,000,000 to $1,000,000 and transferring $4,000,000 to surplus.

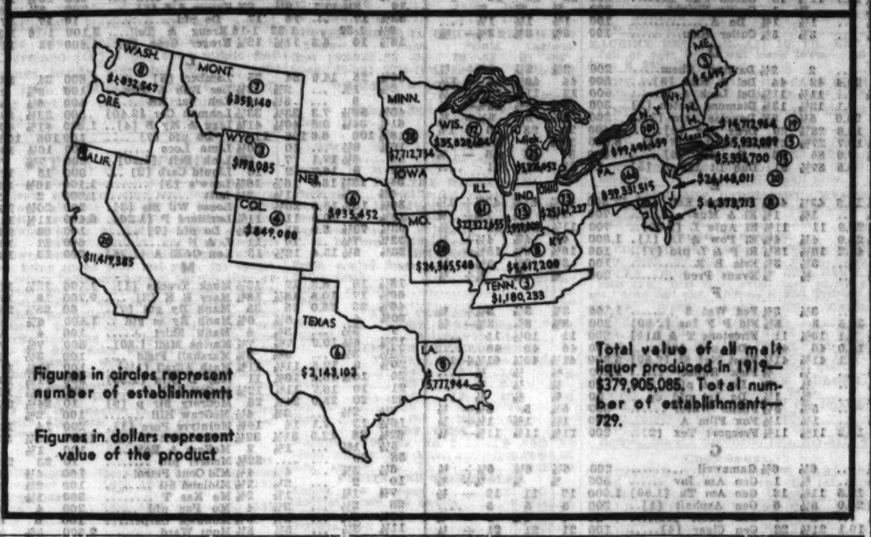

Two More Concerns Boost Price of Refined Sugar

New York, June 14.—(AP)—The American Sugar Refining and National Sugar Refining companies announced today an increase of one-tenth of 1 cent in the price of refined sugar to 3 4-5 cents a pound, effective tomorrow. This follows the similar action of the California and Hawaii Sugar Refining company announced yesterday.

UNITED AMERICAN TRUST AND SAVINGS CLOSED BY AUDITOR

The United American Trust and Savings bank, 1200 North Ashland avenue, was closed yesterday by State Auditor Oscar Nelson at the request of the directors. It has a capital of $750,000 and surplus of $150,000. Two years ago, after the bank took over the Home Bank and Trust company, it had deposits of approximately $11,000,000. These had dwindled yesterday to approximately $1,300,000, causing the directors to act to close the institution to protect interests of remaining depositors.

FIRST OF INSULL RECEIVERS HAS REPORT READY

Tells Status of United Public Service.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Samuel W. White, receiver for the United Public Service company, a unit of the Middle West Utilities company, yesterday filed a detailed report on the condition of the company with the United States District court under whose jurisdiction the affairs of the concern are being administered.

The report shows clearly some of the troubles which the Middle West company encountered in carrying out its ambitious expansion program in the last few years. United Public Service company is a holding concern for a group of utility properties operating principally in the southeast. Its chief subholding companies are the United Public Utilities company, Southern United Gas company, and Kentucky Power company.

Beats Fierce Competition.

The group was acquired by Middle West Utilities in 1929 when the great utility holding companies of the country were bidding furiously for properties. The properties were purchased at an inflated price and since that time, the report shows, have required constant financial help from the parent company.

Receiver White's report shows that Middle West advanced a total of $5,448,000 to its newly acquired subsidiary in the three years following the purchase. In addition it waived certain interest charges on the advances made. Early this year when the financial position of Middle West became strained it cut off further loans to United Public Service. The latter then defaulted on its bond interest, which has since been paid within the period of grace by the receivers.

The account of the receiver shows an intricate maze of intercompany financial transactions between United Public Service and its parent, Middle West, and its various subholding firms and operating units. United Public Service used the funds it received from Middle West to help out its subholding companies, which in turn helped their subsidiaries to meet their financial obligations.

Lends to Smaller Units.

Aided by Middle West to the extent of $5,401,000, United Public Service turned around and loaned $4,489,202 to its corporate children. Chief recipients of these loans were the three principal holding companies, Kentucky Power company, United Public Utilities and Southern United Gas company. These companies in turn split up the loans into smaller pieces and helped out their subsidiaries.

Although Middle West played the "angel" to United Public Service for three years its advances were partly secured. The assets which United Public Service received from its subsidiaries as collateral for the $4,489,202 of loans were then pledged with Middle West to secure its advances. Other loans made by United Public Service to its various units include $5,994,734, which were made to aid the subsidiaries to carry out their construction program.

The report covers the condition of the company as of April 14, the date on which the affairs of the company came under the care of the federal court. Since that time changes have taken place and some of the subsidiaries have reduced their bank loans.

Full Audit Being Made.

Receiver White explained that a complete audit of the corporation is being made by Arthur Anderson & Co., accountants. A consolidated balance sheet and earnings statement covering 1931 and 1932 to date will be made public on completion of the audit.

Mr. White gives a complete list the securities owned or held by the parent company and the subholding companies. He designated the securities which are pledged either with corporate relatives or with banks. He also lists the securities which are held by the various companies as collateral and which are not owned.

Believes Dividends Too Large.

Mr. White declared that his survey indicated that the companies had distributed a larger portion of their surplus earnings in dividends than was desirable. These dividends were declared by the subsidiary companies on the securities held by United Public Service in order that the latter company would be able to meet interest and dividend requirements on its securities outstanding in the hands of the public, he said.

NORTHERN INDIANA PUBLIC SERVICE GETS WRIT AGAINST STATE

The Northern Indiana Public Service company, a part of the Midland United system, yesterday obtained a temporary injunction in the federal District court in South Bend, restraining the public service commission of Indiana from enforcing its recent order calling for an 18 per cent reduction in gas rates in Logansport. The commission's order was issued May 20. The injunction was granted the company by Judge Thomas W. Slick.

In the bill of complaint the company alleged that the order which was to become effective today, was confiscatory and violated the federal constitution. If the rates went into effect, the company declared, it would be earning slightly more than two per cent on its property investment serving Logansport. At the present time it is earning 4.33 per cent on its property, a fair value of which is in excess of $825,000, the company contended.

Midland Utilities company has sold the Gary Railways company to the Chicago and Calumet Transit District company of which Walter J. Cummings is president, according to announcement made yesterday. The deal marks the complete withdrawal of the "Insull" Indiana utility group from the local transportation field in the Calumet area.

With the acquisition of the Gary Railways the Cummings interests now control all the local transportation facilities in the district. Last August Mr. Cummings purchased the properties of Calumet Railways, Inc. These were the Shore Line Motor Coach company and the Midwest Motor Coach company, which operated in Hammond, Whiting and East Chicago, with interconnections between those cities and Chicago.

It later became an 18 hour train, resumed the 20 hour time, and then returned to 18 this year.

N. Y. Central Plans Pay Cut for Officers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—Salaries of New York Central Railroad company officers now receiving more than $300 a month will be reduced 5 per cent, effective on July 1. That was learned today. This follows a cut of 10 per cent in all nonunion wages and salaries instituted by the New York Central last year and one of a similar amount accepted by unionized forces on Feb. 1.

Earnings Are Low.

While it is understood that the New York Central's operations and earnings are currently at such unsatisfactory levels as to make additional retrenchment necessary through further curtailment of salaries, the move is regarded as significant, as it possibly foreshadows a general move toward more general reductions in railroad employé income.

In the last year all major railroad systems instituted cuts of varying amounts in the wages and salaries of nonunion forces.

After protracted negotiations, the unionized railroad labor forces agreed to take a temporary cut of 10 per cent, effective on Feb. 1, for duration of the year.

May Cut More Pay.

Should the other railroads decide to follow the Central's lead and order additional wage cuts for nonunion workers, it is felt that brotherhood employes may be asked to follow suit when the present wage agreement, covering the temporary 10 per cent wage deduction, expires at the end of this year.

Thus far this year the Central has been unable to earn a sufficient amount to cover fixed charges. May produced the largest deficit, after charges, reported so far in 1932.

Chicago and Eastern Illinois is cutting salaries 10 per cent of all employés earning $3,000 a year or more. Reduction is effective June 16. Other roads are expected to follow suit within a short time.

ATLAS UTILITIES MAKES OFFER TO GOLDMAN SACHS

New York, June 14.—(AP)—Atlas Utilities corporation today made an offer to stockholders of the Goldman Sachs Trading corporation which, if accepted, would greatly increase the Atlas interest in that company.

Under the plan, which was announced by Floyd B. Odlum, president of Atlas, which last week set the machinery in motion to absorb 12 investment companies in which it has controlling interests, stockholders of the Goldman Sachs Trading corporation are given the right to receive in exchange for each share of their stock 3-10 of a share of Atlas common stock. Goldman Sachs, which sold as high as $121.25 a share in boom days, closed today at $1.12. Atlas closed at $5.36.

The terms of exchange have been based on market quotations prevailing last Monday. The offer expires on June 30 next.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—Stocks gained sedately today in firm, quiet trading on the exchange. A more hopeful view of changing conditions became evident as the day progressed and there was a tone of underlying strength manifest throughout most of the list.

American Telephone and Telegraph, United States Steel, American Can, and others among the recognized leaders finished the day strong and with fractional gains. For the most part the gains in other sections of the market also were moderate, common stocks seldom exceeding a one point rise. American Tobacco was an exception with a two point gain. Preferred issues moved upward from one to as high as four points.

Auburn Slides Back.

The rallying tendencies of the market were not sufficiently powerful to carry the stocks through to any decisive victory, but they were strong enough to allow the shares to withstand some unfavorable news.

There was a long list of secondary issues pushing forward with considerable aggression at intervals, the leaders were active, and there was a gradual improvement in the speculative sentiment. Adverse news for the day included a rather long list of dividend cuts, the weekly car loading report, and the failure of the Republican keynoter in Chicago to mention the prohibition question in his address before the convention.

Discuss Congress Prospects.

Congressional adjournment still provided the main topic of conversation in Wall street, but there was evidence of a more optimistic view of the Washington situation. Defeat of the bonus bill in the senate or a presidential veto was accepted as assured.

Increased strength in the dollar tended to support the belief that the current flow of gold to Europe is on the wane. A rally in German bonds raised the hopes that something of

Hog prices were pegged up another notch in yesterday's aggressive buying. Eastern demand helped to hoist prices, but much of the real support came from local houses.

Shipments from here yesterday were largest for Thursday since April 19. Some orders for selected light went over unfilled due to the shortage of suitable kinds. The peak price at $3.75 was paid at the extreme close and $3.70 was a popular price, but for a short time at the opening it was difficult to beat $3.65 with closely sorted grades.

It soon became evident that available offerings were below requirements. The shortage of top lightweights soon swung buying into the medium weight butchers, resulting in a narrower spread as the session ended.

Choice 220 lb butchers topped the market at $3.75, while prime 245 lb averages sold up to $3.70, and 260 lb butchers at $3.60. The general average for the day moved up 5c more to $3.45, showing a gain of 30c, compared with the low day. The sharp rise in eastern prices, with tops up to $4.30 at some places, gives color to the theory, scouted by some, that a prolonged shortage of top light weight hogs is likely.

Cattle Advance Checked.

Buyers gained more advantage in the cattle alleys and called a halt to advancing prices. Trading slowed down considerably when sellers strove to keep the market pointing upwards in face of the bearish sentiment that ruled after the start. Bulk of offerings were carried into the later afternoon rounds before a clearance could be made and some had to go over for today's trade.

However, the best buyers could do was to hold the general market in line with the average of the preceding session. Plainer quality made the average appear lower. Choice 1,296 lb steers fetched $7.50 late in the day. Fewer of the kinds to sell at $7.00 and above were in yesterday's offerings. The bulk of beef steers went at $5.50 @7.00. Few, however, had to go below $5.50, and those at $5.00 and under were ill bred, thin stock with very little "kill" to attract local slaughtering houses. There was a poor outlet for butcher stock, and most cows and heifers ruled weak to 25c lower, selling largely on late rounds. Calves also went down 25c in value.

Yearling Sheep, $5.50.

The lamb market easily maintained a strong position at the opening of yesterday's session, and before noon had worked up fully 25c further. Some instances of 50c gain were cited in the later selling, with the clearance thorough on afternoon rounds. Illinois yearlings soared to $5.50. Most new crop lambs sold at $6.50@6.75 to packers and at $7.00 to city butchers.

California lambs reached $6.50. Prevailing lamb quotations are $1.00@1.25 above the low spot of the season, while yearlings show gains of 75c to $1.00, compared with the low marks established last month.

WALL ST. FEELS MORE HOPEFUL; STOCKS PERK UP

importance may come out of the Lausanne meeting.

There is only one more day to go before quarterly tax payments fall due, but the money market was as dull and soft as ever. The next ten days, according to observers in the financial district, may constitute the most critical period of the depression. There is a need, they hold, for some favorable development to register on psychology in all countries. Right now, they point out, world business is on a "dead center."

Pool Activities Reported.

Tape readers report a gain in pool activities and declare the market is feeling, for the first time in many months, something in the way of organized efforts. A number of stocks known to have been "pool favorites" in the past are picking up considerable business these days. Apparently pool operations are being considered safe once more.

Sugar and alcohol stocks continued to do well. This is the time of the year when sugar issues usually climb a bit, due to the warm weather, beverages and the like. Right now the prospects for an improvement in the prohibition situation also are having their effect on sugar as well as alcohol. National Distillers Products rose 1⅛ points today in active trading. United States Industrial Alcohol also was up 1⅛ points.

NEW YORK DEBT GROWS FAR FASTER THAN ITS POPULATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—The net debt of the state of New York has risen from $4,798,673 in 1885 to $298,505,557 in 1931, while the population increased only from 5,540,362 to 12,873,249, according to a study of the state's debt made by Barr Brothers & Co., Inc.

The survey points out that in 1895 the state was completely out of debt, as its sinking funds exceeded its outstanding debt by $20,217. The major increase in the state's debt came in the post-war years. The state faces no major maturities, it is shown, before Jan. 15, 1933. Then $50,000,000 3¾ per cent notes fall due. The only other large maturity next year is that of $75,000,000 of 2¾ per cent notes on May 22 and $1,800,000 of 4¼ per cent soldiers' bonus bonds in April.

ASSOCIATED GAS SUBJECT OF QUIZ BY TRADE GROUP

Washington, D. C., June 14.—(AP)—The federal trade commission today delved into the widefiung affairs of the Associated Gas and Electric company which controls utilities in 26 states, the Philippine islands and Canada. Management fees of the system came quickly under fire from S. Davis Wilson, Philadelphia lawyer, and Benjamin Foster, a stockholder in the Florida Public Service company, a subsidiary.

Foster contends that "enormous management fees" impose great hardship on the operating companies.

Wilson placed in the record a complaint filed by Foster in a Florida court alleging that since 1928, under Associated management, the Florida company's operating expenses increased from 41.7 per cent of its total revenue to 50.4 per cent in 1930, while labor and material costs were declining.

In 1928, Foster's complaint said, fixed charges amounted to $822,311 "under the management and control of the company's proper officers and directors." By 1931, the complaint added, these charges had increased to $1,084,108 under Associated Gas and Electric management without a corresponding increase of gross revenue.

Ready to Pay Interest on Board of Trade Bonds

Funds have been deposited in the First Union Trust and Savings bank for payment of interest payable June 15 on Chicago Board of Trade 5 per cent building bonds, due 1953, it was announced.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, June 14.—(AP)—Sales of coarse sheetings were made at concessions of ⅛c a yard. The reduction of 16 per cent in prices on wide sheetings for domestic use is being generally followed. Seamless hosiery manufacturers are taking better qualities of inferior dull luster viscose yarns. More business is being done on men's wear worsteds. In silks more interest is developing in fall lines. Burlaps were unchanged.

FORM COMMITTEE FOR BONDHOLDERS OF STEVENS GROUP

Owners of bonds in the Stevens Brothers corporation, which owns the Columbus Memorial, Venetian, and Stevens building group at the southeast corner of State and Washington, have formed a protective committee, the chairman of which is Gilbert H. Scribner of Winston & Co. The other members are Joseph Solari of the Peabody Coal company, Henry G. Lodge of E. H. Rollins & Sons, and Arthur E. Swanson of the Swanson, Ogilvie company. Two of the members represent substantial holders of the bonds, it is stated.

Because of the marked decrease in income from rentals, the Stevens Brothers corporation has failed to make the semi-monthly payments required under the mortgage to be used for bond interest and the retirement of bonds, and it is stated that it is unlikely that payment of Sept. 1 interest will be made. The corporation, following the receivership for Charles A. Stevens & Bros., has not received rentals from the store space on the basis of $720,000 annually, it was announced yesterday.

A call has been made for the deposit of the first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, series A, and the 5 per cent sinking fund mortgage bonds, series B, with Halsey, Stuart & Co. Harry R. Mosser of 209 South La Salle street is secretary of the bondholders' committee.

ASSERTS LARGE BUYING VOLUME OVERHANGS MART

Rye, N. Y., June 14.—(AP)—Harry J. Haas, president of the American Bankers' association, today told the New York state bankers' convention, in session here, that a great volume of public buying was overhanging the market, awaiting only the dissipation of present economic uncertainties.

He said that "people have economized too much and too long," and added, "this suspended buying" will be replaced by effective purchasing demand as soon as people feel that their jobs are secure, that the period of wage cutting has come to an end, and that the destruction of values and purchasing power will go no further.

FREIGHT CAR LOADINGS DURING WEEK OF JUNE 4 REPORTED AS 447,387

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 14.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on June 4, totaled 447,387 cars, according to reports filed by the railroads with the car service division of the American Railway association and made public today.

Due to the observance of the Decoration day holiday, this was a decrease of 73,575 cars below the preceding week this year. This also was a reduction of 313,697 cars below the corresponding week in 1931, and 488,195 cars under the same period two years ago. The corresponding weeks in 1930 and 1931, however, did not include the holiday.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week ended on June 4 totaled 169,393 cars, a decrease of 25,542 cars below the preceding week, 137,004 cars under the corresponding week in 1931, and 199,323 cars under the same week in 1930.

Production of Newsprint in May Exceeds Shipments

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 14.—Production of newsprint in the United States and Canada in May exceeded shipments and a further increase in mill stocks as of June 1, is reported by the News Print Service Bureau. Stocks on June 1 were 92,170 tons in the United States and Canada, compared with 89,321 tons on May 1, 102,225 tons on April 1, and 72,918 tons on June 1, 1931.

CENTRAL POWER.

Company, part of the Middle West Utilities system, for the first quarter of 1932 reports gross operating revenues of $303,204, compared with $305,535 for the first quarter of 1931. Net for retirement and dividends was $61,500, compared with $576,321.

For the twelve months ended March 31, 1932, gross operating revenues were $1,255,475, compared with $1,248,229 for the twelve months ended March 31, 1931. Net for retirement and dividends was $323,905, compared with $352,412.

COTTON PRICES HIGHER

Opening prices in American markets were disappointing, with first prices on futures at Chicago 7@8 points lower. The latter, however, gained 9@12 points in the first hour on the active months, scoring net gains over the previous close. This was attributed in part to growing fears from present indications that the boll weevil may be active, causing damage later in the season. Rains continue more than ample and further precipitation is forecast for the Mississippi valley and over the southeast.

The census bureau's report on consumption of cotton during May of 332,439 bales, showing a loss of 34,341 bales for the month, and compared with 465,363 bales in May last year, while about as expected, caused prices to decline. From these levels the market scored another sharp advance, partly lost before the close, which was 2@5 points net higher in Chicago, while New Orleans was unchanged to 4 points higher, with New York up 2@4 points.

Spot markets were quiet and closed 5 points higher, with New York 5.20c, New Orleans 5.15c, Houston 5.05c, and Galveston 5.10c. Prices follow:

Former Near Board of Trade's Record.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

New low levels for the season were established for all deliveries of wheat and rye in American markets yesterday. General selling developed in wheat at the start and carried the old July off 1⅛c to 48⅜c, or ⅛c under the inside figure made last October, and within 4⅛c of the lowest figure at which any future has sold since the Board of Trade was established. July rye at 29⅜c sold the lowest since 1896, when the cash article dropped to around 20c per bu.

Pronounced weakness in Liverpool was largely responsible for the early break in wheat, and there was a noticable lack of support until the July touched 49c, around which figure there was buying against bids, as well as some short covering credited to a local operator and a moderate amount of buying by commission houses with eastern connections.

Wheat Fails to Rally.

There was a decided lack of rallying power shown in wheat throughout the day and the bulk of the trading was within a fraction of 49c for the July. All minor upturns ran into selling orders. Closing trades were well toward the inside figures with net losses of 1@1⅛c, with old July, 49@49⅛; old September, 51½@51⅝; and December, 54⅜@54½c.

Liquidation on favorable crop comments from Canada and Europe was responsible for the break in Liverpool which carried the July future there to 51¼c, and the finish was 1¼@1½c per bu lower at 51⅝c. On September 25, 1931, when violent fluctuations in the exchange rate made it almost impossible to convert English quotations into American money the October delivery in Liverpool was quoted at 46⅝c. With the exception of a few weeks in the fall of 1931 current prices in Liverpool are probably the lowest in over 300 years.

Yesterday's decline in Chicago did not establish a new low all time record, as cash wheat in August, 1931, sold at 45c, and the December future sold at 44⅝c in October, but with the exception of that period the prevailing price level is the lowest since 1852, when cash wheat sold as low as 28c.

Cables from Liverpool reporting American No. 2 hard winter wheat was offered there at equal to 51⅝c per bu c. i. f., or about 1½c over the price of the July delivery in Chicago at the close on Monday, tended to dishearten the bulls, as it is figured that it would cost between 10@15c per bu to ship the cash grain from the local market to English ports.

Crop Reports Favorable.

Harvesting was reported as making fairly active progress in the American southwest, and the forecast was for generally fair weather. According to a message from Cairo, Ill., about 75 per cent of the southern Illinois wheat crop will have been cut within a week. Crop comments from the American northwest were distinctly favorable, while the Canadian government weekly summary, received after the close yesterday, claimed weather and soil conditions in Alberta were almost ideal, while recent rains in southwestern Manitoba and southern Saskatchewan had greatly improved conditions there.

Foreigners took little interest in North American cash wheat and only scattered lots of Manitobas were reported as sold for export.

Corn Market Firm.

Corn held within a range of around ½c, making a poor response to the weakness in wheat, and the July went to around 19¼c under wheat, compared with 20c at the finish on Monday. Closing of spreads between the July and September was in evidence and the nearby month was also helped by reports of a better shipping demand. Closing trades were unchanged to ⅛c lower, with July, 29⅞c; September, 31¾c; and December, 32⅝. Shipping sales aggregated 120,000 bu.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Limited buying power displayed in the wheat market created a more bearish feeling among the traders, despite the decline in prices to new low levels for the near future.

Traders made the point that the market opened in the bids and remained in them most of the day. This, with the political situation which many traders regarded as bearish, made the feeling after the close weaker than it has been at any time of late.

One of the most rabid bears said it would be a long time before we would see 60c wheat again, and there was much talk of distant deliveries going below the 50c level. Those who entertain these views, however, put in the proviso that conditions in the northwest spring wheat crop should undergo no material damage from now until harvest.

A trader who has entertained pessimistic ideas, based largely on politics, for a year or more, expressed the belief that it was useless for the traders to look for higher prices, except for possible sharp bulges occasionally as long as the farm board continues to be a factor in the wheat situation. Even then, he added, it may be difficult to put prices up to a normal level unless there is material crop damage abroad and greatly enlarged export buying.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

A scattered business was reported as having been done in Manitoba wheat and there was also a little Canadian rye sold for export during the day, but the foreign demand as a whole was relatively slow and purchases were said to be limited to immediate requirements. A sale of 16,000 bu white corn was reported for export at Baltimore.

BUTTER AT RECORD LOW

Heavy selling pressure sent butter futures to new all time lows on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing prices showing losses of ⅜@½c. Eggs were off ⅛c. Weekly, monthly, and daily reports showed considerably heavier supplies of butter being stored than last year, the monthly report being much more bearish than expected and the daily and weekly figures showing sharp cuts in the shortage. New selling, particularly hedging sales, continued actively to the close. Covering and new buying near the last checked the downward dip but final sales were at the day's lows. Egg futures were somewhat neglected, strongly bullish news failing to bring in support and continued moderate selling dropping the price lower. Total trading for the day was the heaviest in recent weeks. Sales: Butter, 159 cars; eggs, 52 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 5 cars. Prices follow:

MEN

PERMANENT IMMEDIATE POSITIONS ARE AVAILABLE IN OUR WEST SIDE OFFICE TO A FEW MEN WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO LEARN HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY.

The purpose of this announcement is to supply to thinking, active men an outline of a substantial, expanding opportunity for large cash earnings with this company—men with good references and established homes in the West Side or in Will or Kankakee counties. Men who can qualify and successfully apply themselves make from $4,000 to $12,000 a year and up, and these incomes are just as stable and certain as any business or professional opportunities could present.

Those who are inexperienced in specialty sales work must take the necessary time to learn and acquire skill. During this time they must be willing and satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $125 to $200 per month, if necessary. We cannot tell you how long it will take you to do this—whether one month or six months—but we do know that if you have the qualifications to satisfy our requirements you can with reasonable study, practice, good character, and diligence, be genuinely assured of making a success which will afford you the higher earnings.

Thus, in one locality, J. A. Pfister earned over $200 for one week's work. He started in this work last October. Another man without previous experience started in December and when he saw Mr. Pfister earn $70 between 9:15 a. m. and 3:15 p. m., he, too, became enthusiastic. This man, Mr. Copeland, earned $225 for his last week reported, as compared with an average of $97 per week for the last three months. Paul Kelly, a former student, earned $135 that same week, while in another locality a former postman, George Porter, made $90; a former radio store manager, F. Wager, earned $140, while L. Minutella, who has less than three months' experience, earned $135 the same week.

These men know the genuine value of this opportunity. Sometimes good men do not take up this work, because they do not believe such big earnings are possible, or that such money can be made regularly. If you have the qualifications to meet our requirements come in and get the facts from the men who can tell you from their own experience. No deposits, no investment required.

If you are of good reputation, adaptable, willing to learn and to work hard every day to make a genuine success in return for the privilege of a genuine opportunity in a permanent position with good people who will deeply interest themselves in helping you to get started and get along, make your application Wednesday morning, 9:30 to 12, at 11-14 Austin Madison Building, 5967 W. Madison-st.

President Approves Modification Plank Written by His Friends in Control of Subcommittee on Platform

SCENE IN THE CHICAGO STADIUM AS SENATOR SIMEON D. FESS, ACTING IN HIS CAPACITY AS CHAIRMAN OF THE NATIONAL COMMITTEE, CALLED THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION TO ORDER. This picture, looking southwest from the mezzanine seats to one side of the delegates and alternates' seats, was taken as the national chairman stepped to the front of the platform to announce the opening of the convention. At that time there were only a few persons in the two balconies and there were vacant mezzanine seats. The Illinois delegation is in the right center of the picture. The state standards, which are turned toward the camera, indicate where other delegations were seated.
